After the dampest June in county history the skies finally cleared bringing near record temperatures that reached an unofficial 99 degrees yesterday. Tracy Ann Palladino (L), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Palladino of Rosendale, is only 13 months old but she knows a good thing when she sees it, cooling off in her pool. Gardner North of 48 Murphy Street beat the heat by stopping by the Binnewater Lake Ice Company on Pine Street. Over in Port Ewen, Donald Ferraro Jr., 16 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Ferraro, enjoys a cool drink in his pool. All was not sweetness and light, however, as the heat and increased use of air conditioners and fans resulted in a number of power failures, in the area. Central-Hudson crews were called to Miller's Lane, Henry, Pearl and Groff Streets, Zena and Ellenville areas during the early evening hours. In New Paltz, village traffic was tied up for a time when power interruption blacked out signal light systems. (Freeman photos by Kruh and Haines)

SMILING RETURN—An unidentified stewardess smiles at her pilot after the crew of Northwest Orient Airlines hijacked Boeing 727 landed in Miami early today. The plane was hijacked with 85 passengers aboard and ordered to fly to Cuba where the passengers remain. The crew apparently were the only persons allowed to fly back to Miami. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

By CHARLES E. TAYLOR

MIAMI (UPI)—A Northwest Orient Airlines jetliner, the second U.S. plane in three days forced by hijackers to fly to Cuba, returned to the United States today with only its seven crew members aboard. The 86 passengers remained in Cuba. There was no immediate explanation why only the crew was allowed to leave Havana, where the Boeing 727 was forced to land at gunpoint Monday night on a flight from Minneapolis, Minn., to Miami.

Early Release Possible

Meanwhile, an agreement between Moscow and Washington may bring the release soon of a U.S. airliner and the 231 Americans aboard when it was forced down onto a Soviet Far East island by Russian fighters, diplomatic sources reported today.

UPI dispatches from Moscow said the official Soviet silence over the incident Sunday plus American readiness to take the blame — and probably apologize if necessary — indicated the matter was likely to be settled quickly and quietly.

The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) in Miami said the U.S. operated Cuban refugee airlift would bring the passengers back today. The airlift sends two flights daily to Cuba.

In Washington, the State Department said it was "energetically" seeking through the Swiss Embassy in Havana to determine why the passengers were not aboard the plane.

"Although we understand the Cuban government had suggested that for technical reasons the departure of the aircraft in darkness with a full load of passengers would not have been safe, nonetheless, this action is unusual," a State Department spokesman said.

Change Plans

But Jack Mays, a public relations man with Northwest Orient, said later that only the crewmen—Simonson, two flight officers and four stewardesses—were returning.

An official of the State Department's Cuban affairs office in Miami said he believed the passengers were detained because Havana airport runways are not equipped for big jet airliners.

"I think the only reason the passengers were not allowed to return was because Cuban officials considered it was not safe to take off on that runway," he said.

He said plans call for a third daily refugee airlift flight to be made today, probably returning the passengers to Miami this afternoon.

The jetliner left Havana at 5:53 a.m. EDT and landed at Miami International Airport at 6:35 a.m. Simonson and the other crewmembers left the plane and went into immediate conference with U.S. customs officials.

Many relatives of the passengers had waited through the night for the return of the Boeing 727, which was commandeered by a gunman only two minutes before it was to land in Miami Monday night.

Reports Hijacking

The plane, on a nonstop flight from Chicago after originating in Minneapolis, had radioed the Miami air traffic control tower for landing clearance when Simonson suddenly blurted that a passenger had taken control of the aircraft at gunpoint.

7th of Year

It was the seventh hijacking this year of U.S. and Latin-American airliners. All but one was allowed to return from Cuba within hours.

The exception was a Southeast Airlines DC3 airliner carrying 15 passengers which was held from last Saturday until Monday because the pilot was jailed as a Cuban deserter. A pilot had to be flown to Cuba to relieve Capt. Jorge Antonio Prelezo, who had defected from the Castro regime eight years ago and was charged with desertion.

Khe Sanh Finale: 169 Reds Killed

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI) — Military spokesmen today said U.S. Marines killed 169 Communists in what may have been the last battle of Khe Sanh.

They said Leatherneck rear guards cut down the attacking Communists three miles southeast of the fort in South Vietnam's northwest corner, while Marine demolition teams blew up Khe Sanh's bunkers.

'Any Minute'

A high-ranking U.S. source told United Press International late today that evacuation of the Marine base at Khe Sanh would be completed at "any minute."

The attacking Communists killed two Marines and wounded 11 before being stopped, shattered and touted by the Leatherneck guard force plus American artillery and air strikes.

Military spokesmen said Khe Sanh, which earlier this year withstood a 77-day siege by two North Vietnam divisions, was being abandoned and that U.S. awards for valor once the forces will instead maintain "mobile" fighting units in the area.

Casualty Accounts

In Saigon, South Vietnamese spokesmen said 273 government troops were killed in combat last week. Another 856 were wounded. It continued a series of weeks of relatively lower South Vietnamese casualties.

In the same pattern, 1,193 Communists were killed in combat in South Vietnam by the allies last week—the lowest Red death toll of the year, South Vietnamese spokesmen said.

Meantime, U.S. B52 Stratofortresses rocked the northern portion of the Demilitarized Zone Monday in five separate raids, their first into North Vietnam's southern reaches since May.

In other developments: —American paratroopers cut down 38 Viet Cong attackers in a battle so fierce the U.S. soldiers threw hand grenades between their bunkers at the Communists. Sixteen American soldiers received on-the-spot smoke had cleared, spokesmen said.

Orville Freeman, the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, arrived today in Saigon for a five-day visit in which he will examine the possibility of growing a new type rice, IR8, in Vietnam. Tests in the Philippines have yielded bumper crops of the improved seed.

What in the World!

Ray Extradition Ordered

LONDON (UPI)—A court today ordered James Earl Ray extradited to the United States to stand trial for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Ray, 40, identified as an escaped convict from a Missouri jail, was accused of shooting the civil rights leader in Memphis, Tenn., on April 4. He was arrested at London Airport June 8.

Ship Tieup Over

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Maritime Union has ended its three-day strike, which idled 128 American-flag ships, with an agreement calling for a five per cent increase in base wages and 15 more vacation days.

Theodore W. Kheel, arbitrator under the contract between the seaman's union and two employer groups, announced the settlement Monday and said, "The strike shall end immediately."

'Turks' Quit the NAACP

WASHINGTON (AP)—The "Young Turk" militants whose aggressive demands nearly broke up the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's annual convention this past week are walking out of that moderate civil rights organization.

They hope to forge a new link between themselves, the Congress of Racial Equality, The Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

NAACP leaders are probably relieved to see them go.

Fatal Mexican Quake

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—One man died Monday night in an earthquake that shook south central Mexico, centering about 110 miles southwest of Mexico City.

The newspaper "El Universal" said one man was killed in Cuajimalpa, about 25 miles west of Mexico City, when his house collapsed.

No serious damage or injuries were reported in Mexico City or in Taxco, a tourist resort in the mountains near the epicenter. The tremor was felt in Acapulco, the resort city on the Pacific coast, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

Four Drownings, Victim in Ulster

By WALTER S. CLARK Jr.

Drowning mishaps on Monday took the lives of four persons, including a 14-year-old foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hughes of Ruby, who was drowned while swimming in the Esopus Creek in the Town of Saugerties.

The other drownings, all termed accidental by authorities, occurred in Delaware, Sullivan and Erie Counties.

State Police scuba divers at daybreak today resumed search for a 16-year-old girl who disappeared while swimming with others in a river near the Delaware County township of Horton.

Kingston State Police reported the victim of the Town of Saugerties drowning yesterday afternoon was 14-year-old Barbara Ann Squire, foster daughter of the Hughes couple. An investigation by state police and the sheriff's office noted that the girl was swimming with her foster mother and three other persons in the Esopus Creek at about 1:15 p.m. when she reportedly slipped off a rock and fell into about 10 to 15 feet of water.

Unsuccessful Attempts

Others in the creek attempted to rescue her but were unsuccessful. Authorities were notified and the Mt. Marion Ruby fire department rescue squad went to the scene and began dragging operations. They found the body. The little girl was learning to swim at the time she drowned, troopers noted.

Ulster County Coroner Henry Hartley of Saugerties investigated with Senior BCI Investigator Charles Teelon, Sergeant Charles Bundschuh and Trooper John Kohland of the Kingston state police, and County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the sheriff's office.

Dr. Herbert Derman was the coroner's physician on the case. Search continued today by scuba divers from State Police headquarters of Troop C for the body of 16-year-old Susan Sampson of Cortland who drowned while swimming with friends Monday night in the Beaverkill River near the Town of Horton in Delaware County. According to troopers, the drowning occurred at 7:15 p.m. yesterday and within a half-

THE LAST AMERICAN

by Don Oakley and John Lane

"Before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, we were here."

These words of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. tell the length of the Black American's struggle for equality in America.

A 24-part illustrated story-strip, "The Last American," will tell of the Negro's 350-year history in the New World and trace the course of the black man from slavery and freedom in Africa and Europe to more of the same in America. The series will begin in the Freeman on Wednesday.

Writer Don Oakley and artist John Lane, both with Newspaper Enterprise Association (NEA), tell of great American Negroes of the present and past and show that black scientists, writers, soldiers, explorers and statesmen have contributed greatly to the development of the United States. Both heroes and villains rise from the chapters of "The Last American" exactly as they rose to prominence during their lifetimes.

As the title of this series implies, despite his contributions of blood and sweat, in terms of enjoying full rights of citizenship, the Negro is "The Last American."

To learn how this came to be, watch for "The Last American," beginning Wednesday in the Freeman.

Rondout, Onteora To Meet

Two Ulster County School Districts with twice defeated budgets on their hands will hold reorganizational meetings tonight to determine what steps should be taken to meet their problem.

At Rondout Valley, where three new members will take their place on the school board, it is anticipated that an austerity budget will be invoked as an interim solution and that further proposals will be made to school district voters.

New members include Morris H. Felsen, Julian Bartles and Burton Shoemaker. At Onteora School District's meeting, one new member, George W. Mabey of Ashokan will begin a five year board term.

It has been reported that voters of the district are circulating a petition in which the board is asked to submit the budget to a vote for the third time.

Dr. Harold Snyder, superintendent of schools reported that the last budget vote was defeated by five per cent.

In Marlboro, representatives of the Marlboro Faculty Association report that some teachers in that district are seeking employment in other areas due to the inability of the association and the school board to settle job disputes despite Public Employees Relation Board mediation.

Rondout Valley reports that during its June 21 budget defeat, 1,761 registered voters cast ballots. The revised budget of $3,819,538 was rejected by a vote of 989 to 763. The difference in the votes, coincidentally, equalled the number of people who registered during the period between the two budget votes. With a total registration of 2,889, there were 1,128 eligible registrants who did not vote June 21.

Two propositions to purchase school buses were also turned down. The purchase of two carryalls lost 1,094 to 658 and the acquisition of one new 67-passenger bus was rejected 1,097 to 644.

Rondout Valley's meeting will be held at the high school and Onteora board members will meet at the school in Boiceville, central building.

Sites, Cost for City Hall on Council Agenda

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Kingston Common Council meets in regular session tonight at 7:30 and is expected to hear a report by Architect Albert Miliken on sites and cost for a new city hall and the cost of renovating the old one.

Details were sketchy today on exactly what Miliken's report will entail. It is expected that he will list six or seven sites in the city where a new hall might be built, including the Downtown Urban Renewal area. The cost of remodeling the present city hall at 408 Broadway is said to be excessive. Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward) is chairman of the Common Council's City Hall Committee.

Favored by Mayor
Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan today came out in favor of a new city hall but said that a great deal of discussion and planning was needed to determine how large the new structure should be. Garraghan said he is making efforts to have a study made of Kingston which will determine the city's population in the year 2,000.

Garraghan also briefly touched on city finances saying he could "see daylight" ahead. He pointed out that as things now stand, his administration in the past 30 months has reduced the bonded indebtedness of the city by more than $95,408 being requested. A $69,000 street program was turned down by the Council at the June meeting, ostensibly because Garraghan failed to consult with the aldermen as to what streets were to be repaired.

Major repair jobs are being requested for North Street ($20,180), Shufeldt Street ($14,898), Second Avenue - High Street ($16,200) and Mt. View Avenue ($13,125).

Also back on the agenda is a $19,000 request by the mayor for the purchase of seven new police cars. This was also rejected at last month's Council meeting, for much the same reasons as the street program. In other police news, Chief Francis Fagan has asked that the Council amend a current law which requires police officers to be residents of the city upon appointment and extend the residency requirement to a seven mile radius of the city. No action will be taken on that measure but it is expected to come up for a vote at the August meeting of the Council. Approval will be asked on a pair of zoning changes for which public hearings were held June 19. They include the rezoning of the Arthur Organtini property on 14 Elmendorf Street from commercial to residential and a request by Anita K. Kantor to change 58-62 Lucas Avenue from residential to limited offices. The Council meets on the third floor of city hall.

Parents Night Scheduled at Coffee House

The Kingston Coffee House will play host to parents and interested adults tonight with entertainment and open house. The Kinsmen from Ulster County Community College, Rusty Madden, and several girl vocalists will present a folk-rock music session from 8 to 10 p.m. at the 73 crown Street teen spot which opened this past weekend. Tonight's open house event is to acquaint parents with the coffee house format which has such appeal for the young crowd. Starting July 8 the coffee house will be open nightly except Sunday for discussion and impromptu entertainment. Popular local groups will be on hand for weekend entertainment. On Friday and Saturday nights doors open 7:30 with two shows at 8 and 10 o'clock.

Six Hurt in Rt. 209 Accident

A two-car collision on Route 209 in the Town of Marbletown shortly before 10 p.m. Monday resulted in injuries to six persons, including three children. A one-car mishap on Ulster Heights Road injured a 19-year-old Ellenville youth.

Kingston State Police reported the cars involved in the Route 209 crash were driven by Beth Aaron of Accord, and Philip McConnell, 29, of Kerhonkson. Troopers said action is pending as the result of that accident.

The Aaron car was traveling north on Route 209 when the driver said she was forced off the highway by an unidentified southbound vehicle. As she attempted to return to the pavement she lost control and the car entered the opposite lane and was in collision with the southbound car operated by McConnell.

The Aaron woman was treated at Kingston Hospital for lacerations of the hands and face. A passenger, Danny Previl, 16, of Kerhonkson, sustained lacerations of the head and face and possible cerebral concussion.

McConnell apparently escaped injury. Gail McConnell, 28, received abrasions of the left arm and contusions. Others injured were three of the McConnell's children, Kris, 6, who received injuries of the forehead; Kim, 7, injuries of the left knee, and Kevin, 4, contusions of the forehead. They were all removed from the scene of the mishap to Ellenville Community Hospital by Doctors Ambulance Service.

Trooper Thomas Crowley investigated the accident. Both vehicles were extensively damaged.

At 12:15 a.m. today Frederic Green, 19, of Ellenville, was injured when his car went out of control on Ulster Heights

Mayor Appoints Sass To City Water Board

A former Democratic mayoral candidate, Frank C. Sass of 142 Hunter Street, has been appointed to a five-year term on the Kingston Water Board by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan.

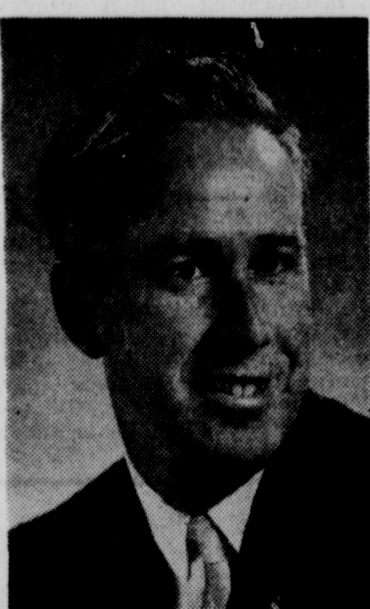

Garraghan made the announcement today at City Hall. Sass' appointment was effective yesterday and expires on May 31, 1973.

Sass replaces Thomas Davitt whose term expired May 31. He joins William F. Leehive, board president, whose term expires May 31, 1970; Sam N. Mann (May 31, 1972) the secretary to the board; Paul Schatzel (May 31, 1969) and Ernest Heppner (May 31, 1971).

Edmund T. Cloonan, a professional engineer, is Water Department superintendent.

Sass ran for mayor with Francis R. Koenig as alderman-at-large in 1963. Both were defeated, Sass by then incumbent Mayor John C. Schwenk and Koenig by Joseph Carroll.

FRANK C. SASS

Sass served the Seventh Ward for eight years as its alderman and is presently a committeeman in the ward. He was elected majority leader of the Common Council in 1961 and chaired the Urban Renewal and Building and Supply Committees in addition to serving on the Finance, Ways and Means Committee.

An IBM employee for the past 17 years, Sass is married to the former Betty Fassbender. The couple has four children. He is a parishioner of St. Peter's Church, belongs to its Holy Name Society, Knights of Columbus, American Legion, the "50" Club, the IBM Club and Rescue Hook and Ladder fire company.

Pap test

She's a woman with everything to live for. That's why a Pap test is as much a concern to her as her appearance.

So, once a year, out of her busy world of fashion, she sees her doctor for a complete physical check-up—including a Pap test. It's a simple, painless 10-minute test for cancer of the uterus.

She knows that when you have everything to live for, you don't risk it all for the sake of 10 minutes. We wish more women felt that way.

Uterine cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths among women 20 to 34 years of age. 44,000 women develop it each year, and 14,000 of them die.

And the really tragic part is that if every woman took ten minutes once a year for a Pap test, the inroads of this kind of cancer could virtually be halted.

For more information call your physician or the New York City Division of the American Cancer Society at PL 9-3500.

The more you take care of your health now, the less you'll need us later.

Negro College

A Negro educator called on American corporations and civic minded men of wealth to go to the aid of Negro colleges so that they may, progress and enable the black student to be completely equal in the academic marketplace.

Dr. Robert L. Owens, III, president of Knoxville College, Tenn., speaking at a luncheon in Pittsburgh for the United Negro College Fund, said "We don't want to go into the world of today half-baked." Although the entrance requirements of black colleges are sometimes lower because of the poor quality of education in ghetto school areas, the colleges often offer remedial courses to aid freshmen in doing college-level work.

Most private college students now pay $3,000 a year and state college students pay more than $2,000 a year, where as the UNCF enables black students, many of whom are poor, to pay only about $1,300. And every one of these students of black colleges can make a contribution to America.

The nationwide goal for this year's UNCF drive is $6.5 million. It would aid 36 colleges and universities, mostly in the South, with heavy black enrollments. It is money well spent. Training and education, those are the tools to help blacks find a place in the world today.

Costly 'Hot Pursuit'

Each year 500 or more Americans are killed in "hot pursuit" of errant motorists by police. Twice as many sustain major injuries. The pity is that most of the lawbreakers involved are guilty of minor traffic offenses.

In the first report known to have been made of the toll of life and injury in hot pursuits, an organization known as Physicians for Automotive Safety reported on a survey made between April and June last year. In 512 hot pursuit cases, 119 persons lost their lives and 272 sustained serious injuries. Of the deaths, 52 were drivers of pursued cars, 33 were passengers in cars being pursued, 23 were passengers in other vehicles, five were pedestrians and five policemen.

Since seven out of 10 pursuits end in accidents with death and injury for those involved and innocent bystanders, it is obvious that this is a pretty sad way to enforce traffic laws. Especially when in only one per cent of the cases was someone in the car wanted for a violent crime, although 20 per cent of the pursued cars had been stolen.

The physicians urge that hot pursuit be limited to cars in which violent crimes have been committed, and then not in residential and densely populated areas. There must be better ways to recover stolen cars.

New Horsepower Race

What is this younger generation coming to?

Police in Middlefield, Ohio, cited two Amish youths for drag racing their buggies at 35 m.p.h. Speed limit for horse-drawn vehicles is 7 m.p.h.

A 17-year-old Amish boy from Geauga County, Ohio, was charged with reckless driving of his buggy in an accident in which he struck a motorcycle.

These Amish kids are letting horsepower go to their heads.

Flower Power of Empire

It used to be said: "The Sun Never Sets on the British Empire" but it has been sinking for a long time.

It must have hit rock bottom the other day when, in an affair called "Society Wedding of the Year," a socially-prominent couple were united. The bridegroom reportedly wore his mother's diamond necklace and held hands with the best man, who wore a flowered caftan over orange trousers.

And the queen attended!

The 3 to 2 vote by which Adam Clayton Powell won the Democratic nomination for Congress in a district where he was once unchallenged showed that Harlem is disenchanted with him. None would be quoted, but Harlem leaders felt Powell had nearly licked himself.

Senator Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon endorsed Richard M. Nixon as "the man who could lead us out of Vietnam, by providing the leadership needed to successfully resolve the Vietnam conflict." That is a big change for a man who was elected on his opposition to the war.

Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy's mail is running at 25,000 letters a day from all corners of this country and the world. It recalls the flood of 40,000 letters a day immediately after President Kennedy's death. The sympathy and admiration bring solace to the bereaved widow.

David Lawrence Says

Acute Need to Mobilize Mankind's Moral Forces

WASHINGTON — Twice in this century peoples have wishfully persuaded themselves that big wars were far distant and that they would somehow be prevented. But World War I and World War II came anyway, and their tragic consequences have never been erased. Friction and conflicts are again emerging in central Europe, as well as in Southeast Asia and the Middle East. The peoples of the world, however, are once more not fully aware of the dangers that confront them.

It is apparent that the negotiations in Paris on the Vietnam war are not succeeding. Diplomacy requires much versatility, but this does not necessarily assure a successful result. Just seven years before World War II broke out, a keen observer of world affairs wrote a salient truth, as he said: "The successful issue of diplomatic negotiations and the peace and welfare of vast nations often hang upon the finding of just the right formula, in words, which will smooth down the ruffled feathers and bristling hair, and draw back into their sheaths and outflung claws, talons, beaks, fangs, of all the human eagles, bears and lions concerned."

There is an acute need today not merely for dedicated conciliators but for the mobilization of the moral forces of mankind. Never before have the heads of governments, large and small, possessed such an opportunity to appeal to humanity. President Johnson could, for example, urge the leaders of the principal religions of the world to meet in Paris and there unite in a prayerful search for peace in Vietnam. This would make a profound impression everywhere.

Internal peace is directly related to economic conditions. As they grow worse, a feeling is created that military force is the only way to acquire benefits for the individual. What could be offered, therefore, which would promise a brighter future than a united Vietnam rehabilitated on a strong economic foundation? The whole world would stand ready to furnish the material means of providing a better life for the 16,000,000 South Vietnamese and the 19,000,000 North Vietnamese.

Spiritual leaders of Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas, dedicated to the concept of brotherhood as revealed in the teachings of all religions, could open up the way to a worldwide demand for a fair and honorable peace. Bhagavan Das, the noted Hindu scholar, in his book entitled "The Essential Unity of All Religions," made this significant comment nearly four decades ago:

"It is common knowledge that Asiatic thought is eminently coloured by religion; as modern European thought is by science. All the great living religions are of Asiatic origin; also almost all the historical great dead religions. The personal, domestic, and social life of the Hindu is largely governed by the rules of what he regards as his religion. So is that of the Muslim. So is that of the Jew. So of the Confucian.

So was, and to a considerable extent still is, that of the Christian belonging to the Roman Catholic form of Christianity. Such also is the case with the followers of the other and reforms of the Vedic religion, known as the Zoroastrian, the Buddhist, the Jain, the Sikh, though perhaps the element of ritual is less prominent, and that of ethics more, and the later of these, in accordance with the very principle of reform."

The truth is the individual religions of the world are not utilizing effectively today their great power to inspire an honorable means of achieving and maintaining peace in the world. The "golden rule" and the basic laws of a well-ordered society and their origins in scriptures written some 3,000 years ago — indeed, more than 80 centuries before the birth of Christ. The intervening centuries have contributed a most remarkable influx of religious thought and aspirations in many countries far distant from each other. Yet, through all these years, the basic precepts, derived in the western world from the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, have too often been ignored.

If only the religious leaders of the various nations of the earth would petition their governments to enter negotiations for world peace and solemnly proclaim obedience to the universal mandate — "thou shalt not kill" — there truly would be less and less fear that the frictions and quarrels of today would evolve into another world war.

Contests for the Presidency

Nominating System Fair 'Filter'

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Nothing is quite so far off the mark as the complaints from such sources as the St. Louis Post Dispatch and James Reston of the New York Times that the democratic process is failing because it seems on the way to nominating Richard Nixon and Vice President Humphrey for the presidency.

At the heart of these and other criticisms is the argument that these two quite familiar faces are about to be nominated because of the dark plotting of "machine politicians" whose whole purpose is to thwart the will of the American people.

The truth is that the system serves quite well any interested Americans who are willing to use it. Just days before the 1960 Democratic convention in Los Angeles, former President Harry Truman announced he would not attend because it was "rigged" in the late John F. Kennedy's favor. Truman's choice was Sen. Robert Symington of Missouri.

In fact, Kennedy was far in the lead and was victorious over Symington, Lyndon B. Johnson and Adlai Stevenson (not to mention Humphrey much earlier), because he had done well all the things the "system" requires.

He won seven straight primaries and piled up mountains of other votes by winning state conventions in many places. He traveled the country endlessly, demonstrating convincingly his broad popularity within the Democratic party. Others, especially Humphrey, Johnson and Symington, tried some or all of these standard techniques and failed.

At the last, in the convention hall admittedly packed by use of fake tickets, the Stevensons tried by sheer vocal clamor to overturn in a few hours a result that had been many months in the making by a normal democratic process. They dared to shout "foul" when the delegates ignored this magic evidence that the "people" wanted Stevenson.

In 1964 there was much groaning and moaning in some quarters when the Republican convention at San Francisco nominated Barry Goldwater by a margin of nearly 4 to 1 over his nearest rival, William Scranton of Pennsylvania.

But, once again, the Goldwater forces triumphed because they had done the things the democratic system calls for and the others had not. True, his victories in primaries were few and generally meager, but he won the big one in California and captured a long string of state conventions.

Meantime, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York was mostly failing at the same process, and the timid GOP moderates who wanted somebody else to challenge Goldwater could not agree on another choice until, just six weeks to go, Scranton leaped into battle—only to mount one of the most inept campaigns ever seen in modern party history.

This complaint that the process is not working when it seems to be producing a one-sided contest or what some critics think is an "unpopular" choice really should be directed against faint-hearted, unenergetic Americans — not against the system.

The year 1952 is a perfect illustration of how a tough, exciting, two-sided contest for the presidency can be brought right to the door of the convention hall if interested Americans really work at it and have genuinely viable candidates to support.

From late 1950 on, partisans of both Dwight D. Eisenhower and the late Robert A. Taft plunged in with full resources to get the nomination in 1952 for their man. Both sides worked like tigers, both won some primaries and many state conventions, both canvassed the country thoroughly.

They used the democratic process as it was meant to be used. When they got to Chicago, they were nearly even in votes and gave the nation one of the most meaningful and thrilling exhibitions of real political rivalry in history.

Drew Pearson Says Amateur Diplomat Johnson Handles Diplomacy With Soviet

WASHINGTON—The details of the historic breakthrough with Soviet Russia on disarmament will not be told until the usual period of State Department waiting — about ten years.

When it is finally told, however, it will reveal that the progress toward better understanding between the world's two great nuclear powers was due almost entirely to the dogged determination of one man—Lyndon Johnson.

Almost bare-handed he achieved the significant ascent from the Soviet Union which may hasten the day when the two countries will no longer face a bristling array of opposing intercontinental missiles. Johnson has never been noted as a diplomat or international expert in the past. However, he became convinced that the peace of the world depended on better understanding between the world's two strongest powers, and he applied the same kind of Texas selling that he used as Senate Majority Leader when he wanted to pass a difficult bill. He kept up a constant barrage of personal letters, personal talks, messages through ambassadors to Moscow, all aimed at this objective.

History will show that the President's push toward better understanding actually began about two years ago when he had a long talk with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Gromyko was in New York for the UN General Assembly meeting and came to Washington, at the President's invitation, for a long confidential discussion.

They spent almost two hours together canvassing every important aspect of Russian-American relations, including Vietnam. One point raised by Gromyko was that the United States had built so many warehouses, air bases and other installations in South Vietnam that nobody believed we would ever pull out. It was after this conversation that the President made his Manila declaration that we would pull out six months after a peace was signed.

Russian sources reported that Gromyko seemed to be impressed by Johnson's directness and his blunt desire for better understanding.

Kosygin Was Reluctant

The second main chapter in the President's drive to woo Soviet Russia took place with Premier Alexei Kosygin at the famous Glassboro Conference one year ago. Kosygin appeared friendly when talking to Johnson; but went back to New York to repeat the party line about American imperialism. It was obvious that his hands were tied by the Kremlin.

After the President announced his big decision on March 31 both not to run again and to hold true talks, relations with Moscow improved.

And the President's drive for better understanding also increased. Though some newsmen have talked about the slowing up of a lame-duck President, actually the White House tempo regarding international affairs has increased.

Not having to worry about domestic politics, Johnson has concentrated most of his energy on foreign affairs.

It would have been easy for any chief executive to be distracted by the war in Vietnam and neglect the broader, more important objective of world peace. Johnson, however, kept hammering away on this main goal, despite discouraging initial cracks from the Kremlin.

To this end he delivered three speeches this spring. He spoke at Glassboro on the anniversary of this conference with Kosygin, went up to the United Nations to commemorate the signing of the non-proliferation pact, finally made a statement when the USA-USSR Consular Treaty was signed.

With each of these he took a certain amount of political risk, both at home and abroad, and got some sour feedback from Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

This, however, did not discourage him.

In between the three speeches Johnson also wrote to Premier Kosygin personally. The letters have not been made public, out of deference to the Russians. However, this column can reveal that the theme which the President constantly emphasized was that "now is the time for us to move, 'this is the way for our two countries to go.'"

There are still some diplomatic hurdles to overcome before the USA and the USSR get to productive disarmament talks. But judging by Foreign Minister Gromyko's favorable speech, it looks as if the persistent amateur diplomacy of the man in the White House is paying off.

The gas pipeline lobby has been working at high speed behind the scenes at Capitol Hill, and its effectiveness was shown in the debate last week on the pipeline safety bill.

Despite the increased number of pipeline explosions and resulting deaths, five Congressmen took the floor to argue against the strict Senate bill already passed by the upper body, requiring federal inspection and federal safety standards.

Those who spoke out for the pipelines were Democrats Ed Edmondson from the gas-producing state of Oklahoma, and Jake Pickle, from the gas-producing state of Texas; together with Republicans James Broyhill of North Carolina, Clarence Brown of Ohio and Dan Kuykendall of Tennessee. Kuykendall ridiculed those who urged strong pipeline inspection as "victims of hysteria."

Those who championed the public's right to have strong inspection and safe pipelines included Brock Adams, Wash., Richard Ottinger, N.Y., and Torbert Macdonald, Mass., all Democrats. Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee, seems to be wavering, has not taken a stand for a strong bill.

Henry J. Taylor Says Self-Appraisal Long Overdue

St. Francis' gentle notation "to seek to understand as we will be understood" is a vital need in our Negro communities. The only real hope for good neighborliness is that soul-searching and self-appraisal become a two-way street; by Negroes themselves as well as by the white majority.

The probability of bad neighborliness is increased by the relentless reiteration that white bigotry and racism by whites are at the root of all the Negroes' problems. It is increased by the television super-coverage of the demands for "Black Power" and by pounding home the untrue assumption that most Negroes live wretched lives and that their lives are going from bad to worse.

Coupled with this, the prevailing approach to poverty and all Negro questions is so emotional, and the subject has been made so sacrosanct that the roof is sure to fall in on anyone who even mentions the need for Negro self-appraisal.

The need was exemplified in Resurrection City. And the first step is to refuse to permit the self-appraisal requirement to be any longer "too hot to handle."

When Alvin Johnson, a Negro, quit as chief security marshal for Resurrection City on June 21, he stated: "The reason the city's population is going down is not mud, poor food, rain or lousy houses. It is because men are getting tired of coming home from a day's picketing to find their belongings stolen or their wife raped. The only thing that keeps this camp going is donations of goods and work from white people. I can't understand my black brothers here."

Grant Wright, also a Negro, acting chief of the park police, castigated those who blame everything on whites and pointed with dismay to the 100 or so assaults within the camp itself and the number of visitors who have been robbed, stabbed or shot by its residents. "Tragically, this may become known as Blood City instead of Resurrection City," Wright said.

There is an old Latin truth that we carry our own faults in a sack behind our back and the faults of others in a sack in front of our eyes. This is not a white failing, or a black failing; it is a famous human failing. And although a white writer could not say it without scathing denunciation, both these worried, courageous Negroes stated that Negro self-appraisal is long overdue.

Courageous Adlai Stevenson touched on another phase of this when he warned against the preaching by the late

Dr. Martin Luther King and others that breaking the law "in a good cause" is permissible.

Even at the moment of the ghastly Memphis horror which cost Dr. King his life he had said, when a judge forbade the march, "No judge is going to turn us around." But, significantly, the 400,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal employees had staged 76 illegal strikes in the past two years. One was this 65-day strike by 1,300 Negro garbage men in Memphis.

Dr. King and others succeeded in convincing many well-intentioned people, and encouraging those not well-intended, that "bad laws" ought to be broken and that the violator should decide which laws are bad.

Yet great jurist Learned Hand once said with such evident rightness: "A society in which men recognize no check on their freedoms soon becomes a society in which freedom is the possession solely of the lawless few."

Only a lawful society can build a better society. They are buried behind the lawless few that TV features, but all independent polls confirm that millions of every race and color bitterly resent public officials who lack courage enough to stand up against intimidation, and legislators who lack courage enough to enact laws that will protect them from anarchy.

The overwhelming majority of Negroes want more police protection in their own communities. Anarchy is what the Negroes fear, and even fear, as do we all.

Millions are as alarmed as Alvin Johnson or Grant Wright were in Resurrection City. And to the extent that these two worried, courageous Negroes may help to highlight the need for Negro self-appraisal, they make an important contribution to the welfare of our country that is the mother of us all.

Visitor From Planet Auronde

Editor, The Freeman
Last week I chanced to meet a being from the planet Auronde, part of the Tau Ceti system. He was making a reconnaissance of Earth preparatory to establishing diplomatic relations if reasonably intelligent life were found here.

"Yours is an impossible planet," the citizen of Auronde told me. "The first time our people visited Earth the place was lousy with dinosaurs tearing up the countryside and each other. We waited out their racial senescence period and now, five thousand Auronde years later, I find the planet crawling with humans who are also busy tearing up the globe and killing each other. It is the strangest case of progressive evolution in the galaxy."

"How do you happen to be in this particular city?" I asked.

Kingston is the source of so much radio noise so I naturally assumed this to be your Royal City. I should have landed in Moscow! Your king, Raymond the First, so badly confused my translation machine it blew several circuits. Your chief propagandist, Sir Harry Thayer, pulled a slingshot from his hip-pocket and shot my navigator. You see, sir, our spaceships use pigeons for guidance by wiring their brains to a special computer. In order for me to get back home I need another pigeon."

And that, ladies and gentlemen, is what the pigeon trap is really for. Our fine elected officials wouldn't be so cruel as to send them off to be used as live targets. Of course not. The Aurondian Citizen said another excursion would be sent to Earth when our period is up and the dolphins have assumed the position of supreme mammal on Earth. He shook his head and said sadly, "Considering your love of killing each other and all that is around you and what happens when Nature is tampered with too greatly, well, I could be back in less than one Aurondian year."

Sincerely,
DON OCKER.

Dog Ordinance in Ulster

The new Town of Ulster ordinance restricting dogs from running at large and placing responsibility of damage on the owners became effective this weekend.

Town Supervisor Thaddeus Mustalkiewicz said today that residents must keep their pets under control in accordance with the regulations in the new town law. He said the County SPCA and town constables will be patrolling the township to enforce the ordinance.

Penalties for violations include the following: first offense not less than $10 fine and not more than $25; second offense, at least $15 fine and not more than $50 or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days, or both.

The new ordinance was approved by the Town Board on June 6 and became effective 10 days after publication on June 18.

For the purposes of the law, the owner shall be the person who licensed the dog, or for unlicensed pets, the one harboring the dog.

Securely Confined

Confinement of dogs under the ordinance will mean such animals shall be securely confined or restrained and kept on the owner's premises either within a building kennel or wire or other suitable enclosure or securely fastened to a chain, wire or other effective tether of such length and so arranged that the animal cannot reach or endanger any person or any adjacent premises or on any public street, way or place, or if the animal is being transported by the owner, that it is securely confined in a crate or other container, or so restrained in a vehicle that it cannot escape.

A dog that is a public nuisance as described under the law is one which seriously and habitually disturbs the peace and quiet of the neighborhood by barking or howling or making other disturbing noises. Or any animal which habitually chases any persons or bicycles, automobiles or other vehicles upon any public highway or in any such public place.

Also any dog which causes damage or destruction to property upon the premises other than that of the owner or person harboring such animal.

The owner's responsibility is outlined as follows: The owner of every animal which is at anytime kept, brought or comes into the town will be held responsible for the strict observance by such animal and with respect to such animal of all the rules and regulations in the ordinance.

The section on controlling dogs specifies that no person who owns a dog in the Town of Ulster shall permit such dog to be at large unless said dog is restrained by an adequate collar and leash or unless accompanied by its owner or a responsible person able to control the animal other than when on the premises of the person owning, keeping, harboring, or having the custody and control of such animal, or on the premises of another with the knowledge, consent and approval of the property owner, or when hunting in the company and under the control of a hunter or hunters.

The ordinance provides for the appointment of a dog warden and also designates all town constables to serve as dog wardens as needed. There are also sections in the law providing for abandoned dogs, redemption of seized dogs and humane treatment of animals.

Copies of the dog ordinance may be obtained at Town of Ulster office, Vincent Street.

Congress Asked to End Cigarette Commercials

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Citing what it called evidence of new links between smoking and fatal disease, the government has asked Congress to outlaw radio and television cigarette commercials and require stronger health warnings in other advertising.

In separate recommendations Monday, the Health, Education and Welfare Department called for a "death" warning on cigarette packages and ads, and the Federal Trade Commission went farther and urged a ban on all cigarette commercials.

HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen said the current package warning reading "Caution: Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health" should be replaced with one saying: "Warning: Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer and other diseases."

Life Expectancy Cut

Cohen, citing a new study by the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, said there was now evidence young men who are heavy smokers lose four years in life expectancy and light smokers lose two.

Heavy smoking was defined as two packs a day, light smoking less than half a pack. In addition to the link with lung cancer—first asserted by a surgeon general's report four years ago—smoking can contribute to death from coronary heart disease and to the development of cardiovascular disease, Cohen said.

He said some of the harmful effects appear to be reversible after the smoker quits.

The initial surgeon general's report touched off a flurry of legislative proposals that ended with enactment of the cigarette package labeling requirement in 1965.

Cohen and all five members of the FTC concurred in proposing the new health warning for packages, recommending that it also be required in all cigarette ads in print or on the air, and urging that both packages and ads be required to carry the brand's tar and nicotine content.

The absolute prohibition of cigarette commercials was recommended by the FTC alone on a 3 to 2 vote.

The commission said that on an average, Americans see 66.75 cigarette commercials on television a month.

The FTC also called for federal funds for the National Institute of Health to develop a less hazardous cigarette.

Sheriff Praises Chaplaincy Plan

Sheriff William B. Martin of Ulster County was the special speaker at the June meeting of the Kingston Area Council of Churches recently at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts Street.

Sheriff Martin had been invited by the president of the council, the Rev. William A. Studwell, to help evaluate the Institutional Chaplaincy program initiated by the council last September.

The Rev. C. F. Yohe, a Methodist minister who had for years been an Army Chaplain before serving parishes in the greater New York Area, was employed by the Council of Churches on an experimental basis to visit regularly in the Ulster County Jail and to visit the unchurched sick in both Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals. A report from Chaplain Yohe was read to the assembled delegates by the president. In the report, it was stated that the chaplaincy in the jail seemed to provide a good ministry to inmates, giving them an opportunity to talk, to rectify miscarriages of justice, and to provide a helpful link with the families of the prisoners. The Rev. Mr. Yohe also said he had made over 1200 calls in the hospital during the nine month period.

Sheriff Martin told the council members that he was pleased to have the opportunity to pay tribute to the unique ministry of Chaplain Yohe in the Ulster County Jail. He said that at first he was skeptical of the value of a clergyman hanging around the cell block almost every day of the week. "Now," he said, "I wish there were some way in which I could legally make him a deputy or some sort of permanent staff member at the jail." Chaplain Yohe was given great praise by the sheriff for the liaison he provided between the prisoners and the staff, for the books and magazines he distributed, for the personal contact he made possible with difficult family problems. The Sheriff urged the Council of Churches to continue the ministry, on a year-round basis if possible. He also said that he would like to see other county jails institute such a chaplaincy.

The Council will make every effort to continue the chaplaincy, the Rev. Mr. Studwell said but there will have to be more support from member congregations. The treasurer, Earl Little reported that only seven of the 19 churches have paid their apportionments for 1968.

Intensify Search

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rochester area police intensified their search today for one of two escapees from the Monroe County penitentiary after the capture of Dallas Simon in Rochester.

Simon, 18, was apprehended by Willie Brown, a correctional officer, and a companion after they went to a vacant building on Clinton Avenue North on a tip, police said.

A second man, believed to be John Woodruff, 30, the other escapee, avoided capture at the same time as Simon by jumping from a second floor window of the building and fleeing through nearby yards, they said.

Mushrooms are raised in hundreds of miles of mushroom beds in caves, tunnels and sheds in the suburbs of Paris.

4 Drownings

A 16-year-old Sullivan County youth accidentally drowned in the swift-flowing Neversink River near the community of Old Falls Monday night while he was swimming in a pool under a bridge with several friends and a cousin.

Police said the body of Curtis Dennis Gilmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Gilmore of Woodbourne, was recovered about an hour-and-a-half after he disappeared below the surface. The recovery was made by Paul Kaplan, 19, of Woodridge, who used scuba diving equipment.

Chief of Police Seymour Farber said the body was found face down on the bottom of the stream about 150 feet from where the youth disappeared. Gilmore had been swimming in the pool with his cousin, Alfonso Gilmore, 17, and friends when he was drowned.

Dr. Stanley D. Friedman of Woodridge went to the scene and pronounced Gilmore a Fallsburg high school student, dead.

Second in Region

Gilmore's death was the second drowning in the region in two days. Norman Cooper, 14, of Washingtonville, drowned while swimming with friends at Walton Lake on Sunday.

Another upstate drowning mishap occurred on Monday near the Erie County community of Bowmansville. Ernest Rupe, 46, of that town, apparently drowned when he slipped and fell into Tonawanda Creek while trying to untie a mooring line on a boat docked at a shoreline restaurant.

Dr. Johnston, City Native, Dies in Croton

Dr. C. Victor Johnston, 74, of Albany Post Road, Croton-on-Hudson died Monday at his residence. He had lived in Croton for the past 44 years and had practiced dentistry in New York City for the past 50 years.

He was born in Kingston, November 5, 1894, the son of William G. and Emily Trelease Johnston. He is survived by his widow, Elsie Ruth Johnston; a son, William E. of Croton-on-Hudson and three grandchildren. He graduated from Harvard University and the Harvard Dental School. He was a member of Delta Sigma Delta, the New York Academy of Dentistry, and the First District Dental Society of New York City.

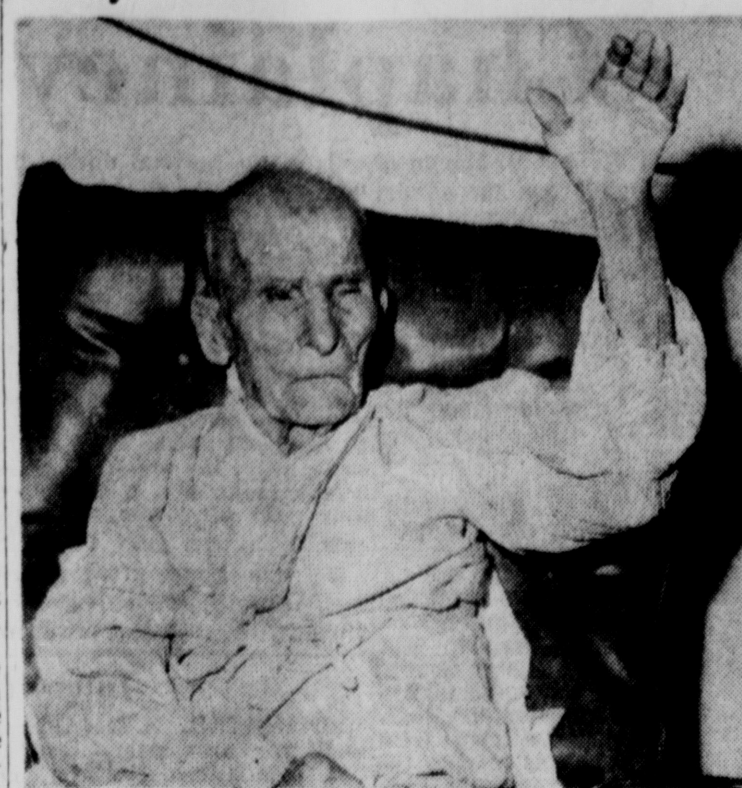

During World War II he served as a first lieutenant in the Dental Corps in France. He was also a member of the First Baptist Church of Ossining.

Funeral services will be held from the Waterbury and Kelly Funeral Home, 45 South Highland Avenue, Ossining on Friday at 9 a. m. with the Rev. Dr. Daniel D. Brox, interim pastor of the First Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in Montrose Cemetery, Kingston, on Friday at 1:15 p. m. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p. m.

Michael Turck, Kingston's oldest resident, died early today at the age of 105. He had been ill for 15 years.

Mr. Turck was honored at a large celebration on his 104th birthday, Feb. 13, 1967, held at the Ulster County Infirmary where he was confined.

Born in Italy in 1863, he was the son of the late Nicholas and Mary Benicase Turck. He came to this country and to Kingston at an early age and was employed in the brick-making industry. His wife, the former Theresa Carpino, died in 1950.

Although a resident of convalescent homes, he was able to be up and enjoy family and friends until recently.

Surviving are a brother, Frank Turck of Kingston and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral for Mr. Turck, who was a member of St. Mary's Benevolent Society, will be held at the Frank H. Simpson Funeral Home, 411 Albany Avenue, Friday at 9:15 a. m., thence to St. Mary's Church where at 10 a. m. a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul.

Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday and Thursday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRIC

July 4, 1776, seems a long time ago. But, when you arbitrarily consider age 70 a life time, our nation was born less than three life times ago. As a young nation, we had and still have pernicious and persistent diseases with our growing pains. We seem to sway and swagger at times but somehow manage to stay on our feet in freedom. In our growing (and groaning at times), we Americans recorded an unmatched national growth from rags to riches, from poverty to power.

Do you ever wonder what life may be like in another three life times hence? Will our descendants be able to change laws by changing the men who make them? Will they be self disciplined in freedom or chained in regimentation? Will they consider our 20th Century reputation and their own, as a precious legacy? Will they live in confusion, uncertain whether they should follow their consciences, uncertain whether they should obey God? In expanded scientific achievement, will they think their human adequacies can supply easy answers to hard questions?

Come to think of it, most of these questions are not 200 years ahead of time. The right answers and right action in our time could help simplify answers to other questions, come July 4, 2176. . . .

Trash Cleanup Topic of Ellenville Village Board

By CHARLES BREMPOHL

Trash cleanup and continued building were the major concerns of the Ellenville Village Board, meeting for some two and one-half hours last night in the second floor courtroom of the new municipal building on Main Street.

Cleanup, or village beautification, was an important topic and discussion between board members and attending area residents led to heated exchanges.

It was Rivan Krieger who opened up on the board with charges of laxity regarding traffic congestion, pigeon dung, substandard housing, dying trees along Main Street, broken curbs, trash on lawns and in alleyways, intoxicated derelicts, shopping carts abandoned throughout the village, and "a lack of protection of real property."

Village Trustee Edwin E. Hoar turned to Krieger and said, "You have been harassing the board for some time now," and he went on the claim that Krieger's sole purpose was harassment only.

DeWitt Clinton, another trustee, said, "He is right on some things," and the official read from a long list of alleged trash violations giving the names of merchants and residents throughout the village who reportedly broke ordinances of long standing.

As for "drunken derelicts," it was brought out that village police reported 75 drunks arrested in June and 520 drunks arrested for public intoxication in 1967.

Word From Glusker

Mayor Eugene Glusker, presiding over the meeting, stressed that village cleanup was on its way and that arrangements had been made with Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company for the removal of 56 trees.

Mrs. Evelyn Albert who, along with her husband, Sol, are owners of the burned-out Albert's Bakery, claimed that the couple's establishment had been unfairly cited by board members for trash violations.

She claimed that urban renewal demolition had made a "dust bowl" of the area surrounding her establishment.

Mrs. Albert declared that she and her husband had been in business for "20 years in Ellenville" and that "I just paid $1,000 in taxes today."

Sol Albert claimed that the board was "holding us back from going into business."

Will Renovate Site

Board members, including Mayor Glusker, said that the board was doing everything feasible to get the couple back into business and it was finally resolved to let the couple renovate their establishment rather than relocate them which would have meant considerable cost to the village.

There was some discussion on the 911 emergency code dialing system and Mayor Glusker suggested the project be a joint venture between the Town of Wawarsing and Ellenville.

Trustee Walter V. Grey said that prefix number 647 would be able to dial 911 in emergencies, a code area roughly spanning from Wawarsing to Summitville or Spring Glen.

He also claimed that local prefix 626 would be able to use the new dialing system, recently installed in New York City, but that possibly another dispatcher would have to be hired by the village.

One area resident pointed out that the Wawarsing headquarters of the N.Y. State Police was very difficult to contact during most of the day and that what usually happened was that the Ferndale State Police would have to be called in emergencies.

It was resolved that, in order to avoid overloading local police with 911 calls, the matter would have to be further studied and the Wawarsing Town Board would be contacted over the matter of the joint venture.

The board moved that more money be borrowed on a revenue anticipation note effecting village sewage and water, with $40,000 to be borrowed on sewers and $25,000 on water.

This was a renewal on monies already borrowed.

The board agreed to a proposal put forth by Village Engineer Aaron Horowitz to build 450 feet of new street to replace 450 feet of Berne Road. The new street would be an extension off Broadhead Street as it forms an intersection with Canal Street.

The project would mean the tearing down of several old sheds and buildings owned by Harris Kass, including the historic gate building at one of the canal locks.

There was some discussion about the possibility of moving the gate building and relocating it, because of its historic significance.

No Estimated Cost.

As yet, there has been no estimated cost for the new street project.

In other action, the board agreed to pay for 35 sheets of plywood at 35 cents a sheet to be used for a ball park for a new softball league.

The new league is to start playing July 14.

It was reported that the league would have insurance policies on its playing members but that the town would have to provide insurance for the spectators.

Four bids were received on a three-quarter ton dump truck for the village.

Bird Ford Inc., in Kerhonkson, was low bidder at $3,407.34.

The truck will be a four wheel drive pickup.

The board agreed to the placing of a banner across Canal Street announcing the opening of the Ellenville Motor Museum.

The museum, built and owned by Harry Resnick, will open July 4.

Mayor Glusker announced that the municipal building and the village dump would be closed on July 4.

Five Are Rescued From Lake Ontario

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP) — Three college girls and two young men were rescued from the cold waters of Lake Ontario early today after their outboard motorboat was swamped 200 yards offshore from the State University College at Oswego.

Three Arrested After Chase In Stolen Car

Two sheriff's deputies with an assist from city police and Ellenville troopers halted three town of Rochester young men in a stolen car late Monday night in a 100-mile-per-hour chase that started in Kingston and moved through five townships before the chase came to a halt on Main Street, High Falls.

The three arrested at 12:25 a.m. today for grand larceny, third degree are Donald Smith, 20 of Accord; Terry V. Shultis, 18 and Samuel F. Weinder, 20, both of Kerhonkson. They were arraigned before Town of Kingston Justice Robert A. Ferrigan. Each asked for a preliminary hearing which was set for Wednesday 7:30 p.m. They were committed to county jail in lieu of $1,000 bail each.

Sheriff's Deputies Harold Dohnken and Fred Smith said more charges are pending. The original charge stemmed from the theft of a 1964 Ford stolen in Ellenville from James Barringer of Kerhonkson, and used in the high speed ride through the city and southern part of the county.

The deputies said they spotted the car with the three young men in the city proceeding at a high rate of speed. They immediately alerted city police and gave chase. The fleeing vehicle moved at about 80 miles-per-hour through the city, down Washington Avenue and headed for old Route 209. The deputies chased the car through Hurley and they alerted Ellenville troopers that the car was heading southwest on Route 209. By that time the two vehicles were exceeding 100-mile-per-hour speeds. State police set up roadblocks forcing the fleeing car into High Falls where the deputies brought them to a halt.

Suspends Fines Against the Penn Central

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)—U.S. District Court Judge John O. Henderson Monday suspended fines totaling $7,500 against the Penn Central Railroad.

The railroad was originally ordered to pay the fines after it pleaded guilty to three counts of oil pollution in the Buffalo area.

Henderson suspended the levies after a spokesman for the line told the court it has spent $40,000 in the past year to prevent further oil pollution from its Gardenville freight yard in suburban West Seneca.

In a related action, Acting U. S. Attorney Thomas A. Kennedy announced a crackdown on other polluters.

He issued a statement saying Lake Erie and other waterways belong to the people and that industrial firms responsible for pollution of the waters will be prosecuted.

Stone Ridge

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Codington, daughters Dale and Suzanne, and son Frank; Mr. and Mrs. Warry Bogart and daughters Laura and Darlene, and sons Warry, Bruce, and Richard were entertained at a picnic at the Oliver Bogart's on Sunday.

Miss Lillian Bogart spent a few days with her parents this week. Mr. and Mrs. David Nordquist spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bogart. Oliver Bogart returned with them to spend the summer.

Mrs. Is Miss

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — If there's a shortage of pretty misses in Arizona, it could be because they're so good looking they all have husbands.

That, at least, seemed to be the case confronting the sponsors of the Arizona Home Beautiful Show. They presented the title of Miss Home Beautiful to Mrs. Marlene Skiba.

The coupe that doesn't coop you up.

Impala Custom Coupe

The first coupes were two-passenger one-horse vehicles, very cozy but not too handy for double dating or picking up the kids after school.

Our coupe is a five-passenger 200-horse vehicle with plenty of room for a fair-size family, a couple of couples, or a golf foursome plus caddy. (We give you more shoulder room than the other cars in our field.)

We also give you windshield wipers that stay out of sight until you turn them on, an ashtray that rides on ball bearings, and a car that rides on unique rubber body mounts which help rub out the kind of bumps and noises you've probably been putting up with in your present car. Putting your first keeps us first. See your Chevrolet dealer last.

Better Housing Conditions Sought in Poughkeepsie

A Poughkeepsie father, fresh from the funeral of four of his children who perished Thursday in a house fire, led a march on the Common Council last night seeking better housing conditions in the city's ghetto areas.

James Hudson, whose children died in a fire "like a blast furnace" at 97 Catherine Street, was joined in his cause by members of the NAACP, Dutchess County Boy Scouts Council and members of the clergy.

Described as peaceful marchers by Poughkeepsie City Police, the group presented the council a five-point petition in reference to housing conditions.

The dead children ranged in age from three to 15 years. Two of the Hudson youngsters, Pearl, 17 and Barbara, 12, were hospitalized, for smoke inhalation and minor burns. The fire occurred at about 8 in the morning at a time when both parents were driving to work.

Richard Bloomer, director of the Fallkill Neighborhood Improvement Project, a federally financed program to correct housing blight, said "the building's owner had been working steadily" to improve the building. Bloomer said final inspection was to be conducted the middle of next month.

The fire occurred in the rear bedroom of the three-year-old. Fire Capt. John Van Norstrand was reported to have said at the time that it was "strange that a fire would start there."

Action Group Announces New Site for Office

Mrs. Grace Janitz, president of the Ontario Family Service Center Advisory Board announced today that the field office of the Ulster County Community Action Committee in Poughkeepsie has moved to the Phoenix Hotel on Main Street.

Mrs. Alice Ferraiuolo, community organizer for the Ontario Family Service Center, and Miss Pat Weeks, neighborhood aide, can be contacted at the office weekdays between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

An open meeting on housing is planned along with discussion on a teenage center in the Town of Poughkeepsie.

Ulster County Community Action Committee, Inc. is a private non-profit corporation that has been designated by the Ulster County Legislature to administer and conduct anti-poverty efforts in the County.

The Phoenix office was first opened in late March, 1967 at the Parish Hall of St. Francis de Sales Church. During the first year of operations it answered 2,037 requests for assistance from residents of the towns of Shandaken, Olive, and Woodstock. The committee also sponsors the headstart programs conducted at the Phoenix and Bennett schools by the Ontario Central School District. It is joint sponsor with the YMCA of Ulster County and Kingston of the Neighborhood Youth Corps Program.

City Awards Spartan Pool $14,747 Contract

Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan announced today that Spartan Pools Inc. of Kingston has been awarded a $14,747 contract to build a steel swimming pool at Kingston Point Park.

The pool will measure 50 by 20 feet and will be three and a half feet deep. It will be used primarily to teach children how to swim.

Work is scheduled to begin this Friday and be finished next Friday. Garrahan said the pool is being built under a State Conservation Department program whereby the state pays half the cost of the pool now and the city its half next year.

The mayor indicated that if the pool proves popular enough he will consider the possibility of setting up similar pools in other parts of the city.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices today opened mixed in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Shortly after the opening bell, the United Press International stock market indicator had advanced 0.11 per cent with 467 issues crossing the tape. There were 200 advances and 137 declines.

General Motors opened unchanged at 79 3/4. Chrysler fell 1/2 to 61 1/2. Ford lost 1/4 to 51 1/2. Steels also moved in a narrow range. Armco gained 1/4 to 52 1/2. U.S. Steel was unchanged at 39 1/2. Inland shed a small fraction.

American Telephone & Telegraph opened up 1/4 at 51 1/2. Eastman Kodak lost 1/2 to 79 in the chemicals. Du Pont was unchanged at 158. Boeing dipped 1/4 to 63 1/2 in the narrow moving aircrafts.

Montgomery Ward, which plans to merge with Container Corp., climbed 1 to 33. Loew's Theatres, which admitted failure of its bid for Commercial Credit, lost 1 to 81 1/2. Control Data, which is apparently the successful bidder for Commercial, tacked on 1/4 to 147 1/2.

Quotations by Hertz, Warner & Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange, Kingston Branch, 15 Albany Avenue, Kingston, N. Y., David W. Hoffman, manager.

BANGALORE, India (AP) — Official red tape "strangles" India's advancement, Mysore state's former chief minister, Siddhavanahalli Nijalingappa, said.

Now president of the ruling Congress Party, he quoted the example of a local industrialist who applied for permission to build a bone meal factory.

It took the government one year to grant what "could have been done in a week," he said.

Local Firemen In Newburgh For Gas School

A fire conference was held Saturday at Stewart Air Force Base in Newburgh, by the New York State Liquid Propane Gas Association. This conference dealt with L.P. Gas fire fighting and fire protection. Ten members of the Kingston Paid Fire Department attended this seminar voluntarily and on their off-duty time.

The group consisted of Fire Captain Hugh Greer, Lt. Philip Greer, fire fighters Conrad Remus, William Loeffler, William Hornbeck, William Schwerdtfeger, Gordon Purhamus, Frank Purcell, Frank Ostrander and Francis Diamond. The session was from 7 p. m. covered several workshops climaxed by actual demonstration of fire fighting technique by the base fire fighting personnel.

It was the opinion of those present that this session was of great value in making those in attendance better acquainted with the safe method of combating L.P. gas fires. It was hoped that a fire training session can be arranged for in aircraft firefighting and rescue procedures.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A postman's lot is not a happy one in South Africa's largest city. The Johannesburg Post Office reports that since January, 11 of its 600 letter carriers were bitten by dogs, one tumbled over pipes in a new building and another fell four flights after slipping on a banana peel. Five others had mishaps on delivery scooters including one postman who collided with a car while watching a pretty girl in a miniskirt.

Three Injured, Person Cited In Highland

Three persons were injured and one was cited for a vehicle and traffic law violation following a two-car collision on Route 9W at the intersection of Route 44-55, Town of Lloyd, according to Highland State Police, who said the mishap occurred at 5 p. m.

Troopers reported that a car driven by Lorraine Hewitt, 17, of Box 542, Highland, was traveling south on Route 9W and a vehicle operated by Christine Crawford, 22, of Pacifica, Calif., was going north when the collision occurred.

Injured and treated at Vassar Hospital were the young Highland woman who received abrasions of the forehead, Mrs. Edna Hewitt, 50, of the Highland address, cut lip, and the California woman, who was treated for lacerations of the legs and sprained arms.

Dr. Bill Iserman and Merwin Schlichling were elected with 241 votes each. Harold Link got 240 votes and Bruce Fitzler 234, the right of way.

Results of Woodstock Questionnaire Revealed

Almost 1,000 Woodstockers have returned a questionnaire expressing their opinions and preferences regarding the present and future of the township. The questionnaires were mailed to some 3,400 taxpayers and voters in May.

The public opinion survey was conducted by the Woodstock Association for the Conservation and Improvement of the Township, Inc.

A preliminary tabulation indicates a real desire to preserve the rural character of the town, at the same time allowing for orderly growth. One group of questions concerning zoning and appearance brought out interesting reactions. For instance: Neon signs should be prohibited, according to 50 per cent of respondents, while 67 per cent think a design advisory board should be consulted on commercial building.

71 per cent think advice on public buildings should be sought and 50 per cent think the same should be given to signs.

Shade trees along our roads are an important asset to 90 per cent and 49 per cent feel that more public funds should be spent in this area.

In all, the questionnaire contained 56 questions covering such topics as utilities and services, facilities and recreation, schools and future growth.

Woodstock has had a zoning ordinance for two and a half years. It is interesting, according to Benjamin Webster, chairman of the County Planning Board, that 66 per cent of the respondents think present lot sizes are about right, a negligible 1 per cent think they should be smaller, while 18 per cent think they should be larger.

While the questionnaire carefully protected the anonymity of the respondents, many signed their names and inquired how they could participate in the work of the association.

The association bore the entire expense of the survey. Final tabulation of the returns is now in process and final accurate figures will be made public in about six weeks. A similar survey was conducted by the association in 1959. Comparisons between the two will reveal any changes in opinions.

The Woodstock Association for the Conservation and Improvement of the Township, Inc. is a private, non-profit, tax-free organization devoted to fact finding for the benefit of present and future citizens of Woodstock. Association directors are: Gordon F. Anderson, Ned W. Buymaster, Paul E. Domville, H. E. Landis Jr., Robert J. Sleight, Leonard E. Waters, J. C. vanRijn, Benjamin L. Webster. The Association's address is Box 684, Woodstock.

Mark Konflas Speaks Before Historical Group

Historical Society of Woodstock held an open membership meeting recently at the society building on Rock City Road in Woodstock.

The speaker was Mark Konflas, a 10th grade student at the Ontario High School. His subject was, "The Overlook Mountain Houses." He described the building of the first mountain house in 1871, its destruction by fire in 1877 and the second one built a few years later. He showed many old photographs of the second mountain house and had a layout showing how it was oriented and located on the plateau at the top of the mountain. He gave a graphic picture of the life and entertainment at this resort. The decline and final burning of this hotel in 1925 was covered in detail. The planning, construction and ultimate demise of the present building on Overlook was also described.

Another meeting of the society will be planned for mid-August, covering some topic in the history of Woodstock.

Minna Citron To Be Gallery Speaker Friday

Minna Citron, an internationally known painter and graphic artist will give an illustrated lecture on graphics at the Woodstock Artists Gallery on the village green at 8:15 p. m. Friday, July 5.

Perhaps the greatest esteem any artist could desire is the admiration of his fellow artists and Minna Citron from the beginning of her career has had this esteem. Her inventive experiments in graphics as well as in painting have influenced many.

She has exhibited throughout the United States. Also in Cuba, England, Brazil, Spain, Germany, Yugoslavia and France. She has had 18 exhibitions in New York City. Her prizes and awards are numerous.

She is represented by work in the Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institute; The National Gallery of Art; The White House; Museum of Modern Art; Whitney Museum of American Art; Metropolitan Museum; Art Institute of Chicago; Victoria and Albert Museum, London and many other museums and private collections.

She has published a number of articles and has lectured extensively in the United States and abroad and in 1947, represented the United States Government at the Congress International d'Education Artistique, Paris.

Her lecture is the first in a series that will take place in the Artists Gallery in the summer season.

Kings Daughters Annual Fair

Jarvis Gallery Opens Saturday

Gertrude R. Jarvis, prominent New York art dealer and decorator, will inaugurate her Jarvis Gallery in Woodstock, Saturday, July 6. The opening will be held as a benefit for the Woodstock Artists' Association.

A thousand invitations have been issued for the event, which will feature a distinguished exhibit of notable Woodstock art and that of the French Impressionists. Woodstock representation will include Doris Lee, Milton Avery, Harvey Fite and Arnold Blanch.

Among the important collection of French Impressionists will be works of Renoir, Degas, and Modigliani. A rare original casting of a Renoir Bronze will be shown.

Opening day hours will be from 1 to 6 p. m.

Bible School

The Vacation Bible School sponsored jointly by the Overlook United Methodist and Christ Lutheran Churches of Woodstock will be open to children of all area churches.

Classes for three-year-olds, through junior high will be held at the Overlook Church on Bearsville Road, starting Monday, July 8 from 9 to 11:30 a. m. There will be two weeks of classes with a parent night, July 18. Information may be obtained from Mrs. Louis Thomason, or Mrs. Robert Ross of West Hurley, or the Rev. Steven Middernacht of Christ Lutheran Church.

Lesson

"God" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be presented Sunday at 11 a. m. at First Church, Christ Scientist, Woodstock.

Service Center Adds Programs

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Ulster County Community Action Committee, Inc., the following Saugerties members were elected: Albert LaWare and Mrs. Velma Wright.

Surplus food to 150 people was distributed last Friday at the Saugerties Neighborhood Center, 124 Partition Street.

A new feature, baby-sitting service, will be available. Those wanting this service are asked to call the center and ask for Mrs. Carol Overbaugh, neighborhood aide.

The next meeting of the center's advisory board will be July 8 at 7:30 p. m. in the office. Anyone needing help in the fields of Medicare and Medicaid are asked to call Mrs. Overbaugh.

The Neighborhood Youth Corp began its work on Tuesday of this week. Seven young people will work in the school system and one will be stationed at the center. The project is sponsored jointly by the schools, the YMCA and the Ulster County Community Action Committee, Inc.

DAR Award for Beryl Swart

Beryl Swart, 8, of Saugerties, a second grader, submitted the only entry in the Saugerties Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution flag essay contest.

She was honored with an invitation to the DAR Flag Day picnic and read her essay to those assembled. The chapter presented her a book, "Flags of America" and a flag code.

In past years the local chapter had received as many as 55 essays in one contest. A spokesman for the DAR said "it was most encouraging this year for no entries were received from our local seventh and eighth graders."

Among Miss Swart's remarks concerning the flag was, "I think the flag is nice because it gives me freedom of speech and worship."

Valley Commission Favors Bus Service Across River Spans

ALBANY—Investigation of the possibilities of bus service across all the bridges that span the Hudson River was among the recommendations made recently by Alexander Aldrich, executive director of the Hudson River Valley Commission, in testimony at a public hearing here.

The hearing was held by the State Department of Transportation, which is charged with drawing up a master transportation plan by this September. Aldrich pointed out that

"since World War II, the growth of transportation has been focused on the automobile and the airplane, but it is time for new focuses. Focus No. One is on the man without a car."

The State official called for the Statewide plan to take cognizance of this man without a car, and he listed several areas in which an inventory is required of existing services, then a program to fill the gaps—"the areas of unfinished transportation business"—that the inventory would reveal: Local bus service should be analyzed, and recommendations drawn up to make it possible for every citizen to get from one central place to another, including public transportation across every Hudson River bridge.

Commuter service—both rail and bus—should be analyzed across the State, and the individual auto commuter should be wooed into public transportation wherever possible.

Connector service between all long distance travel terminals and downtown areas should be made frequent, rapid, comfortable and reliable.

Aldrich, who described the Hudson River Valley Commission as "a State agency with a regional point of view and strong ties to local governments," cited several specific examples of the gaps that exist in public transportation in this State.

"There are 200 jobs available for young people near Newburgh," he said, "but the unemployed youth who live in that city cannot get those jobs because there is no public transportation to get them there and they cannot afford cars.

Cites Dutchess-Ulster Link

"Retired couples in Rhinebeck would like to shop in Kingston and Ulster, the nearest city, but there is no jitney service across the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge. They are too old to walk across, and they are not allowed to do that anyway.

In the near future, the Albany-bound traveler will have to detrain in Rensselaer and will not wish to walk across the new Dunn Memorial Bridge to the South Mall area.

"If the same person comes by plane," Aldrich continued, "he will find his trip shorter from his Home City, wherever that may be, to Albany Airport than his ride from the Airport to the Capitol."

"Examples can be multiplied. The point is that, without a car, a traveler is in trouble. So I suggest a comprehensive, Statewide program be pursued to serve the man without a car."

Focus No. Two, the HRVC executive director said, is a need to shift from strictly traffic needs to human needs in highway planning and construction.

"In providing for new construction," he said, "the Commission urges that the traffic engineering emphasis that has characterized the efforts of the DOT in the past be greatly strengthened."

"We propose that future planning be strengthened throughout the State by strong staff analysis of the scenic, historic, recreational and natural resources concerned, particularly where dislocation and relocation of families are involved."

Or the Lack of It

The U.S. Tornado Readiness

By DON REEDER

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Only one out every 10 towns in the U.S. tornado belt has an adequate warning system, says Allen Pearson, director of the Weather Bureau's National Severe Storms Forecast Center.

And This Is Improvement "And this is an improvement from what it was a few years ago," he adds.

Pearson and others were asked about the nation's tornado readiness status in the wake of a near-record barrage of twisters that battered the Midwest May 15.

The winds killed 45 persons in northeastern Arkansas and 16 in northeastern Iowa, with property damage estimated at more than $45 million.

Pearson reported that on May 15 his office issued 11 tornado watches—alerts disseminated to news media. Civil Defense officials and others that conditions were right for twisters to develop.

But the May 15 alerts did not prevent death and destruction.

Take for example the town of Jonesboro, Ark., where 34 persons were killed.

Jonesboro was included in a tornado watch issued at 9:20 p.m. The twister struck about 30 minutes later and caught most citizens by surprise, many of them in their beds.

Jonesboro, although situated in an area frequently raked by tornadoes, has no warning system. Officials explained they did not feel they needed one, since the town it said had never been hit before.

Gene Talbert, Arkansas Civil Defense director, said Jonesboro and Craighead County now plan jointly to hire a fulltime Civil Defense chief.

"Actually, I think we've got a good tornado warning system in Arkansas," said Talbert. "The Weather Bureau does a tremendous job cooperating with us."

The same day of the Arkansas tornado, the Weather Bureau issued a watch at 2:35 p.m. for an area including Charles City, Iowa. A twister funnel was spotted southwest of town at 4:20 p.m., and the storm struck at 4:52 p.m. Thirteen persons died.

Plenty of Warning

Although they had plenty of warning, Charles City officials did not sound the town's fire siren to get citizens into a shelter.

Charles City Mayor Harry L. Brenton said the town's fire chief decided against sounding the fire alarm because it would have "pulled a lot of kids out in the streets. It always does. I think it was a wise decision."

Brenton said the town's factory whistles now are coordinated with the fire department and they will be sounded in case of tornadoes until a new city hall, with tornado siren is erected.

Pearson and his Weather Bureau companies emphasize all they can do is warn residents of the possibility of twisters, and the rest is up to them.

"There's nothing you can do to save property," Pearson explained, "but give people five minutes, and they can save themselves."

Pearson advocates that every community set up a Civil Defense group or similar organization of volunteers to act as tornado spotters when alerted by the Weather Bureau.

Sirens are all right, he said, but uneven topography often prevents the sound from reaching all parts of town.

He suggests radio and television stations—the prime means of communicating storm warnings—install Weather Bureau news printers.

The ideal method, said Pearson, is the Emergency Broadcast System, EBS in which radio stations transmit a special signal that automatically turns on radio sets to broadcast warnings.

EBS radios are installed in the principal's office of every school in Kansas City, the meteorologist said.

"Generally, if people have been affected by a tornado before or know someone who has, they do all the right things," said Pearson.

"You don't have to tell people in, say, Topeka what to do. They've been through it, and they're believers."

"But most people go through their entire life without ever seeing a tornado. These are the people we've got to work on."

Typhoon Dies

TOKYO (UPI) — Typhoon Lucy withered into a tropical storm today. The U.S. Typhoon Warning Center in Guam said Lucy, her winds having slackened to 23 miles per hour, was centered 92 miles east of Okinawa.

Blood Bank Accredited

Accreditation of the Kingston Laboratory Blood Bank by the American Association of Blood Banks for another three-year period was announced this week by the Association and the Blood Bank's medical director.

"You are hereby recognized as maintaining or exceeding the standards of blood bank performance as established by the American Association of Blood Banks," stated Mr. John A. Shively, president of the Association, in making the presentation of a certificate of Kingston's formal official record of this action.

Accreditation was preceded by a comprehensive questionnaire and physical inspection of the blood bank by one of the Association's volunteer specialists. Continuing voluntary participation in the inspection and accreditation program is outstanding evidence of the blood bank's effort to provide a superlative service to the community.

The City of Kingston Laboratory Blood Bank is one of the more than 1,000 blood banks which have been certified through this program. Dr. Shively emphasized that, "the patient who receives a transfusion of blood provided by a blood bank accredited by the American Association of Blood Banks can have full confidence that the bank has voluntarily met high standards of procedures and is continually striving to offer the best service possible.

Apprentice Openings Listed

The Kingston Electrical Joint Apprenticeship Training Committee will accept applications for five openings until July 15, Assistant Industrial Commissioner Edward J. Ray announced recently.

According to requirements of the joint apprentice committee, a candidate must be 17 to 24 years of age, must have a high school diploma, and must pass a battery of physical and aptitude tests. In addition, the candidate must have resided in the area over which the apprentice committee has jurisdiction for at least one year.

Apprentice programs registered with the Department of Labor stipulate that the apprentices must be selected on the basis of objective criteria and that they are subject to re-examination at any time.

Applications for the five openings may be obtained at the office of Robert Metscher, Business Manager, Local Union 645, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, 131 North Front Street, Kingston.

Dazzling Display of Antique Cars in Ellenville

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

When Harry Resnick's Ellenville Motor Museum opens on July 4, the public will not be seeing any ordinary collection of antique cars but perhaps the most dazzling display of the world's rarest and finest automobiles ever gathered under one roof.

These were the automobiles that one's father or grandfather longed to own and did own in his wildest dreams, and whether they were roaring down the pike at 90 miles an hour or silently winding their way up a curving drive to a private estate, these glittering machines defined their owners as men of status, power, and almost frightening wealth.

Included in the collection are two Phantom IV Rolls Royces, formerly owned by the King of Kuwait. Built in 1955 and 1956, they were commissioned by the British government for foreign heads of state and domestic royalty.

Franco of Spain owns three such models and Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret were each given one.

Oldest car in the museum is an 1888 DeDion Bouton. Built in France, it was the first production car ever made. A steamer, the machine contains shelves for charcoal and wood built into its rear to feed the boiler in front of the driver's compartment.

The newest model is a 1966 Duesenberg. Priced to sell for $31,000, the automobile was to signify the beginning of a new era for a grand old automotive name.

Financial woes halted any large-scale production of the Duesenberg, however, and what was considered to be the finest motorcar ever to roll off an American assembly line may forever remain a collector's item.

A 1935 Duesenberg, the classic "it's a Duesie," was owned by an Indian maharaja and on each of its front fenders is a set of red and blue lights. When the blue light was on it meant that no one of any import was seated in the machine. When the red light was on, however, it meant the maharaja himself was inside and bystanders were prepared to bow, as the law demanded.

A 1926 Isotta Fraschini had the distinction of being among the only production cars ever blessed by the Pope.

Upon its right front fender is a stainless steel bulb within which is embedded a St. Christopher's medal, in honor of the event.

To be a lady at the dawn of the age of automobiles meant that you did not sit in the front seat but the 1911 Raulang firmly established the rear seat driver tradition, with controls for the woman in the back seating compartment, and controls for the man up front.

This electric automobile was built, as is many of the other cars in the museum, in Cleveland, Ohio, which, for a time, was the motorcar capital of the nation.

Henry Ford changed that when he built the nation's first mass assembly line in Michigan.

Of the 50 cars in the collection, all of them operational, the public will see the first true production sports car (a 1913 Mercer Raceabout), the last of the fantastic Bugatti's (a 1939 model), the oldest gas operated automobile (a 1903 Winton), and a 1912 Daimler given to the famous Lillian Russell by a King of England who, much to his embarrassment, was never able to keep the fact of his gift secret.

Perhaps the most expensive automobile in the collection is a 1904 Rolls, reputed to have cost $80,000 to buy and restore.

What may well be the most unusual machine presently being restored, is a 1927 Minerva, made in Belgium.

The car is 24 feet long and it has six wheels, an armchair, swivel seats, and a picnic table which folds out from the side of the machine.

Also included in the museum's exhibits is a Pittsburgh Fire Department engine with a 1,000 gallon a minute pump.

The rear of the machine was built in 1906 to be pulled by horses. When it was realized that an engine would provide the best of all possible transportation, the Pennsylvania city applied to the American LaFrance Company which made conversion kits for fire engines.

The engine was put on in 1911, and with its monstrous rear wheels, smaller front tires, gigantic boiler mounted on top, with brass, stainless, and bright red paint, the machine does not exactly sit silently in a corner.

Harry Resnick began collecting antique Rolls Royces in 1966 and, two years later, had such a large collection that he had trouble finding space for them.

Resnick's son, Justin, suggested a museum and the father agreed.

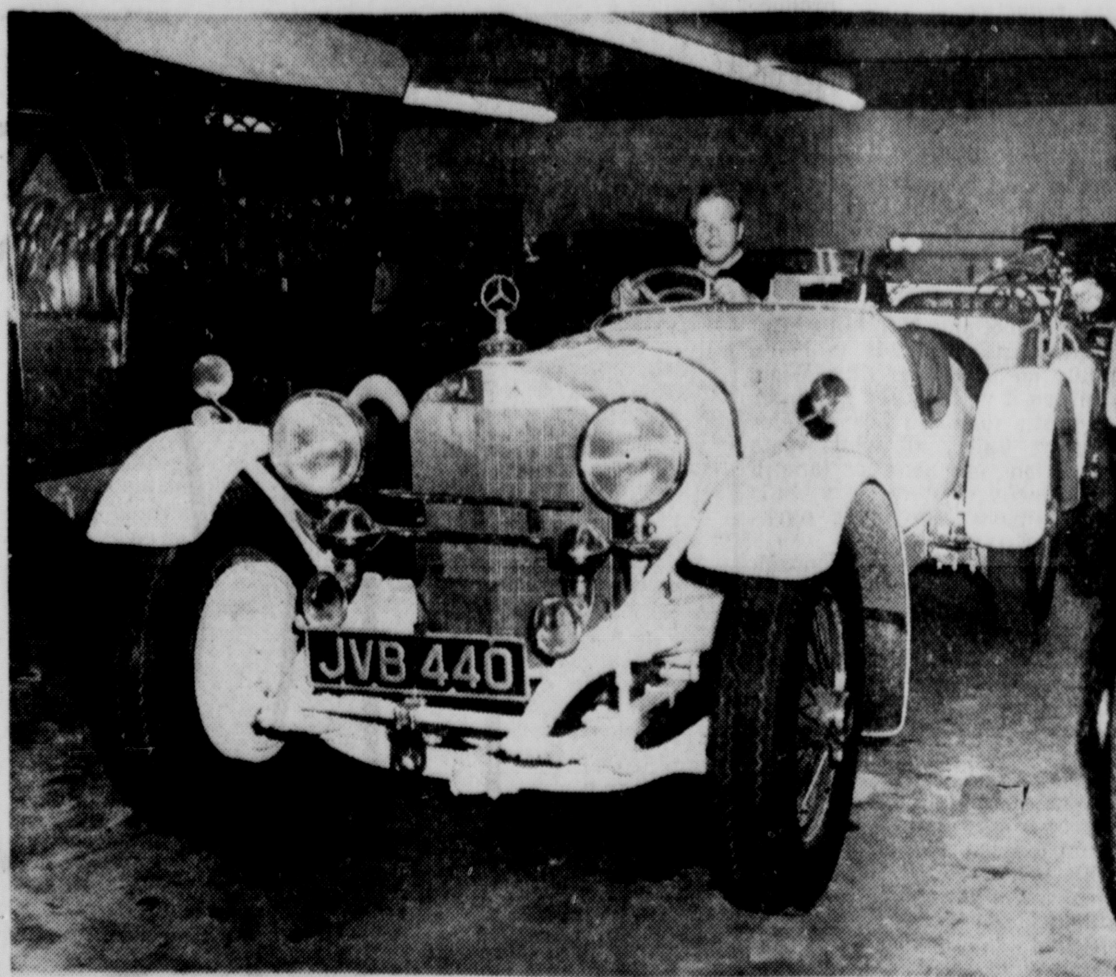

Joel Pettingell, a former school teacher from Agate, Colorado, is currently curator of the museum, charged with the responsibility of finding, restoring, and maintaining the machines.

The automobiles came from private collections and from individual owners in Canada, South America, and throughout the United States.

One car, a 1926 Rolls, a three-seater with a rumble seat, was dragged up from the bottom of a river, and a 1908 Mercedes was hauled from the jungles of Argentina and shipped out of Buenos Aires.

The museum will be divided into two sections, one for the Rolls collection, and the other for non-Rolls.

Included in the museum will be antique automobile accessories and wearing apparel. With the admission price will be a receipt guaranteeing the visitor his money back upon the purchase of a new Rolls Royce, a car priced anywhere from $18,000 and up.

Another Gigantic Problem: Where to Dispose of Refuse

By DAVID HASKELL
BOSTON (UPI)—Americans are the greatest wasters in the world—but not all the waste is wasted.

Some is used to make parks, golf courses or ski slopes. Some, unfortunately, finds its way into the air and water as pollutants.

Americans spend billions of dollars yearly to dispose of the billions of pounds of garbage and rubbish they produce. It's becoming increasingly harder to find places to get rid of it.

An authority on the problem, Dr. Melvin W. First of the Harvard School of Public Health, said there are three basic reasons why the country today is faced with such a large refuse problem: Population increase, urbanization and affluence.

"Because of American affluence, people throw away more and more than they ever did. When an American housewife goes shopping, almost everything she buys is packaged. These packages are thrown away. This is sheer affluence."

More Rubbish
Communities with a higher economic level tend to produce more rubbish per household. An average family accumulates about 1.5 tons of garbage and rubbish per year.

Prosperity has increased per capita waste production enormously. Modern packaging practices, countless magazines and newspapers, almost instant obsolescence of an endless variety of material acquisitions and the enormous growth of industry have combined to increase the daily per capita production of solid wastes in this country from 2.7 pounds in 1920 to more than 4.5 pounds now.

"Urbanization creates a waste disposal problem of where to put the rubbish," Dr. First said. Seventy per cent of the people in America live on 10 per cent of the land.

The national production of solid wastes in urban communities amounts to over 800 million pounds daily. This is expected to rise three times that by 1980, and "the ground available for disposal is very short," Dr. First said. "We just don't have the places to put the waste."

Industrial and technological changes are resulting in the production of ever increasing quantities of refuse, including junked cars, bottles, tin cans, chemicals, paper, construction debris, stoves, refrigerators, old furniture, etc. etc. etc.

Forty-eight billion cans and 26 billion bottles are produced annually and virtually all are discarded. The container industry expanded the problem of solid waste disposal when, in the last several years, it moved to "throwaway" bottles, cans and cartons.

Americans living in cities pay each year roughly $3 billion for the collection, transportation, processing and the disposal of solid wastes. Waste disposal is the third largest item on municipal budgets, exceeded only by education and roads.

The three basic methods for solving solid waste problems

Some cities are considering compressing their garbage into bales of from one to five tons and dumping them at sea. New York City, Dr. First said, has under consideration a scheme for putting the waste on trains and railing it into Pennsylvania where it would be "stuffed down old coal mines."

are reduction of waste production; reclamation, utilization and recycling of waste products, and returning the wastes to the environment via land, air or water.

Gardens from Waste

The most commonly practiced solid waste disposal method in the country is sanitary landfilling, used in several areas for the construction of parks, golf courses and botanic gardens.

A 100-foot-plus high hill in flat northwestern Illinois is being built on garbage fill. When finished it will be used in winter as a ski slope. In Los Angeles County, Calif., all solid waste collections are used for landfill to transform steep, dry hills and canyons into public parks and golf courses.

Another method of disposal, incineration, reduces the volume of solid wastes, but the process can also discharge pollutants into the air. One filtration method to eliminate this pollution is the use of activated charcoal, much in the same way it is used to filter certain American cigarettes.

Waste is put to use as a fuel source in many European countries, but only on a limited scale in the United States. It is a substantial fuel source, although obviously not as efficient as coal or oil. The Hempstead, N.Y., incinerator uses waste heat to generate power and desalt water for plant use.

Dr. First and the Harvard School of Public Health are studying the use of incinerator ships. Under this plan waste collections would be transported to docks and transferred to ocean-going vessels, possibly Liberty ships of World War II, now mothballed in the Hudson River. The vessel would be put out to sea, burn the wastes and discharge the residue into deep holes in the ocean floor.

Pneumatic piping systems, which operate under pressure to carry the wastes from various locations to an outlying disposal site, have been tested in Sweden.

A major bulk problem is abandoned automobiles. More than six million are junked each year. A new way to handle them is to place them in giant hammer mills and reduce them to small bundles of steel, for which there is a profitable market.

"The total solution," Dr. First said, "is to salvage waste and reuse it." At present, he explained, it is more expensive to salvage reusable wastes than it is to gather new raw materials. But he feels "the time will probably come when the cost of raw materials will be sufficiently high and salvaging will become a paying proposition."

Seaplane Pilot Unhurt in Crash; Plane Damaged

TOWANDA, Pa. (UPI)—The pilot of a seaplane escaped serious injury Monday when his plane crashed on the shore of Lake Onda in Bradford County, narrowly missing nearby cottages.

State police at Towanda said the pilot, Ronald Kimof Velona, was apparently unhurt. They reported his plane lost altitude on takeoff from the lake, crashed into a tree and fell to the shore.

Police reported the plane was heavily damaged, but no one on the ground was hurt.

First foreign wild animal exhibited in the United States was an African lion, in 1720, at Boston, Mass.

WAA Will Benefit from Jarvis Opening

Mrs. Theodore (Trudy) Jarvis, who has decorated the homes of such famous people as Billy Rose, Mike Wallace, Imogene Coca, A. H. Salzberger, owner of the New York Times; Herbert Keith, vice-president of IBM; Gypsy Rose Lee and countless other world known personalities and members of royalty, is opening her Woodstock Gallery on Saturday, July 6. The opening will be held as a benefit for the Woodstock Artists' Association.

A thousand invitations have been issued for the event, which will feature a distinguished exhibit of Woodstock art and that of the French impressionists. Woodstock representation will include Doris Lee, Milton Avery, Harvey Fite and Arnold Blanch. Among the important collection of French impressionists will be works of Renoir, Degas and Modigliani. A rare original casting of a Renoir bronze will be of special interest.

Mrs. Jarvis, whose Jarvis has been a significant art and decorating center for many years, is an outstanding member of her profession. The new Woodstock Jarvis Gallery is a mark of her distinction in both fields. Its impressive Georgian decor makes a stately setting for what promises to be a memorable exhibit.

Mrs. Jarvis is not a stranger to Ulster County. As a young artist, she studied at the Woodstock Art Students League. She has been a popular interior decorator for the past 40 years and, with her husband, has maintained a successful business in art and antiques. Mrs. Jarvis as sold paintings to such people as Henry Fonda, his daughter Jane, Prince Rospoli of Italy and many others.

At a recent press party given by Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis at their new Woodstock gallery, Mrs. Jarvis said she was hopeful of giving upcoming artists a place in which to exhibit.

The July 6 event will be open from 1 p.m. to 6. Donation will be $1.50 per person. House in New York City has

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute
SOCIAL RELATIONSHIPS
BETWEEN RELATIVES

Dear Mrs. Post: Could you suggest guidelines for social life among relatives? I come from a small family which lived a continent away from any other relatives. When we married, my husband and I also left the area where our families lived. Now my husband's brother has moved to our town.

I am sure that relations among relatives are less formal than those among friends and acquaintances, but my brother-in-law and his wife seem to feel perfectly free to come to our house without notice and to include themselves in any of our plans that they hear about. I don't know what to do and would appreciate any help you can give me.—Mrs. R.

Dear Mrs. R.: Relations between relatives are frequently more informal than those between friends, but not necessarily. Good friends can be far closer than brothers and sisters in many cases. Merely being related is no excuse for invasion of privacy. Every couple has a right to arrange its own social life, and it is no more correct for relatives to drop in without warning than anyone else.

The only answer is frankness. Tell them, as nicely as you can, that you love seeing them, but you would appreciate a phone call before they drop in so that you can make plans and enjoy their visits more. Also, introduce them to as many people and include them in as many parties as you can, so that they will develop a social life of their own.

The Meaning of 'Amen'

Dear Mrs. Post: When I was a girl—a long time ago—we were taught that the "Amen" at the close of a hymn was the benediction to that hymn, and should be sung with closed eyes and bowed heads. I still observe this custom and think it adds greatly to the sanctity of the service, but the people in the church I now attend sort of scoff at the idea. Who is right?—Inez.

Dear Inez: "Amen" literally means "so be it," which is simply an ending rather than a benediction. However, it should be sung just as reverently as the rest of the hymn.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question I receive each week, I'll send a free copy of Emily Post's Etiquette. The question chosen, and its answer, will be published in this column every Friday. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper, and don't forget to include your name and address.

Kremper - Suskie Nuptials - Told

Miss Nancy L. Kremper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Kremper of Mt. Marion, exchanged nuptial vows with Marshall Suskie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Suskie of 25 West Chester Street, Kingston, at St. Mary's Church, city, on Saturday, June 22.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony. Traditional wedding selections were provided. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Chantilly lace gown styled with a Sabrina neckline. The bodice was accented with teardrop pearls and the gown featured a chapel train. Her silk illusion veil was attached to a double crown of seeded pearls and lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white pompons, centered with a corsage of white gladiolus.

Mrs. Katherine Zeeh of 66 Tubby Street, Kingston, was matron of honor. Her full length yellow chiffon gown was fashioned with a yoke of white lace.

She wore a matching headpiece and carried a basket arrangement of yellow pompons with yellow satin ribbons.

Philip Kelly of 29 West Chester Street, Kingston, was best man. Ushers were Michael Flanagan, Saugerties, cousin of the bride; Michael Bower of Kingston, cousin of the bridegroom.

After the wedding a reception for 100 guests was held at Mt. Marion Inn, Mt. Marion.

For her wedding trip to the Adirondack Mountains, the bride selected a black and beige dress with matching coat, and a corsage of white gladiolus.

The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School, is employed at Ulster County Welfare Department. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School and Dutchess Community College, was employed at IBM at Fishkill. He will enter military service in July.

Many 'Insensitive' To Basic Tastes

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI)—If your wife's coffee tastes like vinegar, it may actually be your taste, not the coffee, that's at fault.

Dr. Ernest Dzendolet of the University of Massachusetts psychology department says his tests show 78.5 per cent of American males must be classified "insensitive" to the four basic tastes—sweet, salty, sour and bitter—and that 28 per cent of them are completely unable to distinguish between sour things (vinegar) and bitter things (coffee).

She Campaigns For Needy Orphans

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Betty Moul, in the midst of helping her boss win reelection to the U.S. Senate this year, also is running a campaign of her own. The sure winners in Miss Moul's campaign are hundreds of orphans among the victims of the Vietnam War.

Pittsburgh-born Betty Moul is private secretary to Jacob K. Javits, New York's Republican senator since 1956. The petite brunette, when she isn't shuffling the senator's appointments, handling correspondence, arranging speaking schedules and chauffeuring the senator, is out making speeches on her own to raise money for the An Lac Orphanage in Saigon.

Shifting Population

The orphanage, an arm of the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation of which Miss Moul is a trustee, cares for a shifting population of about 400 children from infancy to early teens.

And where does this bundle of energy spend her vacations? In Saigon, helping the understaffed staff to feed and clothe, to give medication (malnutrition, diarrhea and tuberculosis are major illnesses), and to teach the unfortunates. Miss Moul instructs them in English and laughingly said that to the children she's become "Co My," their way of calling her "Miss America."

She pays her own way to South Vietnam and admitted that she scrimps on her salary—"bring my own lunch . . . buy all my clothes on sale." She has worked out with the senator a schedule that permits her to spend close to two months every other year at An Lac. She takes the vacation due her one year in December and then backs the one due for the following year right against it.

Quit Steel Company
Miss Moul came to New York in 1959, transferred by her employer, U.S. Steel, but left in 1963 to work for the senator. She became interested in Dooley's work in Southeast Asia when she read "Give Joy to My Youth," a biography by Teresa Gallagher, an officer also of the foundation.

Miss Moul recalled that Dooley already was hospitalized for the cancer that killed him in 1961. "But I called him and said, 'My name is Betty Moul, I work for U.S. Steel and I can type.'"

Miss Moul prefers not to discuss the "politics" of the U.S. role in Vietnam, although as a senator's secretary she is surrounded by it. Rather, she talks of numerous ways U.S. military personnel volunteer to help the South Vietnamese.

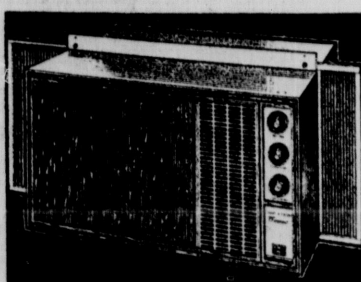

Medics give medical aid, others teach, and, "a bunch of Marine guards at the embassy used one of their days off to come over and repaint the entire orphanage," she said.

Kickers Rip Shamrock In Exhibition, 6 to 2

Kingston Kickers, who move up to the Premier Division of the German-American Soccer Association next fall, got a preview of what to expect in their last outing. And not even a broiling sun could spoil the fun for Manager Bob Graves' booters.

Playing imaginative, coordinated soccer, the Kingston club routed Shamrock of the Premier league, 6 to 2, in their first exhibition of the summer season at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

On Thursday (July 4), the eight flying booters take on even sterner stuff in the persons of the New York Hungarians of the Major Division. And that's as high as you can go in the GASA.

Jim Reinhardt opened the scoring against Shamrock, heading in a pass from Bill Newmerzhcky 14 minutes after the opening kickoff. A free kick enabled O'Connor of Shamrock to tie it at 1-1 at the 20-minute mark. After that it was all Sport Club.

Newmerzhcky Clicks
Outside right Newmerzhcky put the locals ahead to stay at the 27-minute mark. Three minutes before the end of the half, Jimmy Reinhardt was on the scoring end of a beautiful combination to send Kingston into the locker room leading 3-1.

The second half was completely dominated by the Kickers, although the sun began to take a heavy toll on the players.

The Kickers' brilliant combination of Elliott Pobbi-Asare of Ghana and All-American Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia racked up three fast goals to demolish the New Yorkers.

Pobbi-Asare connected at the 56-minute mark and Ventriglia rammed home goals at 65 and 79 minutes to put Kingston ahead, 6-1. A dispute play in the form of an outside goal enabled Shamrock to pick up its second score near the end of the game.

Excellent Tuneup
The surprising ease with which the Kickers handled Shamrock indicates they will give the Hungarians a rough time Thursday. Bill Newmerzhcky played an outstanding game with a goal and three assists.

Center forward O'Connor and halfbacks Thompson and McFarland excelled in defeat for the Shamrockers.

In the preliminary game, the Kingston reserves shut out the Shamrock reserves, 2-0.

The statistical chart showed the Kickers way out front, with 28 shots at the goal to 19 for Shamrock. Corner kicks were: Kingston 11, Shamrock 6; free kicks: Kingston 13, Shamrock 7. Timo Liekoski had nine goal saves, Jones 15.

Jaycees Sports Spectacular Comes to Kingston, July 26-27

The New York State Jaycee Sports Spectacular returns to Kingston for the fourth straight year, with competition in golf, tennis, track and field on Friday and Saturday, July 26-27.

Area Jaycee officials expect more than 250 boys from all over the state to compete in the spectacular.

Wiltwyck Country Club will once again be the site of the golf championships, Ted Beahm and Mike Frevert of Woodstock, state and local chairmen, respectively, are planning for an even more successful golf tournament than last year.

(Woodstock Jaycees will conduct district qualifying in golf Wednesday at Woodstock Country Club. All eligible players are asked to report at 8 a.m.)

try Club. All eligible players are asked to report at 8 a.m.)

Tourney at Woodstock

Winners of the State Spectacular in Kingston advance to the National Jaycees championships in Tulsa, Okla., in mid-August. The national tournament was not held last year.

Jim Barba and Chuck Fuscardo of Kingston, who are the state and local tennis chairmen, respectively, have announced that N. Jansen Fowler and the Kingston Tennis Association will again assist local Jaycees in hosting the tennis championships.

Al Miller, popular former soccer and tennis coach at State U New Paltz and presently head soccer coach at Hartwick College, has agreed to return as tournament director.

The tennis tournament will again be held at Forsyth Park, where area eliminations were conducted on June 22.

John Lawrence of the Saugerties Jaycees is chairman of the track meet. He will be assisted by Andrew J. Murphy, local superintendent of recreation. A much larger meet than last year is planned.

Winners in the Senior Division (17 and 18 years of age) will be eligible to represent New York State at the National Finals in Eugene, Oregon on August 15-16-17.

At Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, last summer,

more than 400 young track and field state champions from 39 states gathered in competition. In that meet, eight new records were set and two tied in the 13-event meet.

This year's meet promises to be even more eventful. The participants will have the opportunity to compete under the finest conditions available. The University of Oregon, under track coach Bill Bowerman, has enjoyed tremendous success. The school hosted the 1962 and 1964 NCAA track and field championships.

In addition to the meet, the participants will attend outstanding clinics featuring some of the best known names in track and field.

He Wins Game 5-1, But.....

It Was Over in Hurry for Bob

By VITO STELLINO

UPI Sports Writer

Bob Gibson laughed outwardly at misfortune Monday night but he must have cried a bit underneath all the smiles.

Gibson sat smiling and apparently relaxed in the St. Louis Cardinal dressing room and said all the right things, like "the most important thing is to win the game."

And Gibson did win the game by a 5-1 margin as the Cardinals topped the Los Angeles Dodgers. But with the Cards leading the league by 6½ games, it was hard to believe the game itself was the most important thing.

The really important thing to the crowd of 54,157 at Dodger Stadium was that the drama of the heralded Gibson-Drysdale duel was decided in the first inning when Gibson tossed a wild pitch to let in the Dodgers' lone run.

One wild pitch. It cost Gibson a sixth consecutive shutout which would have tied the record Drysdale set last month. And it snapped his consecutive scoreless innings streak at 48½, ruining his bid to match or beat the record of 58 2/3 that Drysdale also set last month.

One wild pitch. Gibson came so close. But he just said philosophically, "I threw a wild pitch and that's that."

Edwards Takes Blame

Catcher Johnny Edwards tried to take the blame for the ball that hit the dirt and skidded by him. He said, "it was my fault."

But Gibson disagreed. "It was a wild pitch, it just sailed. I threw a fast ball and it sailed in."

But Gibson disagreed. "It was a wild pitch, it just sailed. I threw a fast ball and it sailed in."

Edwards' lone run

One wild pitch. It cost Gibson a sixth consecutive shutout which would have tied the record Drysdale set last month. And it snapped his consecutive scoreless innings streak at 48½, ruining his bid to match or beat the record of 58 2/3 that Drysdale also set last month.

One wild pitch. Gibson came so close. But he just said philosophically, "I threw a wild pitch and that's that."

Edwards Takes Blame

Catcher Johnny Edwards tried to take the blame for the ball that hit the dirt and skidded by him. He said, "it was my fault."

THE PROTAGONISTS: Big Don Drysdale (L) of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Bob Gibson (R) St. Louis Cardinals in action in their heralded meeting last night. Gibson blew a chance for a sixth straight shutout to the Drysdale with a wild pitch in the first inning. He won the game though, 5-1. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI)—Roosevelt Raceway officials and representatives of the Standardbred Owners Association came to an agreement at midnight Monday on a compromise contract proposal made by State Supreme Court Justice Daniel G. Alberti.

George Morton Levy, president and general counsel of Roosevelt Raceway, said the same contract will be offered to Yonkers Raceway.

Jesse Moss, lawyer for the SOA, said that a deadline of July 13 was agreed for acceptance of the same contract by Yonkers.

The new contract provides for the owners to receive a 39 per cent cut of the track's retained share of the betting and for an increase in minimum purses to $2,500. The contract will run for a six-year term.

Levy said the track also agreed to provide free training and free use of the stabling

The new pact gives the horse owners an additional three per cent share of the total amount received by the track from the betting.

The old pact ran for a 10-year period. The owners originally requested a three-year contract and the track was seeking a second 10-year pact.

The track will retain all of the one-half of one per cent increase granted by the state legislature.

will get a flat 33 per cent. Levy also said the track and the horseowners would mutually work out future distribution of purse allocations.

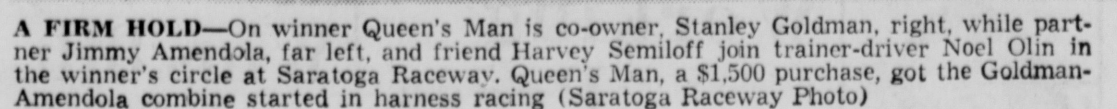

The strike closed Roosevelt Friday, Saturday and Monday night.

Levy estimated the horseowners will receive about $7,000 per night in additional revenue under the terms of the contract.

Moss said if Yonkers doesn't accept a similar contract by July 13, "The horsemen will feel free to renegotiate the entire contract. We would feel then we are no longer under any obligation to agree to the same contract which was offered to Roosevelt today."

NEW YORK (UPI)—Floyd Patterson is set to make another of his countless comebacks.

Patterson, the only man ever to win the heavyweight title, lost it, win it back and then lose it again, will fight Jimmy Ellis in Stockholm on Sept. 1 for the World Boxing Association version of the title.

Patterson, who hasn't fought since he lost a close 12-round decision to Jerry Quarry in the WBA elimination tournament of Oct. 28, 1967, still has hopes of winning the title again for a third time. Frazier is recognized as the titleholder in five states.

Ellis won the WBA version by outpointing Quarry on April 27. Patterson has lost just six fights in his long and checkered career against 46 victories and one draw. Ellis is 26-6.

The bout will be televised nationally in the United States by ABC-TV.

That was May, 1967. In 24 trips to the post, Queen's Man earned almost $2,600 (four wins, five seconds, a trio of thirds for the duo.

More than half that money came this year under trainer-driver Noel Olin. Previously tutored by Charlie Kelly, Queen's Man's racing prowess was nothing for the two some to be overjoyed about. The switch to Olin brought success. The gelding, now eight, took a second in his latest start, last Wednesday.

Older Fans Keep Gleason on Top

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Why do people like Ed Sullivan, Lucille Ball, Red Skelton and myself stay on the air year after year?" asked Jackie Gleason.

He supplied his own answer: "Because we appeal to the mature audience."

The globe-shaped comedian was in an analytical mood as he attacked his simple lunch of prime ribs of beef and two bottles of beer. He asked for a tall glass, but all the Paramount commissary could provide was a glass for ice cream sodas. He accepted it uncomplainingly, commenting, "I have drunk beer from every conceivable vessel."

Gleason was at the studio for filming of his second movie in a row, "How to Commit Marriage." He was working solo prior to the return of costar Bob Hope, sidelined at the picture's start because of a recurrence of his eye ailment.

Reflecting on TV longevity, Gleason observed that the way to survive is to appeal to the older folks. "They're always at home, and they'll tune you in because they know they can count on a regular standard of entertainment."

"When we do 'The Honey-mooners,' we get both the kids and the adults. For the variety shows, the audience is mostly adult—unless I put on one of the pop music acts, which I don't like to do."

"I think it's tough to last when you aim at the younger audience only. Take 'Laugh-In.' Don't get me wrong—I think Dan Rowan and Dick Martin have done a terrific job with that show. They've used the 'hellzapoppin' technique to great advantage."

"But how are they going to keep it up; these kids nowadays are so sharp, so quick to catch on that every-gag, every gesture registers in their minds. They can repeat all the jokes and catchlines, and they do. But how soon are they going to tire of those things and want something else?"

Gleason himself is planning no innovations for the coming season, although he is aiming for strong names as guest stars. It will be more of the same, and judging from his consistently high ratings, there's no need to change.

The Gleason technique, as he describes it, appears to be even more casual than Dean Martin's. Dino amazed his fellow stars by devoting no more than one day to his variety hour. Gleason said that he often reports to his show just in time to have a hair trim and get into costume.

"For 'The Honey-mooners' we might have a one-hour run-through," he added. "Fortunately, I'm a fast study, and so are Art (Carney), Sheila (McRae) and Betty (Kean). We use cue cards only for the songs; it's too tough to learn the lyrics for four songs every show."

"Otherwise I don't use cue cards or Teleprompts. I don't believe in them. Most of the actors on shows nowadays don't talk to each other anymore—they're too busy staring at their lines."

Come September, Gleason will be back in his favorite haunt of Miami Beach and starting a new season. He doesn't miss Hollywood.

"Where have all my old buddies gone?" not New York. "I sometimes wonder how I ever lived there, playing 18 holes every day at Toots Shor's bar."

He has even solved the need to come here for films: Next January he plans to costar with Lucille Ball in "Diamond Jim Brady," to be filmed in Florida.

Ahlberg Will Be Head of Kansas College

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) —Clark D. Ahlberg, a vice president of Syracuse, N.Y., University and a top fiscal planner in New York State under former Gov. Averell Harriman, will be the next president of Wichita State University in his native Kansas.

The Kansas Board of Regents announced Monday night that Ahlberg would succeed Dr. Emory Lindquist, who became president when the university entered the state system in 1963. Lindquist's resignation takes effect Sept. 1.

Ahlberg, 51, was born in Wichita and received his bachelor's degree from Wichita University in 1939. He received his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Syracuse University, where he began his career in education in 1940 as an instructor of political science.

He is now vice president for administration and research at Syracuse.

In 1955, Ahlberg became deputy director of New York's Division of the Budget. He was made budget director in 1957 and deputy comptroller in 1959.

Ahlberg also was a personnel researcher for the National Bureau of Standards and research director of Syracuse University's office in Washington, D.C.

He is married and the father of three.

Fulton Woman Crash Victim; Mate, 2 Hurt

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) —Mrs. Maybell Conner, 63, of Fulton, N.Y., was killed Monday when her husband and two grandchildren were injured slightly when a house trailer being towed by their automobile jackknifed and crashed into the car.

The Conners were returning from visiting their son at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. The accident occurred on Interstate Route 90 near this city northeast of Cleveland.

Police said they did not know whether Mrs. Conner lost control of the car or whether a gust of wind caused the accident. Skid marks showed that the car and trailer went off and back on the highway three times before the trailer slammed into the left side of the car.

Mrs. Conner's husband, Matthew, 64, and the grandchildren, Lynne Parrish, 13, and Rene Parrish, 12, were discharged from a hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

Federal Grants

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Federal grants totaling $766,454 to provide recreation areas in New York City, Buffalo and Little Falls were announced Monday by Gov. Rockefeller's office.

The largest grant, $455,000, to be matched with state funds, will be used to acquire land for a new state park on the Harlem River in New York City.

Buffalo will receive $271,454 in federal funds to acquire and do preliminary site work on the Lakeview section of LaSalle Park, and $40,000 was earmarked for development of a section of Moreland Park at Little Falls.

Dear Abby

Sitter Not 'Working Out'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would be writing to you, but I need an impartial listener, and I am desperate.
I am married with four lovely children, ages 3 to 12. I work of necessity not by choice.
My difficulties started last year when my father-in-law died and "Mom" asked me if she could be our day time baby-sitter to keep busy and supplement her income.
We thought it was a wonderful idea, as we would feel more at ease with grandmother looking after the children in stead of a stranger. What a mistake!
We learned too late that Mom is hypnotized by the television. She turns it on the minute she walks in, and it stays on until I come home from work. In the meantime, the two little ones have been tearing the house apart from one end to the other. Mom lets them do anything they please, and you know that is not good.
I have tried to talk gently with her, and so has my husband, but it hasn't helped. The situation keeps growing worse.

I would like to get someone else in to look after the children, but how can I without hurting Mom? She would feel unwanted, and I would feel cruel and heartless and guilty. Please help me find a solution. If there is one.
DESPERATE
DEAR DESPERATE: Anyone can make a bad decision—the tragedy is perpetuating it. Face it, "Mom" is not working out as a baby-sitter. To suddenly "disengage" her would be unkind. Why not take an "indefinite" leave of absence from your job (for a month or so) and gently relieve your mother-in-law of her duties. You could resume in time after having made other arrangements for a sitter.
An alternative would be to place your children in a day nursery. Either suggestion is, I think, better than continuing the way you are.

My husband is a sergeant on the police force. Recently the Shmos' son came home from college and threw a big party in their backyard. I'll bet there were 100 kids there. The party got noisy and wild so the elderly couple on the other side of the Shmos' called the police.
Well, Mr. Shmo (Sr.) got smart and told the patrolmen that he had better watch his step because his best buddy was a police sergeant, so the patrolmen called for the "best buddy" who happened to be my husband. Mr. Shmo (now very drunk) cursed the patrolmen, so they arrested him with my husband's consent.
All the neighbors were watching. My husband had no choice, but now none of the neighbors will even speak to us. Abby, who was wrong? Should we apologize?
SERGEANT'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Your husband did the right thing, and if the Shmos' and your neighbors became angry with your husband for having done his duty, shame on them. Mr. Shmo should apologize to your husband for having put him on the spot.
DEAR ABBY: I can't thank you enough for telling me to forget all those reasons I gave you for not wanting to go to our family doctor to see if I was pregnant or not. I took your advice and went, and he told me I wasn't pregnant. Boy, was I ever relieved. And Abby, I am glad that you told me that dressing the way I did was just setting myself up for rape.

I never realized before that those mini-mini-skirts and real thin blouses with nothing on underneath could give the guys the idea that a girl was willing to do anything. Thank you very much, Abby. I will always love and respect you.
A RELIEVED 16-YEAR-OLD
Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
FOR ABBY'S NEW BOOKLET "WHAT TEENAGERS WANT TO KNOW," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL. 90069
(Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 10:30 a.m., WKNY—1490.)

In general we favor giving your partner a major suit raise any time your hand calls for it. There is one exception to this. When a game forcing bid has been made and we intend to raise our partner later we will sometimes bid no-trump as a warning against getting to an optimistic slam later on.

North had no reason to be ashamed of his opening bid. He had 14 high card points and three honor tricks in the old Culbertson honor trick count. South redoubled, to double his on the other hand his strength.

West was one of those players who wanted everything he could collect. He had listened to the bidding and was sure that he could give his partner a club ruff. West decided to double five spades.

South should have seen what sledgehammer bidders never do. South redoubled, to double his on the other hand his strength.

Thoughts While Viewing TV

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)

Thoughts while watching television:

—The great irony of the medium is that it makes kids so sophisticated so early that they can't abide to watch it seriously when they grow up.

—Nobody ever relished a line more than George Sanders in "The Picture of Dorian Gray" when he said: "Think with the liberals and eat with the Tories."

—Robert Montgomery is the best all-around leading man Hollywood ever produced, the essence of style, and my life's work is to present him with a Bogart-like revival.

—The difference between old movies and new ones is this: In the old films they had villains you loved to hate. In the new ones they have heroes you hate to love.

—A good title for a book about television would be: "Unsafe on Any Channel."

—Noel Coward's appearance on the home screen always reminds me of his line: "Every woman should be struck regularly—like a gong."

—Art Buchwald, appointed CBS-TV's "very special correspondent" for August's political convention coverage, will be the man to watch. He promises "to be where the action is, such as Harold Stassen's headquarters."

—Some publicists for television news departments might do well to remember the old observation that few insults are greater than praising a man for doing his duty.

—The democratic system of government, with all its causes, has nothing to do with the natural aristocracy of the arts.

—There are times when one must rise above principle, and television does it all the time.

—In "Inherit the Wind" Clarence Darrow is told by a broadcaster that he cannot say

"damn" or "hell" on that new contraption, radio, and he replies: "Well, I can see this is going to be a barren source of amusement."

—What television needs is a

Tolstoy to Dostoevski to Turge-

nev.

A regimental dinner was held in honor of two members of a famous Canadian company. The sergeant who was to give the toast had been carefully coached, but when he got to his feet, he stuttered and finally blurted out:

Sergeant Carr — Here's to the famous Seventh! Last on the field of battle and first to leave.

A dead silence reigned.

The corporal gallantly came to his rescue.

Corporal King — You must forgive the sergeant, he is not used to public speaking. I will give the toast. Here's to the famous Seventh! Equal to none!

House Approves Lunches, Major Poor People Goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has approved and sent to the Senate a $300 million, three-year program to provide extra free and low-cost school lunches for needy children—a major goal of the Poor People's Campaign.

The action Monday was coupled with passage of legislation which would require distribution of the lunches in such a manner that recipients would not be identified to their schoolmates.

Under the first bill, approved 274 to 78, additional funds for lunches would be appropriated automatically from leftover funds the Agriculture Department gets from customs collections to buy surplus farm products.

Money unused for that purpose normally goes back to the Treasury.

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman had told the House Education and Labor Committee that he needed congressional authority to use any of the nearly $300 million a year normally held in reserve.

Reacting to what committee Chairman Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., called an "emergency," lawmakers drafted a bill to give Freeman the authority he sought. "We are taking funds not otherwise utilized," said Perkins. "This is the only way we can reach this emergency."

The separate bill to require the identities of lunch recipients secret was passed 352 to 0. Recent testimony by private study groups indicated that many children of the poor refused to help because they were ashamed to undergo procedures which publicly marked them.

Included in this second measure was a provision to require states, starting in 1970, to provide supplementary funds for lunches. This would amount initially to 4 per cent of the federal contribution, and increase by 2 per cent each fiscal year until it reached 10 per cent.

On the Republican side, Richard M. Nixon has accumulated nearly three-fourths of the delegates needed for the GOP presidential nomination and his opponent, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, has called for fast enactment of strict gun control legislation.

Nixon now has 478 of the 667 votes needed for nomination, according to the Associated Press tabulation of delegates pledged, committed or publicly stating their voting intentions. Rockefeller has 192.

The count does not include the minimum 40 Texas delegates that Sen. John G. Tower said

Save Cities, HHH's Plan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey proposed a multibillion-dollar loan program today to "save" the nation's cities and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's top aides tackled differences over the direction his campaign should take.

McCarthy aides were reported divided over whether the Minnesota Senator should concentrate on personal contacts with delegates in his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination or combine the contacts with mass actions such as state convention walkouts to demonstrate his "new politics" strength.

Combines Strategies

The Washington Post said McCarthy had asked his advisers to combine their various strategies at a meeting in Washington today into a general plan for the campaign's future.

Humphrey, in what was billed a major speech on city problems, proposed in Cleveland creation of a National Urban Development Bank to help finance redevelopment projects particularly in inner cities.

"This is essentially a program for federal underwriting of loans," Humphrey said. The bank would sell federally guaranteed bonds to private investors.

"This is even more essentially," he said, "a proposal to commit ourselves as a country, to paying whatever is the cost, not of just saving, but of perfecting, our cities."

Other Principals

Nixon now has 478 of the 667 votes needed for nomination, according to the Associated Press tabulation of delegates pledged, committed or publicly stating their voting intentions. Rockefeller has 192.

The count does not include the minimum 40 Texas delegates that Sen. John G. Tower said

Monday would go to Nixon as a result of the Senator's dropping his favorite son role and releasing the state's 56 GOP delegates.

Humphrey has 640 1/2 Democratic delegates votes in the AP tabulation to 401 for McCarthy. The Democratic nomination requires 1,312 votes.

Rockefeller said in Helena, Mont., Congress should enact President Johnson's proposal for gun registration and licensing before it adjourns this year.

"The lives of innocent people are at stake," he said. "Strong, workable gun-control legislation is urgently needed in the battle to control crime and lessen violence."

Gaining, Losing

The Harris Survey, meanwhile, reported Rockefeller is gaining Democratic and Independent support but losing Republican support to Nixon.

Louis Harris said in a Washington Post copyright story his poll shows Rockefeller gained 10 percentage points in independent votes between May and June in tests against both Humphrey and McCarthy.

In another political development, New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes, chairman of the Democratic National Convention's credentials committee, called a bid by Negroes for a guaranteed minimum of North Carolina's delegates "inappropriate."

Dr. Reginald Hawkins, a Negro civil rights leader, said an organization he heads will demand a minimum of 14 of the state's 59 delegates.

6-Week Shantytown: $1.2 Million Tab

WASHINGTON (AP) — The six weeks the Poor People's Campaign spent living and demonstrating in the nation's capital cost everyone involved, including the public, at least $1.2 million.

But that sum may fall far short of what the final expense will total a figure that may never be known.

On May 11 when the Southern Christian Leadership Conference planted Resurrection City, the campaign's plywood shantytown, on national park land near the Lincoln Memorial, federal officials said there would be little cost to the government.

But by the time Resurrection City was dismantled and hauled away last week, federal expenses were officially put at $231,684.

The District of Columbia estimated its own expenses from the campaign at about $500,000 not counting police costs during last week's demonstrations.

The SCLC, although tight-lipped about money matters, conceded it spent about $350,000 to operate the campaign. The Washington Star said it cost an additional $100,000 to build Resurrection City, and there was another $10,000 spent to bring the mule train, symbol of rural poverty, to the city.

Of the government expenditures, about $85,000 went toward tearing down the shantytown and replacing the grass trampled in the mud-filled 15-acre camp site.

Most of the governmental expenses, $129,603 spent by the National Park Service and the $500,000 incurred by the District of Columbia, went to pay overtime for policemen.

Cool Water, Cold Ice Ease the Ulster Heat Wave

After the dampest June in county history the skies finally cleared bringing near record temperatures that reached an unofficial 99 degrees yesterday. Tracy Ann Palladino (L), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Palladino of Rosendale, is only 13 months old but she knows a good thing when she sees it, cooling off in her pool. Gardner North of 48 Murphy Street beat the heat by stopping by the Binnewater Lake Ice Company on Pine Street. Over in Port Ewen, Donald Ferraro Jr., 16 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Ferraro, enjoys a cool drink in his pool. All was not sweetness and light, however, as the heat and increased use of air conditioners and fans resulted in a number of power failures, in the area. Central-Hudson crews were called to Miller's Lane, Henry, Pearl and Groff Streets, Zena and Ellenville areas during the early evening hours. In New Paltz, village traffic was tied up for a time when power interruption blacked out signal light systems. (Freeman photos by Kruh and Haines)

Hijackers and the Escorts

SMILING RETURN—An unidentified stewardess smiles at her pilot after the crew of Northwest Orient Airlines hijacked Boeing 727 landed in Miami early today. The plane was hijacked with 85 passengers aboard and ordered to fly to Cuba where the passengers remain. The crew apparently were the only persons allowed to fly back to Miami. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

By CHARLES E. TAYLOR

MIAMI (UPI)—A Northwest Orient Airlines jetliner, the second U.S. plane in three days forced by hijackers to fly to Cuba, returned to the United States today with only its seven crew members aboard. The 86 passengers remained in Cuba.

There was no immediate explanation why only the crew was allowed to leave Havana, where the Boeing 727 was forced to land at gunpoint Monday night on a flight from Minneapolis, Minn., to Miami.

Early Release Possible
Meanwhile, an agreement between Moscow and Washington may bring the release soon of a U.S. airliner and the 231 Americans aboard when it was forced down onto a Soviet Far East island by Russian fighters, diplomatic sources reported today.

UPI dispatches from Moscow said the official Soviet silence over the incident Sunday plus American readiness to take the blame and probably apologize if necessary indicated the matter was likely to be settled quickly and quietly.

The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) in Miami said the U.S.-operated Cuban refugee airline would bring the passengers back today. The airlift sends two flights daily to Cuba.

(In Washington, the State Department said it was "energetically" seeking through the Swiss Embassy in Havana to determine why the passengers were not aboard the plane.

"Although we understand the Cuban government has suggested that for technical reasons the departure of the aircraft in darkness with a full load of passengers would not have been safe, nonetheless, this action is unusual," a State Department spokesman said.

"We are energetically pursuing the matter through the offices of the Swiss Embassy," he said.

The pilot of the airliner, Capt.

Richard Simonson, had told the FAA in a flight report filed from Havana by radio that he was bringing 85 passengers with him on his return flight. Only one passenger, presumably the hijacker, was to remain in Cuba.

Change Plans
But Jack Mays, a public relations man with Northwest Orient, said later that only the crewmen—Simonson, two flight officers and four stewardesses—were returning.

An official of the State Department's Cuban affairs office in Miami said he believed the passengers were detained because Havana airport runways are not equipped for big jet airliners.

"I think the only reason the passengers were not allowed to return was because Cuban officials considered it was not safe to take off on that runway," he said.

He said plans call for a third daily refugee airlift flight to be made today, probably returning the passengers to Miami this afternoon.

The jetliner left Havana at 5:33 a.m. EDT and landed at Miami International Airport at 6:35 a.m. Simonson and the other crewmembers left the plane and went into immediate conference with U.S. customs officials.

Many relatives of the passengers had waited through the night for the return of the Boeing 727, which was commandeered by a gunman only two minutes before it was to land in Miami Monday night.

Reports Hijacking
The plane, on a nonstop flight from Chicago after originating in Minneapolis, had radioed the Miami air traffic control tower for landing clearance when Simonson suddenly blurted that a passenger had taken control of the aircraft at gunpoint.

7th of Year
It was the seventh hijacking this year of U.S. and Latin-American airliners. All but one was allowed to return from Cuba within hours.

The exception was a Southeast Airlines DC3 airliner carrying 15 passengers which was held from last Saturday until Monday because the pilot was jailed as a Cuban deserter. A pilot had to be flown to Cuba to relieve Capt. Jorge Antonio Prellezo, who had defected from the Castro regime eight years ago and was charged with desertion.

Khe Sanh Finale: 169 Reds Killed

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI) — Military spokesmen today said U.S. Marines killed 169 Communists in what may have been the last battle of Khe Sanh.

They said Leatherneck rear guards cut down the attacking Communists three miles south-east of the fort in South Vietnam's northwest corner, while Marine demolition teams blew up Khe Sanh's bunkers.

A high-ranking U.S. source told United Press International late today that evacuation of the Marine base at Khe Sanh would be completed at "any minute."

The attacking Communists killed two Marines and wounded 11 before being stopped, shattered and touted by the Leatherneck guard force plus American artillery and air strikes.

Military spokesmen said Khe Sanh, which earlier this year withstood a 77-day siege by two North Vietnam divisions, was being abandoned and that U.S. awards for valor once the forces will instead maintain "mobile" fighting units in the area.

Casualty Accounts
In Saigon, South Vietnamese spokesmen said 273 government troops were killed in combat last week. Another 856 were wounded. It continued a series of weeks of relatively lower South Vietnamese casualties.

In the same pattern, 1,193 Communists were killed in combat in South Vietnam by the allies last week—the lowest Red death toll of the year, South Vietnamese spokesmen said.

Meantime, U.S. B52 Stratofortresses rocked the northern portion of the Demilitarized Zone Monday in five separate raids, their first into North Vietnam's southern reaches since May.

In other developments:—American paratroopers cut down 38 Viet Cong attackers in a battle so fierce the U.S. soldiers threw hand grenades between their bunkers at the Communists. Sixteen American soldiers received on-the-spot awards for valor once the smoke had cleared, spokesmen said.

Four Drownings, Victim in Ulster

By WALTER S. CLARK Jr.

Drowning mishaps on Monday took the lives of four persons, including a 14-year-old foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hughes of Ruby, who was drowned while swimming in the Esopus Creek in the Town of Saugerties.

The other drownings, all termed accidental by authorities, occurred in Delaware, Sullivan and Erie Counties.

State Police scuba divers at daybreak today resumed search for a 16-year-old girl who disappeared while swimming with others in a river near the Delaware County township of Horton.

afternoon was 14-year-old Barbara Ann Squire, foster daughter of the Hughes couple.

An investigation by state police and the sheriff's office noted that the girls were swimming with her foster mother and three other persons in the Esopus Creek at about 1:15 p.m. when she reportedly slipped off a rock and fell into about 10 to 15 feet of water.

Unsuccessful Attempts
Others in the creek attempted to rescue her but were unsuccessful. Authorities were notified by the Mt. Marion-Ruby fire department rescue squad went to the scene and began dragging operations. They found the body. The little girl was learning to swim at the time she drowned, troopers noted.

Ulster County Coroner Henry Hartley of Saugerties investigated with Senior BCI Investigator Charles Teelon, Sergeant Charles Bundschuh and Trooper John Kohland of the Kingston state police, and County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the sheriff's office.

Dr. Herbert Derman was the coroner's physician on the case. Search continued today by scuba divers from State Police headquarters of Troop C for the body of 16-year-old Susan Sampson of Cortland who drowned while swimming with friends Monday night in the Beaverkill River near the Town of Horton in Delaware County.

According to troopers, the drowning occurred at 7:15 p.m. yesterday and within a half-hour and began search for the missing girl. Diving operations continued until 2:30 a.m. and were resumed at 5:30 a.m.

THE LAST AMERICAN

by Don Oakley and John Lane

"Before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, we were here."

These words of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. tell the length of the Black American's struggle for equality in America.

A 24-part illustrated story-strip, "The Last American," will tell of the Negro's 350-year history in the New World and trace the course of the black man from slavery and freedom in Africa and Europe to more of the same in America. The series will begin in the Freeman on Wednesday.

Writer Don Oakley and artist John Lane, both with Newspaper Enterprise Association (NEA), tell of present and past Negroes of the great American writers, soldiers, explorers and statesmen have contributed greatly to the development of the United States.

Both heroes and villains rise from the chapters of "The Last American" exactly as they rose to prominence during their lifetimes.

As the title of this series implies, despite his contributions of blood and sweat, in terms of enjoying full rights of citizenship, the Negro is "The Last American."

To learn how this came to be, watch for "The Last American," beginning Wednesday in the Freeman.

What in the World!

Ray Extradition Ordered

LONDON (UPI)—A court today ordered James Earl Ray extradited to the United States to stand trial for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Ray, 40, identified as an escaped convict from a Missouri jail, was accused of shooting the civil rights leader in Memphis, Tenn., on April 4. He was arrested at London Airport June 8.

Ship Tieup Over

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Maritime Union has ended its three-day strike, which idled 128 American-flag ships, with an agreement calling for a five per cent increase in base wages and 15 more vacation days.

Theodore W. Kheel, arbitrator under the contract between the seamen's union and two employer groups, announced the settlement Monday and said, "The strike shall end immediately."

'Turks' Quit the NAACP

WASHINGTON (AP)—The "Young Turk" militants whose aggressive demands nearly broke up the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's annual convention this past week are walking out of that moderate civil rights organization.

They hope to forge a new link between themselves, the Congress of Racial Equality, The Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

NAACP leaders are probably relieved to see them go.

Fatal Mexican Quake

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—One man died Monday night in an earthquake that shook south central Mexico, centering about 110 miles southwest of Mexico City.

The newspaper "El Universal" said one man was killed in Cuajimalpa, about 25 miles west of Mexico City, when his house collapsed.

No serious damage or injuries were reported in Mexico City or in Taxco, a tourist resort in the mountains near the epicenter. The tremor was felt in Acapulco, the resort city on the Pacific coast, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

Rondout, Onteora To Meet

Two Ulster County School Districts with twice defeated budgets on their hands will hold reorganizational meetings tonight to determine what steps should be taken to meet their problem.

At Rondout Valley, where three new members will take their place on the school board, it is anticipated that an austerity budget will be invoked as an interim solution and that further proposals will be made to school district voters.

New members include Morris H. Felsen, Julian Bartles and Burton Shoemaker.

At Onteora School District's meeting, one new member, George W. Mabey of Ashokan will begin a five year board term.

It has been reported that voters of the district are circulating a petition in which the board is asked to submit the budget to a vote for the third time.

Dr. Harold Snyder, superintendent of schools reported that the last budget vote was defeated by five per cent.

In Marlboro, representatives of the Marlboro Faculty Association report that some teachers in that district are seeking employment in other areas due to the inability of the association and the school board to settle job disputes despite Public Employees Relation Board mediation.

Rondout Valley reports that during its June 21 budget defeat, 1,761 registered voters cast ballots. The revised budget of $3,819,538 was rejected by a vote of 989 to 763. The difference in the votes, coincidentally, equalled the number of people who registered during the period between the two budget votes. With a total registration of 2,889, there were 1,128 eligible registrants who did not vote June 21.

Two propositions to purchase school buses were also turned down. The purchase of two carryalls lost 1,094 to 658 and the acquisition of one new 67-passenger bus was rejected 1,097 to 644.

Rondout Valley's meeting will be held at the high school and Onteora board members will meet at the school in Boiceville, central building.

Sites, Cost for City Hall on Council Agenda

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Kingston Common Council meets in regular session tonight at 7:30 and is expected to hear a report by Architect Albert Milliken on sites and cost for a new city hall and the cost of renovating the old one.

Details were sketchy today on exactly what Milliken's report will entail. It is expected that he will list six or seven sites in the city where a new hall might be built, including the Downtown Urban Renewal area. The cost of remodeling the present city hall at 408 Broadway is said to be excessive. Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward) is chairman of the Common Council's City Hall Committee.

Favored by Mayor
Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan today came out in favor of a new city hall but said that a great deal of discussion and planning was needed to determine how large the new structure should be. Garrahan said he is making efforts to have a study made of Kingston which will determine the city's population in the year 2,000.

Garrahan also briefly touched on city finances saying he could "see daylight" ahead. He pointed out that as things now stand, his administration in the past 30 months has re-cause Garrahan failed to consult with the aldermen as to what streets were to be re-

Major repair jobs are being requested for North Street ($20,180), Shufeldt Street ($14,898), Second Avenue - High Street ($16,200) and Mt. View Avenue ($13,125).

Also back on the agenda is a $19,000 request by the mayor for the purchase of seven new police cars. This was also rejected at last month's Council meeting, for much the same reasons as the street program.

In other police news, Chief Francis Fagan has asked that the Council amend a current law which requires police officers to be residents of the city upon appointment and extend the residency requirement to a seven mile radius of the city. No action will be taken on that measure but it is expected to come up for a vote at the August meeting of the Council. Approval will be asked on a pair of zoning changes for which public hearings were held June 19. They include the rezoning of the Arthur Organtini property on 14 Elmendorf Street from commercial to residential and a request by Anita K. Kantor to change 58-62 Lucas Avenue from residential to limited offices.

The Council meets on the third floor of city hall.

Six Hurt in Rt. 209 Accident

A two-car collision on Route 209 in the Town of Marbletown shortly before 10 p.m. Monday resulted in injuries to six persons, including three children. A one-car mishap on Ulster Heights Road injured a 19-year-old Ellenville youth.

Kingston State Police reported the cars involved in the Route 209 crash were driven by Beth Aaron of Accord, and Philip McConnell, 29, of Kerhonkson. Troopers said action is pending as the result of that accident.

The Aaron car was traveling north on Route 209 when the driver said she was forced off the highway by an unidentified southbound vehicle. As she attempted to return to the pavement she lost control and the car entered the opposite lane and was in collision with the southbound car operated by McConnell.

The Accord woman was treated at Kingston Hospital for lacerations of the hands and face. A passenger, Danny Previl, 16, of Kerhonkson, sustained lacerations of the head and face and possible cerebral concussion.

McConnell apparently escaped injury. Gail McConnell, 28, received abrasions of the left arm and contusions. Others injured were three of the McConnell's children, Kris, 6, who received injuries of the forehead; Kim, 7, injuries of the left knee; and Kevin, 4, contusions of the forehead. They were all removed from the scene of the mishap to Ellenville Community Hospital by Doctors Ambulance Service.

Trooper Thomas Crowley investigated the accident. Both vehicles were extensively damaged.

At 12:15 a.m. today Frederic Green, 19, of Ellenville, was injured when his car went out of control on Ulster Heights

Mayor Appoints Sass To City Water Board

A former Democratic mayoral candidate, Frank C. Sass of 142 Hunter Street, has been appointed to a five-year term on the Kingston Water Board by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan.

Garraghan made the announcement today at City Hall. Sass' appointment was effective yesterday and expires on May 31, 1973.

Sass replaces Thomas Davitt whose term expired May 31. He joins William F. Leehive, board president, whose term expires May 31, 1970; Sam N. Mann (May 31, 1972) the secretary to the board; Paul Schatzel (May 31, 1969) and Ernest Heppner (May 31, 1971).

Edmund T. Cloonan, a professional engineer, is Water Department superintendent.

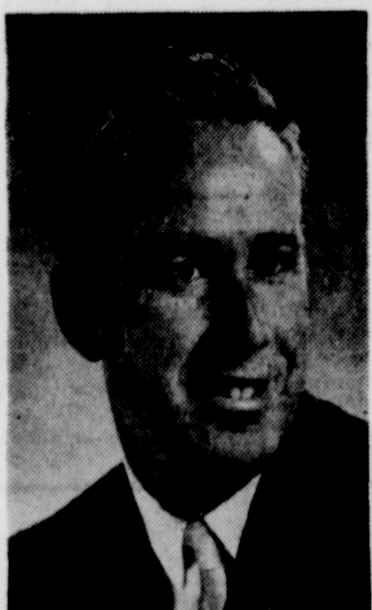

Sass ran for mayor with Francis R. Koenig as alderman-at-large in 1963. Both were defeated, Sass by then incumbent Mayor John C. Schwenk and Koenig by Joseph Carroll.

Sass served the Seventh Ward for eight years as its alderman and is presently a committeeman in the ward. He was elected majority leader of the Common Council in 1961 and chaired the Urban Renewal and Building and Supply Committees in addition to serving on the Finance, Ways and Means Committee.

An IBM employee for the past 17 years, Sass is married to the former Betty Fassbender. The couple has four children.

He is a parishioner of St. Peter's Church, belongs to its Holy Name Society, Knights of Columbus, American Legion, the "50" Club, the IBM Club and Rescue Hook and Ladder fire company.

Pap test

She's a woman with everything to live for. That's why a Pap test is as much a concern to her as her appearance.

So, once a year, out of her busy world of fashion, she sees her doctor for a complete physical check-up—including a Pap test. It's a simple, painless 10-minute test for cancer of the uterus.

She knows that when you have everything to live for, you don't risk it all for the sake of 10 minutes. We wish more women felt that way.

Uterine cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths among women 20 to 34 years of age. 44,000 women develop it each year, and 14,000 of them die.

And the really tragic part is that if every woman took ten minutes once a year for a Pap test, the inroads of this kind of cancer could virtually be halted.

For more information call your physician or the New York City Division of the American Cancer Society at PL 9-3500.

Negro College

A Negro educator called on American corporations and civic minded men of wealth to go to the aid of Negro colleges so that they may, progress and enable the black student to be completely equal in the academic marketplace.

Dr. Robert L. Owens, III, president of Knoxville College, Tenn., speaking at a luncheon in Pittsburgh for the United Negro College Fund, said "We don't want to go into the world of today half-baked." Although the entrance requirements of black colleges are sometimes lower because of the poor quality of education in ghetto school areas, the colleges often offer remedial courses to aid freshmen in doing college-level work.

Most private college students now pay $3,000 a year and state college students pay more than $2,000 a year, where as the UNCF enables black students, many of whom are poor, to pay only about $1,300. And every one of these students of black colleges can make a contribution to America.

The nationwide goal for this year's UNCF drive is $6.5 million. It would aid 36 colleges and universities, mostly in the South, with heavy black enrollments. It is money well spent. Training and education, those are the tools to help blacks find a place in the world today.

Costly 'Hot Pursuit'

Each year 500 or more Americans are killed in "hot pursuit" of errant motorists by police. Twice as many sustain major injuries. The pity is that most of the lawbreakers involved are guilty of minor traffic offenses.

In the first report known to have been made of the toll of life and injury in hot pursuits, an organization known as Physicians for Automotive Safety reported on a survey made between April and June last year. In 512 hot pursuit cases, 119 persons lost their lives and 272 sustained serious injuries. Of the deaths, 52 were drivers of pursued cars, 33 were passengers in cars being pursued, 23 were passengers in other vehicles, five were pedestrians and five policemen.

Since seven out of 10 pursuits end in accidents with death and injury for those involved and innocent bystanders, it is obvious that this is a pretty sad way to enforce traffic laws. Especially when in only one per cent of the cases was someone in the car wanted for a violent crime, although 20 per cent of the pursued cars had been stolen.

The physicians urge that hot pursuit be limited to cars in which violent crimes have been committed, and then not in residential and densely populated areas. There must be better ways to recover stolen cars.

New Horsepower Race

What is this younger generation coming to?

Police in Middlefield, Ohio, cited two Amish youths for drag racing their buggies at 35 m.p.h. Speed limit for horse-drawn vehicles is 7 m.p.h.

A 17-year-old Amish boy from Geauga County, Ohio, was charged with reckless driving of his buggy in an accident in which he struck a motorcycle.

These Amish kids are letting horsepower go to their heads.

Flower Power of Empire

It used to be said: "The Sun Never Sets on the British Empire" but it has been sinking for a long time.

It must have hit rock bottom the other day when, in an affair called "Society Wedding of the Year," a socially-prominent couple were united. The bridegroom reportedly wore his mother's diamond necklace and held hands with the best man, who wore a flowered caftan over orange trousers.

And the queen attended!

The 3 to 2 vote by which Adam Clayton Powell won the Democratic nomination for Congress in a district where he was once unchallenged showed that Harlem is disenfranchised with him. None would be quoted, but Harlem leaders felt Powell had nearly licked himself.

Senator Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon endorsed Richard M. Nixon as "the man who could lead us out of Vietnam," by providing the leadership needed to successfully resolve the Vietnam conflict. That is a big change for a man who was elected on his opposition to the war.

Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy's mail is running at 25,000 letters a day from all corners of this country and the world. It recalls the flood of 40,000 letters a day immediately after President Kennedy's death. The sympathy and admiration bring solace to the bereaved widow.

"Hey, Sonny, Got a Few Rocks Left?"

David Lawrence Says Acute Need to Mobilize Mankind's Moral Forces

WASHINGTON — Twice in this century peoples have wishfully persuaded themselves that big wars were far distant and that they would somehow be prevented. But World War I and World War II came anyway, and their tragic consequences have never been erased. Friction and conflicts are again emerging in central Europe, as well as in Southeast Asia and the Middle East. The peoples of the world, however, are once more not fully aware of the dangers that confront them.

It is apparent that the negotiations in Paris on the Vietnam war are not succeeding. Diplomacy requires much versatility, but this does not necessarily assure a successful result. Just seven years before World War II broke out, a keen observer of world affairs wrote a salient truth, as he said: "The successful sale of diplomatic negotiations and the peace and welfare of vast nations often hang upon the finding of just the right formula, in words, which will smooth down the ruffled feathers and bristling hair, and draw back into their sheaths and outflung claws, talons, beaks, fangs, of all the 'human' eagles, bears and lions concerned."

There is an acute need today not merely for dedicated conciliators but for the mobilization of the moral forces of mankind. Never before have the heads of governments, large and small, possessed such an opportunity to appeal to humanity. President Johnson could, for example, urge the leaders of the principal religions of the world to meet in Paris and there unite in a prayerful search for peace in Vietnam. This would make a profound impression everywhere. Internal peace is directly related to economic conditions. As they grow worse, a feeling is created that military force is the only way to acquire benefits for the individual. What could be offered, therefore, which would promise a brighter future than a united Vietnam rehabilitated on a strong economic foundation? The whole world would stand ready to furnish the material means of providing a better life for the 16,000,000 South Vietnamese and the 19,000,000 North Vietnamese.

Spiritual leaders of Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas, dedicated to the concept of brotherhood as revealed in the teachings of all religions, could open up the way to a worldwide demand for a fair and honorable peace. Bhagwan Das, the noted Hindu scholar, in his book entitled "The Essential Unity of All Religions," made this significant comment nearly four decades ago:

"It is common knowledge that Asiatic thought is eminently coloured by religion; as modern European thought is by science. All the great living religions are of Asiatic origin; also almost all the historical great dead religions. The personal, domestic, and social life of the Hindu is largely governed by the rules of what he regards as his religion. So is that of the Muslim. So of the Jew. So of the Confucian.

So was, and to a considerable extent still is, that of the Christian belonging to the Roman Catholic form of Christianity. Such also is the case with the followers of the other and reforms of the Vedic religion, known as the Zoroastrian, the Buddhist, the Jaina, the Sikh, though perhaps the element of ritual is less prominent, and that of these, in accordance with the very principle of reform."

The truth is the individual religions of the world are not utilizing effectively today their great power to inspire an honorable means of achieving and maintaining peace in the world. The "golden rule" and the basic laws of a well-ordered society and their origins in scriptures written some 20,000 years ago — indeed, more than 80 centuries before the birth of Christ. The intervening centuries have contributed a most remarkable influx of religious thought and aspirations in many countries far distant from each other. Yet, through all these years, the basic precepts, derived in the western world from the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, have too often been ignored.

If only the religious leaders of the various nations of the earth would petition their governments to enter negotiations for world peace and solemnly proclaim obedience to the universal mandate — "thou shalt not kill" — there truly would be less and less fear and the frictions and quarrels of today would evolve into another world war.

Contests for the Presidency

Nominating System Fair 'Filter'

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Nothing is quite so far off the mark as the complaints from such sources as the St. Louis Post Dispatch and James Reston of the New York Times that the democratic process is failing because it seems on the way to nominating Richard Nixon and Vice President Humphrey for the presidency.

At the heart of these and other criticisms is the argument that these two quite familiar faces are about to be nominated because of the dark plotting of "machine politicians" whose whole purpose is to thwart the will of the American people.

The truth is that the system serves quite well any interested Americans who are willing to use it. Just days before the 1960 Democratic convention in Los Angeles, former President Harry Truman announced he would not attend because it was "rigged" in the late John F. Kennedy's favor. Truman's choice was Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York.

In fact, Kennedy was far in the lead and was victorious over Symington, Lyndon B. Johnson and Adlai Stevenson (not to mention Humphrey much earlier), because he had done well all the things the "system" requires.

He won seven straight primaries and piled up mountains of other votes by winning state conventions in many places. He traveled the country endlessly, demonstrating convincingly his broad popularity within the Democratic party. Others, especially Humphrey, Johnson and Symington, tried some or all of these standard techniques and failed.

At the last, in the convention hall admittedly packed by use of fake tickets, the Stevensons tried by sheer vocal clamor to overturn in a few hours a result that had been many months in the making by a normal democratic process. They dared to shout "foul" when the delegates ignored this magic evidence that the "people" wanted Stevenson.

In 1964 there was much groaning and moaning in some quarters when the Republican convention at San Francisco nominated Barry Goldwater by a margin of nearly 4 to 1 over his nearest rival, William Scranton of Pennsylvania.

But, once again, the Goldwater forces triumphed because they had done the things the democratic system calls for and the others had not. True, his victories in primaries were few and generally meager, but he won the big one in California and captured a long string of state conventions.

Meantime, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York was mostly failing at the same process, and the timid GOP moderates who wanted somebody else to challenge Goldwater could not agree on another choice until, just six weeks to go, Scranton leaped into battle—only to mount one of the most inept campaigns ever seen in modern party history.

This complaint that the process is not working when it seems to be producing a one-sided contest or what some critics think is an "unpopular" choice really should be directed against faint-hearted, unenergetic Americans—not against the system.

The year 1952 is a perfect illustration of how a tough, exciting, two-sided contest for the presidency can be brought right to the door of the convention hall if interested Americans really work at it and have genuinely viable candidates to support.

From late 1950 on, partisans of both Dwight D. Eisenhower and the late Robert A. Taft plunged in with full resources to get the nomination in 1952 for their man. Both sides worked like tigers, both won some primaries and many state conventions, both canvassed the country thoroughly.

They used the democratic process as it was meant to be used. When they got to Chicago, they were nearly even in votes and gave the nation one of the most meaningful and thrilling exhibitions of real political rivalry in history.

Drew Pearson Says Amateur Diplomat Johnson Handles Diplomacy With Soviet

WASHINGTON—The details of the historic breakthrough with Soviet Russia on disarmament will not be told until the usual period of State Department waiting—about ten years.

When it is finally told, however, it will reveal that the progress toward better understanding between the world's two great nuclear powers was due almost entirely to the dogged determination of one man—Lyndon Johnson.

Almost bare-handed he achieved the significant assent from the Soviet Union which may hasten the day when the two countries will no longer face a bristling array of opposing intercontinental missiles. Johnson has never been noted as a diplomat or international expert in the past. However, he became convinced that the peace of the world depended on better understanding between the world's two strongest powers, and he applied the same kind of Texas selling that he used as Senate Majority Leader when he wanted to pass a difficult bill. He kept up a constant barrage of personal letters, personal talks, messages through ambassadors to Moscow, all aimed at this objective.

History will show that the President's push toward better understanding actually began about two years ago when he had a long talk with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Gromyko was in New York for the UN General Assembly meeting and came to Washington, at the President's invitation, for a long confidential discussion.

They spent almost two hours together canvassing every important aspect of Russian-American relations, including Vietnam. One point raised by Gromyko was that the United States had built so many warehouses, air bases and other installations in South Vietnam that nobody believed we would ever pull out. It was after this conversation that the President made his Manila declaration that we would pull out six months after a peace was signed.

Russian sources reported that Gromyko seemed to be impressed by Johnson's directness and his blunt desire for better understanding.

Kosygin Was Reluctant

The second main chapter in the President's drive to woo Soviet Russia took place with Premier Alexei Kosygin at the famous Glassboro Conference one year ago. Kosygin appeared friendly when talking to Johnson; but went back to New York to repeat the party line about American imperialism. It was obvious that his hands were tied by the Kremlin.

After the President announced his big decision on March 31 both not to run again and to hold truce talks, relations with Moscow improved.

And the President's drive for better understanding also increased. Though some newsmen have talked about the slowing up of a lame-duck President, actually the White House tempo regarding international affairs has increased.

Not having to worry about domestic politics, Johnson has concentrated most of his energy on foreign affairs.

It would have been easy for any chief executive to be distracted by the war in Vietnam and neglect the broader, more important objective of world peace. Johnson, however, kept hammering away on this main goal, despite discouraging initial cracks from the Kremlin.

To this end he delivered three speeches this spring. He spoke at Glassboro on the anniversary of this conference with Kosygin, went up to the United Nations to commemorate the signing of the non-proliferation pact, finally made a statement when the USA-USSR Consular Treaty was signed.

With each of these he took a certain amount of political risk, both at home and abroad, and got some sour feedback from Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

This, however, did not discourage him.

In between the three speeches Johnson also wrote to Premier Kosygin personally. The letters have not been made public, out of deference to the Russians. However, this column can reveal that the theme which the President constantly emphasized was that "now is the time for us to move, this is the way for our two countries to go."

There are still some diplomatic hurdles to overcome before the USA and the USSR get down to productive disarmament talks. But judging by Foreign Minister Gromyko's favorable speech, it looks as if the persistent amateur diplomacy of the man in the White House is paying off.

Gas Pipeline Lobby has been working at high speed behind the scenes in Capitol Hill, and its effectiveness was shown in the debate last week on the pipeline safety bill.

Despite the increased number of pipeline explosions and resulting deaths, five Congressmen took the floor to argue against the strict Senate bill already passed by the upper body, requiring federal inspection and federal safety standards.

Those who spoke out for the pipelines were Democrats Ed Edmondson from the gas-producing state of Oklahoma, and Jake Pickle, from the gas-producing state of Texas; together with Republicans James Broyhill of North Carolina, Clarence Brown of Ohio and Dan Rostenkowski of Tennessee. Kuykendall ridiculed those who urged strong pipeline inspection as "victims of hysteria."

Those who championed the public's right to have strong inspection and safe pipelines included Brock Adams, Wash., Richard Ottinger, N.Y., and Torbert MacDonald, Mass., all Democrats. Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee, seems to be wavering, has not taken a stand for a strong bill.

Henry J. Taylor Says Self-Appraisal Long Overdue

St. Francis' gentle notation "to seek to understand as well as to be understood" is a vital need in our Negro communities. The only real hope for good neighborliness is that soul-searching and self-appraisal become a two-way street; by Negroes themselves as well as by the white majority.

The probability of bad neighborliness is increased by the relentless reiteration that white bigotry and racism by whites are at the root of all the Negroes' problems. It is increased by the television super-coverage of the demands for "Black Power" and by pounding home the untrue assumption that most Negroes live wretched lives and that their lives are going from bad to worse.

Coupled with this, the prevailing approach to poverty and all Negro questions is so emotional, and the subject has been made so sacrosanct that the roof is sure to fall in on anyone who even mentions the need for Negro self-appraisal.

The need was exemplified in Resurrection City. And the first step is to refuse to permit the self-appraisal requirement to be any longer "too hot to handle."

When Alvin Johnson, a Negro, quit as chief security marshal for Resurrection City on June 21, he stated: "The reason the city's population is going down is not mud, poor food, rain or lousy houses. It is because men are getting tired of coming home from a day's picketing to find their belongings stolen or their wife raped. The only thing that keeps this camp going is donations of goods and work from white people. I can't understand my black brothers here."

Grant Wright, also a Negro, acting chief of the park police, castigated those who blame everything on whites and pointed with dismay to the 100 or so assaults within the camp itself and the number of visitors who have been robbed, stabbed or shot by its residents. "Tragically, this may become known as Blood City instead of Resurrection City," Wright said.

There is an old Latin truth that we carry our own faults in a sack behind our back and the faults of others in a sack in front of our eyes. This is not a white failing, or a black failing; it is a famous human failing. And although a white writer could not say it without scathing denunciation, both these worried, courageous Negroes stated that Negro self-appraisal is long overdue.

Courageous Adlai Stevenson touched on another phase of this when he warned against the preachment by the late

Dr. Martin Luther King and others that breaking the law "in a good cause" is permissible.

Even at the moment of the ghastly Memphis horror which cost Dr. King his life he had said, when a judge forbade the march, "No judge is going to turn us around." But, significantly, the 400,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal employees had staged 76 illegal strikes in the past two years. One was this 65-day strike by 1,300 Negro garbage men in Memphis.

Dr. King and others succeeded in convincing many well-intentioned people, and encouraging those not well-intended, that "bad laws" ought to be broken and that the violator should decide which laws are bad.

Yet great jurist Learned Hand once said with such evident rightness: "A society in which men recognize no check on their freedoms soon becomes a society in which freedom is the possession solely of the lawless few."

Only a lawful society can build a better society.

They are buried behind the lawless few that TV features, but all independent polls confirm that millions of every race and color bitterly resent public officials who lack courage enough to stand up against intimidation, and legislators who lack courage enough to enact laws that will protect them from anarchy. The overwhelming majority of Negroes want more police protection in their own communities. Anarchy is what the Negroes fear, and even fear, as do we all.

Millions as are alarmed as Alvin Johnson or Grant Wright were in Resurrection City. And to the extent that these two worried, courageous Negroes may help to highlight the need for Negro self-appraisal, they make an important contribution to the welfare of our country that is the mother of us all.

Visitor From Planet Auronde
Editor, The Freeman

Last week I chanced to meet a being from the planet Auronde, part of the Tau Ceti system. He was making a reconnaissance of Earth preparatory to establishing diplomatic relations if reasonably intelligent life were found here.

"Yours is an impossible planet," the citizen of Auronde told me. "The first time our people visited Earth the place was lousy with dinosaurs tearing up the countryside and each other. We waited out their racial senescence period and now, five thousand Auronde years later, I find the planet crawling with humans who are also busy tearing up the globe and killing each other. It is the strangest case of progressive evolution in the galaxy."

"How do you happen to be in this particular city?" I asked.

Kingston is the source of so much radio noise so I naturally assumed this to be your Royal City. I should have landed in Moscow! Your king, Raymond the First, so badly confused my translation machine it blew several circuits. Your chief propagandist, Sir Harry Thayer, pulled a sling-shot from his hip-pocket and shot my navigator. You see, sir, our spaceships use pigeons for guidance by wiring their brains to a special computer. In order for me to get back home I need another pigeon."

And that, ladies and gentlemen, is what the pigeon trap is really for. Our fine elected officials wouldn't be so cruel as to send them off to be used as live targets. Of course not.

The Aurondian Citizen said another excursion would be sent to Earth when our period is up and the dolphins have assumed the position of supreme mammal on Earth. He shook his head and said sadly, "Considering your love of killing each other and all that is around you and what happens when Nature is tampered with too greatly, well, I could be back in less than one Aurondian year."

Sincerely,
DON OCKER.

Dog Ordinance in Ulster

The new Town of Ulster ordinance restricting dogs from running at large and placing responsibility of damage on the owners became effective this weekend.

Town Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz said today that residents must keep their pets under control in accordance with the regulations in the new town law. He said the County SPCA and town constables will be patrolling the township to enforce the ordinance.

Penalties for violations include the following: first offense not less than $10 fine and not more than $25; second offense, at least $15 fine and not more than $150 or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days, or both.

The new ordinance was approved by the Town Board on June 6 and became effective 10 days after publication on June 18.

For the purposes of the law, the owner shall be the person who licensed the dog, or for unlicensed pets, the one harboring the dog.

Securely Confined

Confinement of dogs under the ordinance will mean such animals shall be securely confined or restrained and kept on the owner's premises either within a building kennel or wire or other suitable enclosure or securely fastened to a chain, wire or other effective tether of such length and so arranged that the animal cannot reach or endanger any person or any adjacent premises or on any public street, way or place, or if the animal is being transported by the owner, that it is securely confined in a crate or other container, or so restrained in a vehicle that it cannot escape.

A dog that is a public nuisance as described under the law is one which seriously and habitually disturbs the peace and quiet of the neighborhood by barking or howling or making other disturbing noises. Or any animal which habitually chases any persons or bicycles, automobiles or other vehicles upon any public highway or in any such public place.

Also any dog which causes damage or destruction to property upon the premises other than that of the owner or person harboring such animal.

The owner's responsibility is outlined as follows: The owner of every animal which is at anytime kept, brought or comes into the town will be held responsible for the strict observance by such animal and with respect to such animal of all the rules and regulations in the ordinance.

The section on controlling dogs specifies that no person who owns a dog in the Town of Ulster shall permit such dog to be at large unless said dog is restrained by an adequate collar and leash or unless accompanied by its owner or a responsible person able to control the animal other than when on the premises of the person owning, keeping, harboring, or having the custody and control of such animal, or on the premises of another with the knowledge, consent and approval of the property owner, or when hunting in the company and under the control of a hunter or hunters.

The ordinance provides for the appointment of a dog warden and also designates all town constables to serve as dog wardens as needed. There are also sections in the law providing for abandoned dogs, redemption of seized dogs and humane treatment of animals. Copies of the dog ordinance may be obtained at Town of Ulster office, Vincent Street.

Congress Asked to End Cigarette Commercials

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Citing what it called evidence of new links between smoking and fatal disease, the government has asked Congress to outlaw radio and television cigarette commercials and require stronger health warnings in other advertising.

In separate recommendations Monday, the Health, Education and Welfare Department called for a "death" warning on cigarette packages and ads, and the Federal Trade Commission went farther and urged a ban on all cigarette commercials.

HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen said the current package warning reading "Caution: Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health" should be replaced with one saying: "Warning: Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer and other diseases."

Life Expectancy Cut

Cohen, citing a new study by the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, said there was now evidence young men who are heavy smokers lose four years in life expectancy and light smokers lose two.

Heavy smoking was defined as two packs a day, light smoking less than half a pack. In addition to the link with lung cancer—first asserted by a surgeon general's report four years ago—smoking can contribute to death from coronary heart disease and to the development of cardiovascular disease, Cohen said.

He said some of the harmful effects appear to be reversible after the smoker quits.

The initial surgeon general's report touched off a flurry of legislative proposals that ended with enactment of the cigarette package labeling requirement in 1965.

Cohen and all five members of the FTC concurred in proposing the new health warning for packages, recommending that it also be required in all cigarette ads in print or on the air, and urging that both packages and ads be required to carry the brand's tar and nicotine content.

The absolute prohibition of cigarette commercials was recommended by the FTC alone on a 3 to 2 vote.

The commission said that on an average, Americans see 66.75 cigarette commercials on television a month.

The FTC also called for federal funds for the National Institute of Health to develop a less hazardous cigarette.

Sheriff Praises Chaplaincy Plan

Sheriff William B. Martin of Ulster County was the special speaker at the June meeting of the Kingston Area Council of Churches recently at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts Street.

Sheriff Martin had been invited by the president of the council, the Rev. William A. Studwell, to help evaluate the Institutional Chaplaincy program initiated by the council last September.

The Rev. C. F. Yohe, a Methodist minister who had for years been an Army Chaplain before serving parishes in the greater New York Area, was employed by the Council of Churches on an experimental basis to visit regularly in the Ulster County Jail and to visit the unchurched sick in both Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals. A report from Chaplain Yohe was read to the assembled delegates by the president. In the report, it was stated that the chaplaincy in the jail seemed to provide a good ministry to inmates, giving them an opportunity to talk, to rectify miscarriages of justice, and to provide a helpful link with the families of the prisoners. The Rev. Mr. Yohe also said he had made over 1200 calls in the hospital during the nine month period. Sheriff Martin told the council members that he was pleased to have the opportunity to pay tribute to the unique ministry of Chaplain Yohe in the Ulster County Jail. He said that at first he was skeptical of the value of a clergyman hanging around the cell block almost every day of the week. "Now," he said, "I wish there were some way in which I could legally make him a deputy or some sort of permanent staff member at the jail." Chaplain Yohe was given great praise by the sheriff for the liaison he provided between the prisoners and the staff, for the books and magazines he distributed for the personal contact he made possible with difficult family problems. The Sheriff urged the Council of Churches to continue the ministry, on a year-round basis if possible. He also said that he would like to see other county jails institute such a chaplaincy.

The Council will make every effort to continue the chaplaincy, the Rev. Mr. Studwell said but there will have to be more support from member congregations. The treasurer, Earl Little reported that only seven of the 19 churches have paid their apportionments for 1968.

Intensify Search

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Rochester area police intensified their search today for one of two escapees from the Monroe County penitentiary after the capture of Dallas Simon in Rochester.

Simon, 18, was apprehended by Willie Brown, a correctional officer, and a companion after they went to a vacant building on Clinton Avenue North on a tip, police said.

A second man, believed to be John Woodruff, 30, the other escapee, avoided capture at the same time as Simon by jumping from a second floor window of the building and fleeing through nearby yards, they said.

Mushrooms are raised in hundreds of miles of mushroom beds in caves, tunnels and sheds in the suburbs of Paris.

point where the drowning occurred was 6 to 8 miles an hour. The tragedy occurred in the river adjacent to the Hansel and Gretel Hotel. The victim had been vacationing with relatives in the area, authorities were told.

A 16-year-old Sullivan County youth accidentally drowned in the swift-flowing Neversink River near the community of Old Falls Monday night while he was swimming in a pool under a bridge with several friends and a cousin.

Police said the body of Curtis Dennis Gilmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Gilmore of Woodbourne, was recovered about an hour-and-a-half after he disappeared below the surface. The recovery was made by Paul Kaplan, 19, of Woodridge, who used scuba diving equipment.

Chief of Police Seymour Farber said the body was found face down on the bottom of the stream about 150 feet from where the youth disappeared. Gilmore had been swimming in the pool with his cousin, Alfonso Gilmore, 17, and friends when he was drowned.

Dr. Stanley D. Friedman of Woodridge went to the scene and pronounced Gilmore, a Fallsburg high school student, dead.

Second in Region
Gilmore's death was the second drowning in the region in two days. Norman Cooper, 14, of Washingtonville, drowned while swimming with friends at Walton Lake on Sunday.

Another upstate drowning mishap occurred on Monday near the Erie County community of Bowmansville. Ernest Rupe, 46, of that town, apparently drowned when he slipped and fell into Tonawanda Creek while trying to untie a mooring line on a boat docked at a shoreline restaurant.

Dr. Johnston, City Native, Dies in Croton

Dr. C. Victor Johnston, 74, of Albany Post Road, Croton-on-Hudson died Monday at his residence. He had lived in Croton for the past 44 years and had practiced dentistry in New York City for the past 50 years.

He was born in Kingston, November 5, 1894, the son of William G. and Emily Treleas Johnston. He is survived by his widow Elsie Ruth Johnston; a son, William E. of Croton-on-Hudson and three grandchildren. He graduated from Harvard University and the Harvard Dental School. He was a member of Delta Sigma Delta, the New York Academy of Dentistry, and the First District Dental Society of New York City.

During World War II he served as a first lieutenant in the Dental Corps in France. He was also a member of the First Baptist Church of Ossining.

Funeral services will be held from the Waterbury and Kelly Funeral Home, 45 South Highland Avenue, Ossining, on Friday at 9 a. m. with the Rev. Dr. Daniel D. Brox, interim pastor of the First Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in Montrose Cemetery, Kingston, on Friday at 1:15 p. m. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p. m.

Michael Turck Dies, City's Oldest at 105

Michael Turck, Kingston's oldest resident, died early today at the age of 105. He had been ill for 15 years.

Mr. Turck was honored at a large celebration on his 104th birthday, Feb. 13, 1967, held at the Ulster County Infirmary where he was confined.

Born in Italy in 1863, he was the son of the late Nicholas and Mary Benicase Turck. He came to this country and to Kingston at an early age and was employed in the brick-making industry. His wife, the former Theresa Carpio, died in 1950.

Although a resident of convalescent homes, he was able to be up and enjoy family and friends until recently.

Surviving are a brother, Frank Turck of Kingston and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral for Mr. Turck, who was a member of St. Mary's Benevolent Society, will be held at the Frank H. Simpson Funeral Home, 411 Albany Avenue, Friday at 9:15 a. m., thence to St. Mary's Church where at 10 a. m. a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul.

Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday and Thursday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

TODAY'S THOUGHT
By JIM GILPATRIC

July 4, 1776, seems a long time ago. But, when you arbitrarily consider age 70 a life time, our nation was born less than three life times ago. As a young nation, we had and still have pernicious and persistent diseases with our growing up pains. We seem to sway and swagger at times but somehow manage to stay on our feet in freedom. In our growing (and groaning at times), we Americans recorded an unmatched national growth from rags to riches, from poverty to power.

Do you ever wonder what life may be like in another three life times hence? Will our descendants be able to change laws by changing the men who make them? Will they be self disciplined in freedom or chained in regimentation? Will they consider our 20th Century reputation, and their own, as a precious legacy? Will they live in confusion, uncertain whether they should follow their consciences, uncertain whether they should obey God? In expanded scientific achievement, will they think their human adequacies can supply easy answers to hard questions?

Come to think of it, most of these questions are not 200 years ahead of time. The right answers and right action in our time could help simplify answers to other questions, come July 4, 2176. . . .

Trash Cleanup Topic of Ellenville Village Board

By CHARLES BREMPOHL
Trash cleanup and continued building were the major concerns of the Ellenville Village Board, meeting for some two and one-half hours last night in the second floor courtroom of the new municipal building on Main Street.

Cleanup, or village beautification, was an important topic and discussion between board members and attending area residents led to heated exchanges.

It was Rivan Krieger who opened up on the board with charges of laxity regarding traffic congestion, pigeon dung, substandard housing, dying trees along Main Street, broken curbs, trash on lawns and in alleyways, intoxicated derelicts, shopping carts abandoned throughout the village, and "a lack of protection of real property."

Village Trustee Edwin E. Hoar turned to Krieger and said, "You have been harassing the board for some time now," and he went on the claim that Krieger's sole purpose was harassment only.

DeWitt Clinton, another trustee, said, "He is right on some things," and the official read from a long list of alleged trash violations giving the names of merchants and residents throughout the village who reportedly broke ordinances of long standing.

As for "drunken derelicts," it was brought out that village police reported 75 drunks arrested in June and 520 drunks arrested for public intoxication in 1967.

Word From Glusker
Mayor Eugene Glusker, presiding over the meeting, stressed that village cleanup was on its way and that arrangements had been made with Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company for the removal of 56 trees.

Mrs. Evelyn Albert who, along with her husband, Sol, are owners of the burned-out Albert's Bakery, claimed that the couple's establishment had been unfairly cited by board members for trash violations. She claimed that urban renewal demolition had made a "dust bowl" of the area surrounding her establishment and that, as far as trash removal, "We try to get the garbage away as soon as possible."

Mrs. Albert declared that she and her husband had been in business for "20 years in Ellenville" and that "I just paid $1,000 in taxes today."

Sol Albert claimed that the board was "holding us back from going into business."

Will Renovate Site
Board members, including Mayor Glusker, said that the board was doing everything feasible to get the couple back into business and it was finally resolved to let the couple renovate their establishment, rather than relocate them, which would have meant considerable cost to the village.

There was some discussion on the 911 emergency code dialing system and Mayor Glusker suggested the project be a joint venture between the Town of Wawarsing and Ellenville.

Trustee Walter V. Grey said that prefix number 647 would be able to dial 911 in emergencies, a code area roughly spanning from Wawarsing to Summitville or Spring Glen.

He also claimed that local prefix 626 would be able to use the new dialing system, recently installed in New York City, but that possibly another dispatcher would have to be hired by the village.

One area resident pointed out that the Wawarsing State headquarters of the N.Y. State Police was very difficult to contact during most of the day and that what usually happened was that the Ferndale State Police would have to be called in emergencies.

It was resolved that, in order to avoid overloading local police with 911 calls, the matter would have to be further studied and the Wawarsing Town Board would be contacted over the matter of the joint venture.

The board moved that more money be borrowed on a revenue anticipation note effecting village sewage and water, with $40,000 to be borrowed on sewers and $25,000 on water.

This was a renewal on monies already borrowed.

The board agreed to a proposal put forth by Village Engineer Aaron Horowitz to build 450 feet of new street to replace 450 feet of Berne Road. The new street would be an extension off Broadhead Street as it forms an intersection with Canal Street.

The project would mean the tearing down of several old sheds and buildings owned by Harris Kass, including the historic gate building at one of the canal locks.

There was some discussion about the possibility of moving the gate building and relocating it, because of its historic significance.

No Estimated Cost.

As yet, there has been no estimated cost for the new street project.

In other action, the board agreed to pay for 35 sheets of plywood at 35 cents a sheet to be used for a ball park for a new softball league.

The new league is to start playing July 14.

It was reported that the league would have insurance policies on its playing members but that the town would have to provide insurance for the spectators.

Four bids were received on a three-quarter ton dump truck for the village.

Bird Ford Inc., in Kerhonkson, was low bidder at $3,407.34.

The truck will be a four wheel drive pickup.

Three Arrested After Chase In Stolen Car

Two sheriff's deputies with an assist from city police and Ellenville troopers halted three town of Rochester young men in a stolen car late Monday night in a 100-mile-per-hour chase that started in Kingston and moved through five townships before the chase came to a halt on Main Street, High Falls.

The three arrested at 12:25 a.m. today for grand larceny, third degree are Donald Smith, 20 of Accord; Terry V. Shultis, 18 and Samuel F. Weinder, 20, both of Kerhonkson. They were arraigned before Town of Kingston Justice Robert A. Ferrigan. Each asked for a preliminary hearing which was set for Wednesday 7:30 p.m.

They were committed to county jail in lieu of $1,000 bail each. Sheriff's Deputies Harold Dohnken and Fred Smith said more charges are pending. The original charge stemmed from the theft of a 1964 Ford stolen in Ellenville from James Barringer of Kerhonkson, and used in the high speed ride through the city and southern part of the county.

The deputies said they spotted the car with the three young men in the city proceeding at a high rate of speed. They immediately alerted city police and gave chase. The fleeing vehicle moved at about 80 miles-per-hour through the city, down Washington Avenue and headed for old Route 209. The deputies chased the car through Hurley and they alerted Ellenville troopers that the car was heading southwest on Route 209. By that time the two vehicles were exceeding 100-mile-per-hour speeds. State police set up roadblocks forcing the fleeing car into High Falls where the deputies brought them to a halt.

Suspends Fines Against the Penn Central

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)—U.S. District Court Judge John O. Henderson Monday suspended fines totaling $7,500 against the Penn Central Railroad.

The railroad was originally ordered to pay the fines after it pleaded guilty to three counts of oil pollution in the Buffalo area.

Henderson suspended the levies after a spokesman for the line told the court it has spent $40,000 in the past year to prevent further oil pollution from its Gardenville freight yard in suburban West Seneca.

In a related action, Acting U. S. Attorney Thomas A. Kennedy announced a crackdown on other polluters.

He issued a statement saying Lake Erie and other waterways belong to the people and that industrial firms responsible for pollution of the waters will be prosecuted.

Action Group Announces New Site for Office

Mrs. Grace Janitz, president of the Ontario Family Service Center Advisory Board announced today that the field office of the Ulster County Community Action Committee in Poughkeepsie has moved to the Phoenicia Hotel on Main Street.

Mrs. Alice Ferraiolo, community organizer for the Ontario Family Service Center, and Miss Pat Weeks, neighborhood aide, can be contacted at the office weekdays between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

An open meeting on housing is planned along with discussion on a teenage center in the Town of Phoenicia.

Ulster County Community Action Committee, Inc. is a private non-profit corporation that has been designated by the Ulster County Legislature to administer and conduct anti-poverty efforts in the County.

The Phoenicia office was first opened in late March, 1967 at the Parish Hall of St. Francis de Sales Church. During the first year of operations it answered 2,037 requests for assistance from residents of the towns of Shandaken, Olive, and Woodstock. The committee also sponsors the headstart programs conducted at the Phoenicia and Bennett schools by the Ontario Central School District. It is joint sponsor with the YMCA of Ulster County and Kingston of the Neighborhood Youth Corps Program.

City Awards Spartan Pool $14,747 Contract

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan announced today that Spartan Pools Inc. of Kingston has been awarded a $14,747 contract to build a steel swimming pool at Kingston Point Park.

The pool will measure 50 by 20 feet and will be three and a half feet deep. It will be used primarily to teach children how to swim.

Work is scheduled to begin this Friday and be finished next Friday, Garraghan said. The pool is being built under a State Conservation Department program whereby the state pays half the cost of the pool now and the city its half next year.

The mayor indicated that if the pool proves popular enough he will consider the possibility of setting up similar pools in other parts of the city.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices today opened mixed in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Shortly after the opening bell, the United Press International stock market indicator had advanced 0.11 per cent with 467 issues crossing the tape. There were 200 advances and 137 declines.

General Motors opened unchanged at 79½. Chrysler fell ½ to 61½. Ford lost ¼ to 51½. Steels also moved in a narrow range. Armco gained ½ to 52½. U.S. Steel was unchanged at 39½. Inland shed a small fraction.

American Telephone & Telegraph opened up ½ at 51½. Eastman Kodak lost ¼ to 79 in the chemicals. Du Pont was unchanged at 158. Boeing dipped ½ to 63½ in the narrowly moving aircrafts.

Montgomery Ward, which plans to merge with Container Corp., climbed 1 to 33. Loew's Theatres, which admitted failure of its bid for Commercial Credit, lost 1 to 81½. Control Data, which is apparently the successful bidder for Commercial, tacked on ½ to 147½.

Quotations by Hertz, Warner & Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange, Kingston Branch, 15 Albany Avenue, Kingston, N. Y., David W. Hoffman, manager.

Slow Progress

BANGALORE, India (AP) — Official red tape "strangles" India's advancement, Mysore state's former chief minister, Siddhavanahalli Nijalingappa, said.

Now president of the ruling Congress Party, he quoted the example of a local industrialist who applied for permission to build a bone meal factory.

It took the government one year to grant what "could have been done in a week," he said.

Local Firemen In Newburgh For Gas School

A fire conference was held Saturday at Stewart Air Force Base in Newburgh, by the New York State Liquid Propane Gas Association. This conference dealt with L.P. Gas fire fighting and fire protection. Ten members of the Kingston Paid Fire Department attended this seminar voluntarily and on their off-duty time.

The group consisted of Fire Captain Hugh Greer, Lt. Philip Greer, fire fighters Conrad Remus, William Loeffler, William Hornbeck, William Schwerdtfeger, Gordon Purhamus, Frank Purcell, Frank Ostrander and Francis Diamond. The session was from 7 p. m. covered several workshops climaxed by a demonstration of fire fighting technique by the base fire fighting personnel.

It was the opinion of those present that this session was of great value in making those in attendance better acquainted with the safe method of combating L.P. gas fires. In the near future it is hoped that a fire training session can be arranged for in aircraft firefighting and rescue procedures.

Dangerous Job

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A postman's lot is not a happy one in South Africa's largest city. The Johannesburg Post Office reports that since January, 11 of its 600 letter carriers were bitten by dogs, one tumbled over pipes in a new building and another fell four flights after slipping on a banana peel. Five others had mishaps on delivery scooters including one postman who collided with a car while watching a pretty girl in a miniskirt.

Three Injured, Person Cited In Highland

Three persons were injured and one was cited for a vehicle and traffic law violation following a two-car collision on Route 9W at the intersection of Route 44-55, Town of Lloyd, according to Highland State Police, who said the mishap occurred at 5 p. m.

Troopers reported that a car driven by Lorraine Hewitt, 17, of Box 542, Highland, was traveling south on Route 9W 241 votes each. Harold Link got Crawford for failure to yield and a vehicle operated by 240 votes and Bruce Fitzler 234. the right of way.

Christine Crawford, 22, of Pacifica, Calif., was going north

Injured and treated at Vassar Hospital were the young Highland woman who received abrasions of the forehead, Mrs. Edna Hewitt, 50, of the Highland address, cut lip, and the California woman, who was treated for lacerations of the legs and sprained arms.

Troopers cited Christine Crawford for failure to yield and a vehicle operated by 240 votes and Bruce Fitzler 234. the right of way.

Close Race

DOUGLAS, Wyo. (AP) — The results in the balloting for two councilmen seats in Douglas's nonpartisan town election were pretty close.

Dr. Bill Iserman and Merwin Schliching were elected with 241 votes each. Harold Link got Crawford for failure to yield and a vehicle operated by 240 votes and Bruce Fitzler 234. the right of way.

Results of Woodstock Questionnaire Revealed

Almost 1,000 Woodstockers have returned a questionnaire expressing their opinions and preferences regarding the present and future of the township. The questionnaires were mailed to some 3,400 taxpayers and voters in May.

The public opinion survey was conducted by the Woodstock Association for the Conservation and Improvement of the Township, Inc. A preliminary tabulation indicates a real desire to preserve the rural character of the town, at the same time allowing for orderly growth. One group of questions concerning zoning and appearance brought out interesting reactions. For instance: Neon signs should be prohibited, according to 50 per cent of respondents, while 67 per cent think a design advisory board should be consulted on commercial building.

71 per cent think advice on public buildings should be sought and 50 per cent think the same should be given to signs. Shade trees along our roads are an important asset to 90 per cent and 49 per cent feel that more public funds should be spent in this area.

In all, the questionnaire contained 55 questions covering such topics as utilities and services, facilities and recreation, schools and future growth. Woodstock has had a zoning ordinance for two and a half years. It is interesting, according to Benjamin Webster, chairman of the County Planning Board, that 66 per cent of the respondents think present lot sizes are about right, a negligible 1 per cent think they should be smaller, while 18 per cent think they should be larger.

While the questionnaire carefully protected the anonymity of the respondents, many signed their names and inquired how they could participate in the work of the association. The association bore the entire expense of the survey. Final tabulation of the returns is now in process and final accurate figures will be made public in about six weeks. A similar survey was conducted by the association in 1959. Comparisons between the two will reveal any changes in opinions.

The Woodstock Association for the Conservation and Improvement of the Township, Inc. is a private, non-profit, tax-free organization devoted to fact finding for the benefit of present and future citizens of Woodstock. Association directors are: Gordon F. Anderson, Ned W. Buymaster, Paul E. Domville, H. E. Landis Jr., Robert J. Sleight, Leonard E. Waters, J. C. vanRijn, Benjamin L. Webster. The Association's address is Box 684, Woodstock.

Mark Konflas Sneaks Before Historical Group

Historical Society of Woodstock held an open membership meeting recently at the society building on Rock City Road in Woodstock.

The speaker was Mark Konflas, a 10th grade student at the Ontario High School. His subject was, "The Overlook Mountain Houses." He described the building of the first mountain house in 1871, its destruction by fire in 1877 and the second one built a few years later. He showed many old photographs of the second mountain house and had a layout showing how it was oriented and located on the plateau at the top of the mountain. He gave a graphic picture of the life and entertainment at this resort. The decline and final burning of this hotel in 1925 was covered in detail. The planning, construction and ultimate demise of the present building on Overlook was also described.

Another meeting of the society will be planned for mid-August, covering some topic in the history of Woodstock.

Minna Citron To Be Gallery Speaker Friday

Minna Citron, an internationally known painter and graphic artist will give an illustrated lecture on graphics at the Woodstock Artists Gallery on the village green at 8:15 p. m. Friday, July 5.

Perhaps the greatest esteem any artist could desire is the admiration of his fellow artists and Minna Citron from the beginning of her career has had this esteem. Her inventive experiments in painting have influenced many.

She has exhibited throughout the United States. Also in Cuba, England, Brazil, Spain, Germany, Yugoslavia and France. She has had 18 exhibitions in New York City. Her prizes and awards are numerous.

She is represented by work in the Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institute; The National Gallery of Art; The White House; Museum of Modern Art; Whitney Museum of American Art; Metropolitan Museum; Art Institute of Chicago; Victorian Albert Museum, London and many other museums and private collections.

She has published a number of articles and has lectured extensively in the United States and abroad and in 1947, represented the United States Government at the Congress International d'Education Artistique, Paris.

Her lecture is the first in a series that will take place in the Artists Gallery in the summer season.

Kings Daughters Annual Fair

Kings Daughters of Shady are preparing for their annual fair at the Shady Church Hall, Saturday, July 13 from 2 to 5 p.m.

CHECK FOR FIREWORKS—John Carnright, president of the Saugerties National Bank and Trust Company, presents a check to George Pardonner, president of the Saugerties Jaycees for the gala fireworks display which will be shown free for the public this Thursday evening. The Saugerties National Bank and Trust Company has been co-sponsoring the event for a number of years.

Jarvis Gallery Opens Saturday

Gertrude R. Jarvis, prominent New York art dealer and decorator, will inaugurate her Jarvis Gallery in Woodstock, Saturday, July 6. The opening will be held as a benefit for the Woodstock Artists' Association.

A thousand invitations have been issued for the event, which will feature a distinguished exhibit of notable Woodstock art and that of the French Impressionists. Woodstock representation will include Doris Lee, Milton Avery, Harvey Fite and Arnold Blanch.

Among the important collection of French Impressionists will be works of Renoir, Degas, and Modigliani. A rare original actung of a Renoir Bronze will be shown.

Opening day hours will be from 1 to 6 p.m.

Bible School

The Vacation Bible School sponsored jointly by the Overlook United Methodist and Christ Lutheran Churches of Woodstock will be open to children of all area churches.

Classes for three-year-olds through junior high will be held at the Overlook Church on Bearsville Road, starting Monday, July 8 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. There will be two weeks of classes with a parent night, July 18. Information may be obtained from Mrs. Louis Thomason, or Mrs. Robert Ross of West Hurley, or the Rev. Steven Middernacht of Christ Lutheran Church.

Lesson

"God" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be presented Sunday at 11 a.m. at First Church, Christ Scientist, Woodstock.

Service Center Adds Programs

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Ulster County Community Action Committee, Inc., the following Saugerties members were elected: Albert LaWare and Mrs. Velma Wright.

Surplus food to 150 people was distributed last Friday at the Saugerties Neighborhood Center, 124 Partition Street.

A new feature, baby-sitting service, will be available. Those wanting this service are asked to call the center and ask for Mrs. Carol Overbaugh, neighborhood aide.

The next meeting of the center's advisory board will be July 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the office. Anyone needing help in the fields of Medicare and Medicaid are asked to call Mrs. Overbaugh.

The Neighborhood Youth Corp began its work on Tuesday of this week. Seven young people will work in the school system and one will be stationed at the center. The project is sponsored jointly by the schools, the YMCA and the Ulster County Community Action Committee, Inc.

Additional information may be obtained from Daniel Lee, president of the Saugerties Neighborhood Advisory Board or Rev. Dr. Frank L. Gollnick, temporary community organizer.

DAR Award for Beryl Swart

Beryl Swart, 8, of Saugerties, a second grader, submitted the only entry in the Saugerties Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution flag essay contest.

She was honored with an invitation to the DAR Flag Day picnic and read her essay to those assembled. The chapter presented her a book, "Flags of America" and a flag code.

In past years the local chapter had received as many as 55 essays in one contest. A spokesman for the DAR said "it was most discouraging this year for no entries were received from our local seventh and eighth graders."

Among Miss Swart's remarks concerning the flag was, "I think the flag is nice because it gives me freedom of speech and worship."

Valley Commission Favors Bus Service Across River Spans

ALBANY—Investigation of the possibilities of bus service across all the bridges that span the Hudson River was among the recommendations made recently by Alexander Aldrich, executive director of the Hudson River Valley Commission, in testimony at a public hearing here.

The hearing was held by the State Department of Transportation, which is charged with drawing up a master transportation plan by this September. Aldrich pointed out that

"since World War II, the growth of transportation has been focused on the automobile and the airplane, but it is time for new focuses. Focus No. One is on the man without a car."

The State official called for the Statewide plan to take cognizance of this man without a car, and he listed several areas in which an inventory is required of existing services, then a program to fill the gaps—"the areas of unfinished transportation business"—that the inventory would reveal: Local bus service should be analyzed, and recommendations drawn up to make it possible for every citizen to get from one central place to another, including public transportation across every Hudson River bridge.

Commuter service—both rail and bus—should be analyzed across the State, and the individual auto commuter should be wooed into public transportation wherever possible.

Connector service between all long-distance travel terminals and downtown areas should be made frequent, rapid, comfortable and reliable.

Aldrich, who described the Hudson River Valley Commission as "a State agency with a regional point of view and strong ties to local governments," cited several specific examples of the gaps that exist in public transportation in this State.

"There are 200 jobs available for young people near Newburgh," he said, "but the unemployed youth who live in that city cannot get those jobs because there is no public transportation to get them there and they cannot afford cars.

Cites Dutchess-Ulster Link
"Retired couples in Rhinebeck would like to shop in Kingston and Ulster, the nearest city, but there is no jitney service across the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge. They are too old to walk across, and they are not allowed to do that anyway.

In the near future, the Albany-bound traveler will have to detrain in Rensselaer and will not wish to walk across the new Dunn Memorial Bridge to the South Mall area.

"If the same person comes by plane," Aldrich continued, "he will find his trip shorter from his Home City, wherever that may be, to Albany Airport than his ride from the Airport to the Capitol."

"Examples can be multiplied. The point is that, without a car, a traveler is in trouble. So I suggest a comprehensive, State-wide program be pursued to serve the man without a car."

Focus No. Two, the HRVC executive director said, is a need to shift from strictly traffic needs to human needs in highway planning and construction.

"In providing for new construction," he said, "the Commission urges that the traffic engineering emphasis that has characterized the efforts of the DOT in the past be greatly strengthened."

"We propose that future planning be strengthened throughout the State by strong staff analysis of the scenic, historic, recreational and natural resources concerned, particularly where dislocation and relocation of families are involved."

Or the Lack of It

The U.S. Tornado Readiness

By DON REEDER

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Only one out every 10 towns in the U.S. tornado belt has an adequate warning system, says Allen Pearson, director of the Weather Bureau's National Severe Storms Forecast Center.

And This Is Improvement — "And this is an improvement from what it was a few years ago," he adds.

Pearson and others were asked about the nation's tornado readiness status in the wake of a near-record barrage of twisters that battered the Midwest May 15.

The winds killed 45 persons in northeastern Arkansas and 16 in northeastern Iowa, with property damage estimated at more than $45 million.

Pearson reported that on May 15 his office issued 11 tornado watches—alerts disseminated to news media. Civil Defense officials and others that conditions were right for twisters to develop.

But the May 15 alerts did not prevent death and destruction.

Take for example the town of Jonesboro, Ark., where 34 persons were killed.

Jonesboro was included in a tornado watch issued at 9:20 p.m. The twister struck about 30 minutes later and caught most citizens by surprise, many of them in their beds.

Jonesboro, although situated in an area frequently raked by tornadoes, has no warning siren. Officials explained they did not feel they needed one, since the town it said had never been hit before.

Gene Talbert, Arkansas Civil Defense director, said Jonesboro and Craighead County now plan jointly to hire a fulltime Civil Defense chief.

"Actually, I think we've got a good tornado warning system in Arkansas," said Talbert. "The Weather Bureau does a tremendous job cooperating with us."

The same day of the Arkansas tornado, the Weather Bureau issued a watch at 2:35 p.m. for an area including Charles City, Iowa. A twister funnel was spotted southwest of town at 4:20 p.m., and the storm struck at 4:52 p.m. Thirteen persons died.

Plenty of Warning

Although they had plenty of warning, Charles City officials did not sound the town's fire siren to get citizens into a shelter.

Charles City Mayor Harry L. Brenton said the town's fire chief decided against sounding the fire alarm because it would have "pulled a lot of kids out in the streets. It always does, I think it was a wise decision."

Brenton said the town's factory whistles now are coordinated with the fire department and they will be sounded in case of tornadoes until a new city hall, with tornado siren is erected.

Pearson and his Weather Bureau colleagues emphasize all they can do is warn residents of the possibility of twisters, and the rest is up to them.

"There's nothing you can do to save property," Pearson explained, "but give people five minutes, and they can save themselves."

Pearson advocates that every community set up a Civil Defense group or similar organization of volunteers to act as tornado spotters when alerted by the Weather Bureau.

Sirens are all right, he said, but uneven topography often prevents the sound from reaching all parts of town.

He suggests radio and television stations—the prime means of communicating storm warnings—install Weather Bureau news printers.

The ideal method, said Pearson, is the Emergency Broadcast System, EBS in which radio stations transmit a special signal that automatically turns on radio sets to broadcast warnings.

EBS radios are installed in the principal's office of every school in Kansas City, the meteorologist said.

"Generally, if people have been affected by a tornado before or know someone who has, they do all the right things," said Pearson.

"You don't have to tell people in, say, Topeka what to do. They've been through it, and they're believers."

"But most people go through their entire life without ever seeing a tornado. These are the people we've got to work on."

Typhoon Dies

TOKYO (UPI) — Typhoon Lucy withered into a tropical storm today. The U.S. Typhoon Warning Center in Guam said Lucy, her winds having slackened to 23 miles per hour, was centered 92 miles east of Okinawa.

"Give me 3 reasons why Coca-Cola comes in 'Money-Back' bottles."

To save you money."

What more can we say?"

A little.

Like... "Money-Back" bottles really do save you money because all you're paying for is the delicious Coca-Cola that's inside.

And when you've enjoyed all the delicious Coca-Cola in all of the bottles, just trot 'em back to where you shop for Coke and get your money back. Or trade 'em in on more Coke.

It'll save you money. It'll save you money. It'll save you money.

Blood Bank Accredited

Accreditation of the Kingston Laboratory Blood Bank by the American Association of Blood Banks for another three-year period was announced this week by the Association and the Blood Bank's medical director.

"You are hereby recognized as maintaining or exceeding the standards of blood bank performance as established by the American Association of Blood Banks," stated Mr. John A. Shively, president of the Association, in making the presentation of a certificate of Kingston's formal official record of this action.

Accreditation was preceded by a comprehensive questionnaire and physical inspection of the blood bank by one of the Association's volunteer specialists. Continuing voluntary participation in the inspection and accreditation program is outstanding evidence of the blood bank's effort to provide a superlative service to the community.

The City of Kingston Laboratory Blood Bank is one of the more than 1,000 blood banks which have been certified through this program. Dr. Shively emphasized that, "the patient who receives a transfusion of blood provided by a blood bank accredited by the American Association of Blood Banks can have full confidence that the bank has voluntarily met high standards of pro-

Apprentice Openings Listed

The Kingston Electrical Joint Apprenticeship Training Committee will accept applications for five openings until July 15, Assistant Industrial Commissioner Edward J. Ray announced recently.

According to requirements of the joint apprentice committee, a candidate must be 17 to 24 years of age, must have a high school diploma, and must pass a battery of physical and aptitude tests. In addition, the candidate must have resided in the area over which the apprentice committee has jurisdiction for at least one year.

Apprentice programs registered with the Department of Labor stipulate that the apprentices must be selected on the basis of objective criteria and that they are subject to re-examination at any time.

Dazzling Display of Antique Cars in Ellenville

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

When Harry Resnick's Ellenville Motor Museum opens on July 4, the public will not be seeing any ordinary collection of antique cars but perhaps the most dazzling display of the world's rarest and finest automobiles ever gathered under one roof.

These were the automobiles that one's father or grandfather longed to own and did own in his wildest dreams, and whether they were roaring down the pike at 90 miles an hour or silently winding their way up a curving drive to a private estate, these glittering machines defined their owners as men of status, power, and almost frightening wealth.

Included in the collection are two Phantom IV Rolls Royces, formerly owned by the King of Kuwait. Built in 1955 and 1956, they were commissioned by the British government for foreign heads of state and domestic royalty.

Franco of Spain owns three such models and Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret were each given one.

Oldest car in the museum is an 1888 DeDion Bouton. Built in France, it was the first production car ever made. A steamer, the machine contains shelves for charcoal and wood built into its rear to feed the boiler in front of the driver's compartment.

The newest model is a 1966 Duesenberg. Priced to sell for $31,000, the automobile was to signify the beginning of a new era for a grand old automotive name.

Financial woes halted any large-scale production of the Duesenberg, however, and what was considered to be the finest motorcar ever to roll off an American assembly line may forever remain a collector's item.

A 1935 Duesenberg, the classic "it's a Duesie," was owned by an Indian maharaja and on each of its front fenders is a set of red and blue lights. When the blue light was on it meant that no one of any import was seated in the machine. When the red light was on, however, it meant the maharaja himself was inside and bystanders were prepared to bow, as the law demanded.

A 1926 Isotta Fraschini had the distinction of being among the only production cars ever blessed by the Pope.

Upon its right front fender is a stainless steel bulb within which is embedded a St. Christopher's medal, in honor of the event.

To be a lady at the dawn of the age of automobiles meant that you did not sit in the front seat but the 1911 Raulang firmly established the rear seat driver tradition, with controls for the woman in the back seating compartment, and controls for the man up front.

This electric automobile was built, as is many of the other cars in the museum, in Cleveland, Ohio, which, for a time, was the motorcar capital of the nation.

Henry Ford changed that when he built the nation's first mass assembly line in Michigan.

Of the 50 cars in the collection, all of them operational, the public will see the first true production sports car (a 1913 Mercer Raceabout), the last of the fantastic Bugatti's (a 1939 model), the oldest gas operated automobile (a 1903 Winton), and a 1912 Damlier given to the famous Lillian Russell by a King of England who, much to his embarrassment, was never able to keep the fact of his gift secret.

Perhaps the most expensive automobile in the collection is a 1904 Rolls, reputed to have cost $80,000 to buy and restore.

What may well be the most unusual machine presently being restored, is a 1927 Minerva, made in Belgium.

The car is 24 feet long and it has six wheels, an armchair, swivel seats, and a picnic table which folds out from the side of the machine.

Also included in the museum's exhibits is a Pittsburgh Fire Department engine with a 1,000 gallon a minute pumper.

The rear of the machine was built in 1906 to be pulled by horses. When it was realized that an engine would provide the best of all possible transportation, the Pennsylvania city applied to the American LaFrance Company which made conversion kits for fire engines.

The engine was put on in 1911, and with its monstrous rear wheels, smaller front tires, gigantic boiler mounted on top, with brass, stainless, and bright red paint, the machine does not exactly sit silently in a corner.

Harry Resnick began collecting antique Rolls Royces in 1966 and, two years later, had such a large collection that he had trouble finding space for them.

Resnick's son, Justin, suggested a museum and the father agreed.

Joel Pettingell, a former school teacher from Agate, Colorado, is currently curator of the museum, charged with the responsibility of finding, restoring, and maintaining the machines.

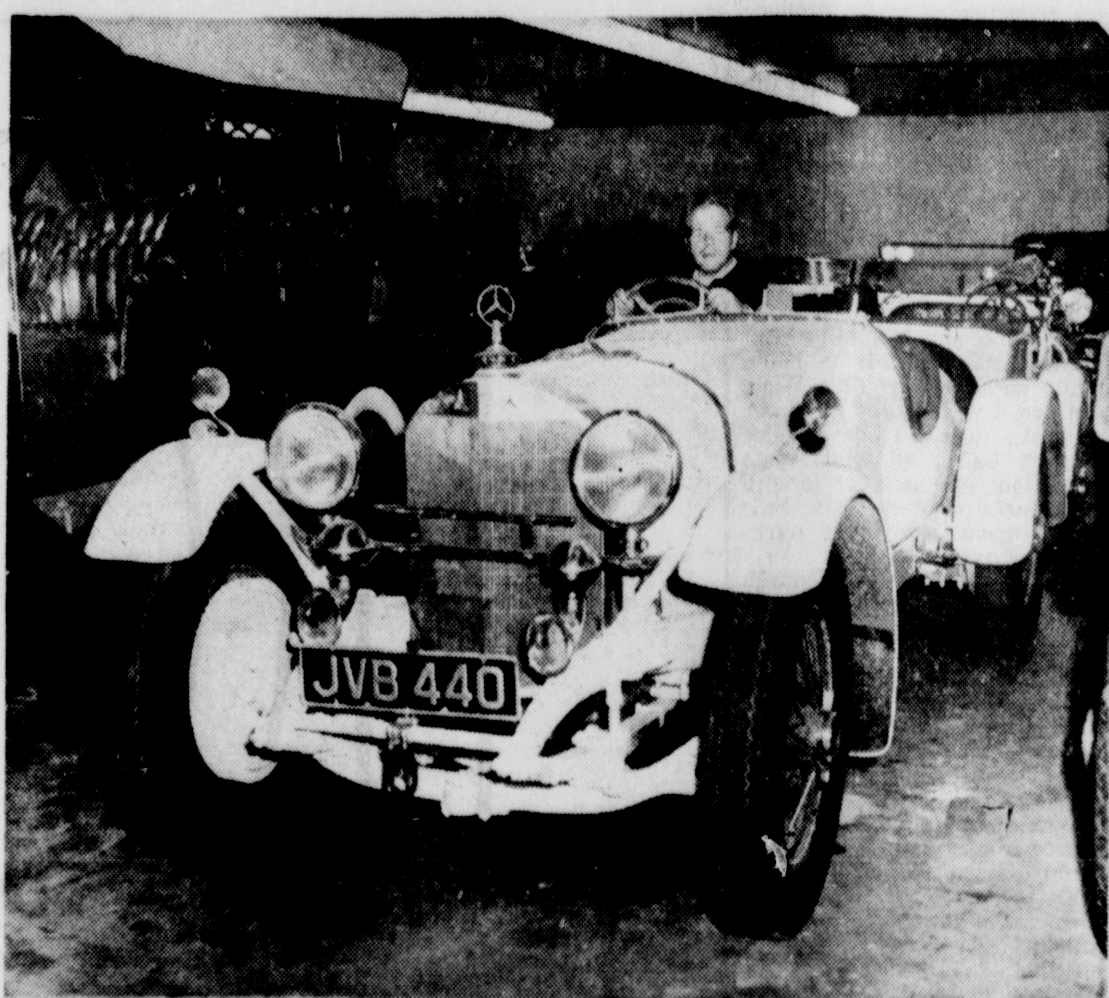

The automobiles came from private collections and from individual owners in Canada, South America, and throughout the United States.

One car, a 1926 Rolls, a three-seater with a rumble seat, was dragged up from the bottom of a river, and a 1908 Mercedes was hauled from the jungles of Argentina and shipped out of Buenos Aires.

The museum will be divided into two sections, one for the Rolls collection, and the other for non-Rolls.

Included in the museum will be antique automobile accessories and wearing apparel.

With the admission price will be a receipt guaranteeing the visitor his money back upon the purchase of a new Rolls Royce, a car priced anywhere from $18,000 and up.

Another Gigantic Problem: Where to Dispose of Refuse

By DAVID HASKELL
BOSTON (UPI)—Americans are the greatest wasters in the world—but not all the waste is wasted.

Some is used to make parks, golf courses or ski slopes. Some, unfortunately, finds its way into the air and water as pollutants.

American spend billions of dollars yearly to dispose of the billions of pounds of garbage and rubbish they produce. It's becoming increasingly harder to find places to get rid of it.

An authority on the problem, Dr. Melvin W. First of the Harvard School of Public Health, said there are three basic reasons why the country today is faced with such a large refuse problem: Population increase, urbanization and affluence.

"Because of American affluence, people throw away more and more than they ever did. When an American housewife goes shopping, almost everything she buys is packaged. These packages are thrown away. This is sheer affluence."

More Rubbish
Communities with a higher economic level tend to produce more rubbish per household. An average family accumulates about 1.5 tons of garbage and rubbish per year.

Prosperity has increased per capita waste production enormously. Modern packaging practices, countless magazines and newspapers, almost instant obsolescence of an endless variety of material acquisitions and the enormous growth of industry have combined to increase the daily per capita production of solid wastes in this country from 2.7 pounds in 1920 to more than 4.5 pounds now.

"Urbanization creates a waste disposal problem of where to put the rubbish," Dr. First said. Seventy per cent of the people in America live on 10 per cent of the land.

CERAMIC TILE
SHAPIRO'S
63 No. FRONT ST.
KINGSTON — 338 2395

The national production of solid wastes in urban communities amounts to over 800 million pounds daily. This is expected to rise three times that by 1980, and "the ground available for disposal is very short," Dr. First said. "We just don't have the places to put the waste."

Industrial and technological changes are resulting in the production of ever increasing quantities of refuse, including junked cars, bottles, tin cans, chemicals, paper, construction debris, stoves, refrigerators, old furniture, etc., etc.

Forty-eight billion cans and 26 billion bottles are produced annually and virtually all are discarded. The container industry expanded the problem of solid waste disposal when, in the last several years, it moved to "throwaway" bottles, cans and cartons.

American living in cities pay each year roughly $3 billion for the collection, transportation, processing and the disposal of solid wastes. Waste disposal is the third largest item on municipality budgets, exceeded only by education and roads.

The three basic methods for solving solid waste problems are: incineration, utilization and recycling of waste products, and returning the wastes to the environment via land, air or water.

Gardens from Waste
The most commonly practiced solid waste disposal method in the country is sanitary landfilling, used in several areas for the construction of parks, golf courses and botanic gardens.

A 100-foot-plus high hill in flat northwestern Illinois is being built on garbage fill. When finished it will be used in winter as a ski slope. In Los Angeles County, Calif., all solid waste collections are used for landfill to transform steep, dry hills and canyons into public parks and golf courses.

Honors Awarded Area Graduate

CHRISTOPHER H. HANKS

Christopher Howard Hanks of Woodstock was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree Saturday, June 15, at Bowdoin College's Commencement Exercises. Hanks was graduated magna cum laude.

He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary fraternity for the recognition and promotion of scholarship.

Hanks was awarded High Honors in Mathematics.

Acting president Athern P. Daggett of Bowdoin presented the diploma during ceremonies held in the college's new gymnasium on the campus in Brunswick, Me.

Hanks, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hanks Jr., 20 Bluestone Road, Woodstock, is a graduate of Arlington High School, Arlington Heights, Ill.

A member of Theta Delta Chi Fraternity, Hanks majored in mathematics at Bowdoin. He has served as corresponding secretary of his fraternity.

Hanks has been a Dean's List student and James Bowdoin Scholar. The James Bowdoin Scholarships are honorary awards given annually in recognition of high academic achievement. Hanks won the Smyth Mathematical Prize as the sophomore who obtained the highest rank in mathematical studies during his first two years.

He was one of four students selected to participate in a 10-week summer mathematics research program at Bowdoin. The program was supported by the National Science Foundation. He was one of 10 seniors to be appointed Undergraduate Research Fellows during the past year. Hanks was selected as a Danforth Fellow, one of the most coveted scholarship awards in the nation. He will use the scholarship to do graduate study at Northwestern University in Illinois.

Three Complete Studies At Mount St. Mary

Eileen M. Budny, Sharon Anne Flynn, and Diane Snyder, all of Kingston received Bachelor of Arts degrees from Mount St. Mary College, Newburgh during commencement ceremonies held in the College's Aquinas Theatre on Friday, May 31. Degrees were conferred on 84 candidates.

Miss Budny is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter V. Budny of 75 Amsterdam Avenue, Kingston. She majored in sociology with a minor in mathematics. She was art editor of the AQUINAS NEWS, and a member of Young Christian Students. Active in the Horizons Unlimited tutorial program, she also participated in the 1966 Intercollegiate Appalachian project.

Miss Flynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard J. Flynn of 59 Elmendorf Street, Kingston majored in elementary education with a concentration in history-social studies. She was active in College Band, a tutorial program for the underprivileged high schools girls and was named to the Dean's List. Miss Flynn plans to teach in the Kingston Consolidated School District.

EILEEN BUDNY

Miss Snyder majored in English with a related field in social sciences. She was a member of the Robbers Players, the College's dramatic society, and was a member of the Business staff of the Senior Journal.

Miss Snyder plans to attend graduate school.

Will Attend Marist College

Michael Habernig, son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Habernig of 263 Smith Avenue, Kingston, an honor graduate of the class of 1968 at Our Lady of Lourdes High School, Poughkeepsie, will attend Marist College in September.

Recently crowned CYO festival king, he has been a parish president for two years and is presently president of the entire Ulster County unit of the organization. Chairman of both the Archdiocesan Newsletter Committee and the Constitution Committee and a former youth organization presidential nominee, he has represented the CYO in conventions as well as oratorical contests. He has won both the Christus Rex and Cardinal Spellman youth awards for his work.

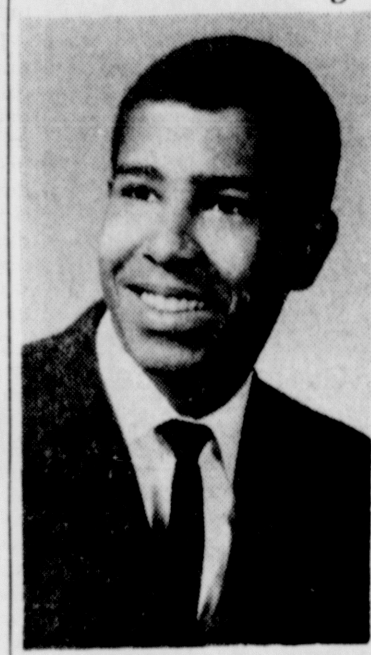

Further activity extended to duties as a CCD summer school instructor and community campaign work for the Heart Fund, March of Dimes, Muscular Dystrophy, and the Association for Retarded Children.

Habernig has found time in addition to participate in school athletics and to maintain a dean's list scholastic index. He will graduate with honors at the Lourdes commencement, June 22, to be presided over by His Excellency Joseph M. Pernicone, auxiliary bishop of the New York Archdiocese.

WAA Will Benefit from Jarvis Opening

Mrs. Theodore (Trudy) Jarvis, who has decorated the homes of such famous people as Billy Rose, Mike Wallace, Imogene Coca, A. H. Salzberger, owner of the New York Times; Herbert Keith, vice-president of IBM; Gypsy Rose Lee and countless other world known personalities and members of royalty, is opening her Woodstock Gallery on Saturday, July 6. The opening will be held as a benefit for the Woodstock Artists' Association.

A thousand invitations have been issued for the event, which will feature a distinguished exhibit of Woodstock art and that of the French impressionists. Woodstock representation will include Doris Lee, Milton Avery, Harvey Fite and Arnold Blanch. Among the important collection of French impressionists will be works of Renoir, Degas and Modigliani. A rare original casting of a Renior bronze will be of special interest.

Mrs. Jarvis, whose Jarvis has been a significant art and decorating center for many years, is an outstanding member of her profession. The new Woodstock Jarvis Gallery is a mark of her distinction in both fields. Its impressive Georgian decor makes a stately setting for what promises to be a memorable exhibit.

Mrs. Jarvis is not a stranger to Ulster County. As a young artist, she studied at the Woodstock Art Students League. She has been a popular interior decorator for the past 40 years and, with her husband, has maintained a successful business in art and antiques. Mrs. Jarvis as sold paintings to such people as Henry Fonda, his daughter Jane, Prince Rospoli of Italy and many others.

At a recent press party given by Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis at their new Woodstock gallery, Mrs. Jarvis said she was hopeful of giving upcoming artists a place in which to exhibit.

The July 6 event will be open from 1 p.m. to 6. Donation will be $1.50 per person. House in New York City has

Doing the Right Thing

Of The Emily Post Institute
BETWEEN RELATIVES

Dear Mrs. Post: Could you suggest guidelines for social life among relatives? I come from a small family which lived a continent away from any other relatives. When we married, my husband and I also left the area where our families lived. Now my husband's brother has moved to our town.

I am sure that relations among relatives are less formal than those among friends and acquaintances, but my brother-in-law and his wife seem to feel perfectly free to come to our house without notice and to include themselves in any of our plans that they hear about. I don't know what to do and would appreciate any help you can give me.—Mrs. R.

Dear Mrs. R.: Relations between relatives are frequently more informal than those between friends, but not necessarily. Good friends can be far closer than brothers and sisters in many cases. Merely being related is no excuse for invasion of privacy. Every couple has a right to arrange its own social life, and it is no more correct for relatives to drop in without warning than anyone else.

The only answer is frankness. Tell them, as nicely as you can, that you love seeing them, but you would appreciate a phone call before they drop in so that you can make plans and enjoy their visits more. Also, introduce them to as many people and include them in as many parties as you can, so that they will develop a social life of their own.

The Meaning of 'Amen'

Dear Mrs. Post: When I was a girl—a long time ago—we were taught that the "Amen" at the close of a hymn was the benediction to that hymn, and should be sung with closed eyes and bowed heads. I still observe this custom and think it adds greatly to the sanctity of the service, but the people in the church I now attend sort of scoff at the idea. Who is right?—Inez.

Dear Inez: "Amen" literally means "so be it," which is simply an ending rather than a benediction. However, it should be sung just as reverently as the rest of the hymn.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question I receive each week, I'll send a free copy of Emily Post's Etiquette. The question chosen, and its answer, will be published in this column every Friday. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper, and don't forget to include your name and address.

Kremper - Suskie Nuptials - Told

Miss Nancy L. Kremper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Kremper of Mt. Marion, exchanged nuptial vows with Marshall Suskie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Suskie of 25 West Chester Street, Kingston, at St. Mary's Church, this city, on Saturday, June 22.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony. Traditional wedding selections were provided. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Chantilly lace gown styled with a Sabrina neckline. The bodice was accented with teardrop pearls and the gown featured a chapel train. Her silk illusion veil was attached to a double crown of seeded pearls and lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white pompons, centered with a corsage of white gladiolus.

Mrs. Katherine Zeeh of 66 Tubby Street, Kingston, was matron of honor. Her full length yellow chiffon gown was fashioned with a yoke of white lace. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a basket arrangement of yellow pompons with yellow satin ribbons. Philip Kelly of 29 West Chester Street, Kingston, was best man. Ushers were Michael Flanagan, Saugerties, cousin of the bride; Michael Bower of Kingston, cousin of the bridegroom. After the wedding a reception for 100 guests was held at Mt. Marion Inn, Mt. Marion. For her wedding trip to the Adirondack Mountains, the bride selected a black and beige dress with matching coat, and a corsage of white gladiolus. The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School, is employed at Ulster County Welfare Department. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School and Dutchess Community College, was employed at IBM at Fishkill. He will enter military service in July.

Many 'Insensitive' To Basic Tastes

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI)—If your wife's coffee tastes like vinegar, it may actually be your taste, not the coffee, that's at fault.

Dr. Ernest Dzendolet of the University of Massachusetts psychology department says his tests show 78.5 per cent of American males must be classified "insensitive" to the four basic tastes—sweet, salty, sour and bitter—and that 28 per cent of them are completely unable to distinguish between sour things (vinegar) and bitter things (coffee).

She Campaigns For Needy Orphans

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Betty Moul, in the midst of helping her boss win reelection to the U.S. Senate this year, also is running a campaign of her own.

The sure winners in Miss Moul's campaign are hundreds of orphans among the victims of the Vietnam War. Pittsburgh-born Betty Moul is private secretary to Jacob K. Javits, New York's Republican senator since 1956. The petite brunette, when she isn't shuffling the senator's appointments, handling correspondence, arranging speaking schedules and chauffeuring the senator, is out making speeches on her own to raise money for the An Lac Orphanage in Saigon.

Shifting Population

The orphanage, an arm of the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation of which Miss Moul is a trustee, cares for a shifting population of about 400 children from infancy to early teens.

And where does this bundle of energy spend her vacations? In Saigon, helping the understaffed staff to feed and cloth, to give medication (malnutrition, diarrhea and tuberculosis are major illnesses), and to teach the unfortunates. Miss Moul instructs them in English and laughingly said that to the children she's become "Co My," their way of calling her "Miss America."

She pays her own way to South Vietnam and admitted that she scrimps on her salary—"bring my own lunch . . . buy all my clothes on sale." She has worked out with the senator a schedule that permits her to spend close to two months every other year at An Lac. She takes the vacation due her one year in December and then backs the one due for the following year right against it.

Quit Steel Company

Miss Moul came to New York in 1959, transferred by her employer, U.S. Steel, but left in 1963 to work for the senator. She became interested in Dooley's work in Southeast Asia when she read "Give Joy to My Youth," a biography by Teresa Gallagher, an officer also of the foundation.

Miss Moul recalled that Dooley already was hospitalized for the cancer that killed him in 1961. "But I called him and said, 'My name is Betty Moul, I work for U.S. Steel and I can type.'"

Miss Moul prefers not to discuss the "politics" of the U.S. role in Vietnam, although as a senator's secretary she is surrounded by it. Rather, she talks of numerous ways U.S. military personnel volunteer to help the South Vietnamese.

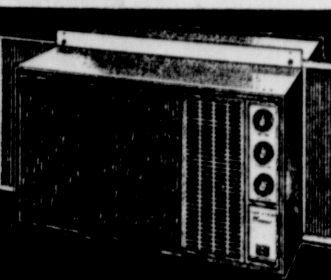

Medics give medical aid, others teach, and, "a bunch of Marine guards at the embassy used one of their days off to come over and repaint the entire orphanage," she said.

Hotel Shanley Gains Second Place in ESL

Two doubles by Dan Duff paced Hotel Shanley to second place in the Ellenville Softball league last night as the Hotelmen edged Wright's Service Station 3-2 in Ellenville.

Duff led off the second inning with a double and advanced to third when Dickie Conklin hit back to the Wright's hurler Ron Joray, who missed Duff at third. Conklin then stole second and Joe Logan walked to load the sacks. Art Jackson's sacrifice fly scored Duff. Bucky Farmer helped his own cause by singling in Conklin.

In the third inning with two out, Duff lined a shot off the center field fence. Conklin then singled through the middle to score the winning run.

Farmer (2-1) blanked Wright's until the fourth frame, and allowed six hits. Lower Joray fanned five and allowed four hits.

Phil Van Der Mark homered over the left field fence to lead off the second inning for Wright's. Ray Christian reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored when first baseman Duff booted an easy chance on Dave Frank's grounder.

Joray (3-3) will lead Wright's against Eddie's Country Fair and Corky Van Vliet (0-6) to-night.

Good Ones Make It Fast

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The good ones make it in a hurry. Those fuzzy checked youngsters assigned to various clubs earlier this month in baseball's free agent draft now are signing contracts across the nation to start the great adventure.

Bonus rates may vary, but the question is the same for all. How long to make them big leaguers?

The answers will vary, too, but it's the same for the best ones—not long.

Lately there has been a big to do about all those kid pitchers who have shot to the top, but all through baseball history the good ones have made it quickly.

Jaycees Sports Spectacular Comes to Kingston, July 26-27

The New York State Jaycee Sports Spectacular returns to Kingston for the fourth straight year, with competition in golf, tennis, track and field on Friday and Saturday, July 26-27.

Area Jaycee officials expect more than 250 boys from all over the state to compete in the spectacular.

Wiltwyck Country Club will once again be the site of the golf championships. Ted Beahm and Mike Frevert of Woodstock, state and local chairmen, respectively, are planning for an even more successful golf tournament than last year.

(Woodstock Jaycees will conduct district qualifying in golf Wednesday at Woodstock Country Club. All eligible players are asked to report at 8 a.m.)

try Club. All eligible players are asked to report at 8 a.m.)

Tourney at Woodstock

Winners of the State Spectacular in Kingston advance to the National Jaycees championships in Tulsa, Okla., in mid-August. The national tournament was not held last year.

Jim Barba and Chuck Fuscardo of Kingston, who are the state and local tennis chairmen, respectively, have announced that N. Jansen Fowler and the Kingston Tennis Association will again assist local Jaycees in hosting the tennis championships.

Al Miller, popular former soccer and tennis coach at State U New Paltz and presently head soccer coach at Hartwick College, has agreed to return as tournament director.

The tennis tournament will again be held at Forsyth Park, where area eliminations were conducted on June 22.

John Lawrence of the Saugerties Jaycees is chairman of the track meet. He will be assisted by Andrew J. Murphy, local superintendent of recreation. A much larger meet than last year is planned.

Winners in the Senior Division (17 and 18 years of age) will be eligible to represent New York State at the National Finals in Eugene, Oregon on August 15-16-17.

At Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, last summer,

more than 400 young track and field state champions from 39 states gathered in competition. In that meet, eight new records were set and two tied in the 13-event meet.

This year's meet promises to be even more eventful. The participants will have the opportunity to compete under the finest conditions available. The University of Oregon, under track coach Bill Bowerman, has enjoyed tremendous success. The school hosted the 1962 and 1964 NCAA track and field championships.

In addition to the meet, the participants will attend outstanding clinics featuring some of the best known names in track and field.

He Wins Game 5-1, But.....

It Was Over in Hurry for Bob

By VITO STELLINO

UPI Sports Writer

Bob Gibson laughed outwardly at misfortune Monday night but he must have cried a bit underneath all the smiles.

Gibson sat smiling and apparently relaxed in the St. Louis Cardinal dressing room and said all the right things, like "the most important thing is to win the game."

And Gibson did win the game by a 5-1 margin as the Cardinals topped the Los Angeles Dodgers. But with the Cards leading the league by 6½ games, it was hard to believe the game itself was the most important thing.

The really important thing to the crowd of 54,157 at Dodger Stadium was that the drama of the heralded Gibson-Drysdale duel was decided in the first inning when Gibson tossed a wild pitch to let in the Dodgers' lone run.

One wild pitch. It cost Gibson a sixth consecutive shutout which would have tied the record Drysdale set last month. And it snapped his consecutive scoreless innings streak at 48½, ruining his bid to match or beat the record of 58 2/3 that Drysdale also set last month.

One wild pitch. Gibson came so close. But he just said philosophically, "I threw a wild pitch and that's that."

Edwards Takes Blame

Catcher Johnny Edwards tried to take the blame for the ball that hit the dirt and skidded by him. He said, "It was my fault."

But Gibson disagreed. "It was a wild pitch, it just sailed. I threw a fast ball and it sailed in."

Lackaye On Spree

Don Lackaye, a pitcher for the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, had quite a busy day in the Babe Ruth League Monday.

He pitched a 1-hitter against Chidsey-DeForest to win 12-1, fanned 10 and went "4 for 4" at the plate, including a home run, double and 2 singles and 4 runs batted in. Not even Jack Armstrong could top that.

KPA's, meanwhile, collected 11 hits off Craig Struble and led 7-0 as early as the second inning. Ron Burris knocked in two runs with a pair of singles.

Larry Brink spoiled Lackaye's bid for a no-hitter with a two-out single in the third inning.

Would You Believe It, Al Kaline on First??

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Who's on first? Would you believe Al Kaline?

Believe it or not, there was the Detroit slugger, back from five weeks on the disabled list with a broken right arm, trotting out to first base Monday night and looking for all the world like a latter-day Mickey Mantle.

And there was Kaline, backbone of the Tigers' attack for 16 years, ripping a single to left in the sixth inning to score Mickey Stanley with the tie-breaking run in a 5-1 victory over the California Angels.

The Angels didn't wait long to test the outfielder-turned-first baseman, Vic Davalillo, the leadoff batter, grounded to Kaline, who fielded the ball and flipped to pitcher Mickey Lolich covering the bag.

Kaline later caught a foul pop and handled three throws from infielders but was charged with an error when he took his foot off the bag on a throw from third baseman Dick Tracy.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland tripped Minnesota 4-1, the Chicago White Sox downed Baltimore 6-3, Boston beat Oakland 3-0 and Washington turned back the New York Yankees 3-1.

Kaline was not the only standout as the high-flying Tigers kept their American League lead at 7½ games over Cleveland. Catcher Bill Freehan cracked his 10th and 11th homers, Trachewski hit his second and Lolich, the erratic lefty, hurled a five-hitter and fanned 14, most by a Detroit pitcher this season.

Lou Johnson, the happy-go-lucky outfielder acquired last week from the Chicago Cubs, blasted two homers and Sam McDowell fanned 11 Twins as Cleveland beat Minnesota.

McDowell yielded a leadoff double to Cesar Tovar, then pitched hitless ball until the eighth, when he needed help from Stan Williams after Tony Oliva's run-scoring single.

Buddy Bradford, a White Sox outfielder, had a two-homer night against Baltimore. He cracked his third of the season to ignite a four-run first inning after Luis Aparicio reached on an error, and hit another in the fifth.

Aparicio also homered, his third, while Brooks Robinson and Curt Blefary connected for the Orioles. The White Sox capped the opening inning with a double steal on which Ken Berry swiped home while Bill Voss stole second.

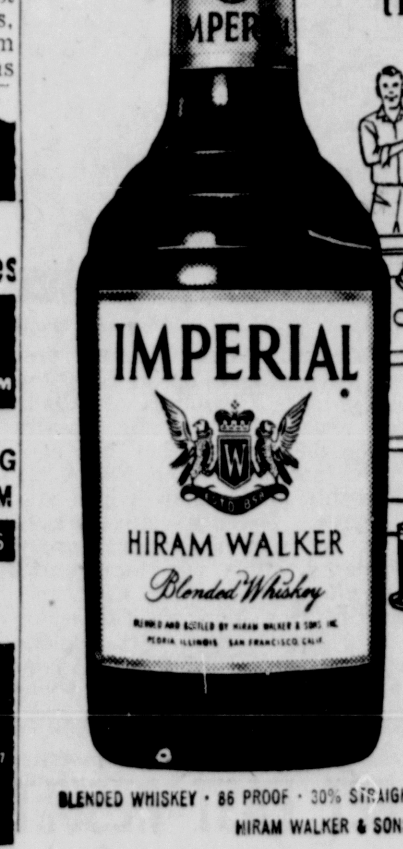

Uphshaw relieved Niekro with runners on first and second and none out in the eighth and set down the Giants without a hit. Tito Francona, with two hits and two walks, drove in two of the five Atlanta runs.

Two runs were unearned as the result of errors by rookie Third baseman Frank Johnson.

The Phils collected 12 hits and the Cubs chipped in with three errors to let in three unearned runs and pave the way for the Phils' easy triumph. Chris Short, with relief help from Gary Wagner and John Boozer in the ninth, got his sixth victory. Rich Nye took the defeat. Mike Ryan had three hits for the Phils.

Braves Send Thomas Against Middletown Tonight

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Sports Editor

Ever hear of a .417 team batting average?

Fantastic, you say?

Well, that's what Fred Davis' eight regulars (pitchers excepted) on the Kingston Braves carry into tonight's Hudson Valley Rookie League contest against the Middletown Explorers at Dietz stadium at 8 o'clock.

Why, one fella is batting a cool 1.000!

That would be Jerry Hawkins, a recent returnee from the Army, who is "6 for 6" in two games since rejoining the club. The team is 41 for 98!

Joe Schabot, who went "5 for 5" against the Newburgh Nuclears over the weekend, boasts a hefty .545 mark with 6 hits in 11 at bats. Lou Perry claims a .429 rating on three for seven.

Pete Watzka is playing a nice hot corner and hitting .357 (5 for 14), while Mike Derenbacher, has a .455 (5 for 11) to go with his flashy fielding chores at second base. Ron Valley is acting like an outfielder with a .385 rating on 5 hits in 13 trips to the plate.

Boice In Stump

One major surprise in the bat department is veteran first baseman, Chick Boice, way down at .250 with only three hits in 12 at bats. Manager Paul Giannuzzi isn't too worried.

"Everybody knows Chick can hit," said the relaxed manager. "He burned up the Interstate League last year to win the batting title and we figure he'll start dropping the hits soon."

If Chick Boice were anywhere around his near-400 normal gait, the Braves' batting average would border on the incredible.

With that kind of batting, who needs pitching? The Braves.

"I feel we have a good shot at the Rookie League championship," said Manager Giannuzzi. "And we'll need solid pitching. I think we have it but we can't let down."

Thomas Is Starter

Ron Thomas, who has a 17-strikeout performance to his credit this year, draws the assignment against the 1-4 Middletown Explorers tonight.

The Explorers have found the going rough in the Rookie League to date, but are banking on Ron Turlier, former Middletown High pitcher, star, to get them back on the winning track. The Explorers only victory to date was Turlier's 7-0 shutout over the Newburgh Nuclears.

Brian Seiber, the first baseman, is the best hitter in the Middletown lineup.

Cornwall Missiles have taken the early lead with a 5-1 record, a game ahead of the Newburgh Atoms. Kingston Braves are carried as 2-1 in the standings, but are actually 3-1. One of the games played to date—and won—counts in the second half standings.

Exasperated congressmen insist the American Rifle Association is the most aggressive, influential sports lobby in the country. It's almost as aggressive as the Saurgeties Fish and Game Club.

One of the more militant groups campaigning against universal registration of firearms, the Sawyer boys have titillated the public with some fascinating background material on the evils of gun registration.

At its recent meeting, the club heard Ed Van Gasbeck read a highly interesting paper received from the North-South Skirmish Association on this highly controversial subject.

The item read in part: "In May, 1919, military intelligence uncovered a document in Dusseldorf, Germany entitled: 'Rules for Bringing About a Revolution.'"

Paragraph C of that document said: "... cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext, with a view to confiscating them and leaving the population helpless..."

Stepped in the tradition of the 2nd Amendment, area sportsmen recoil from any suggestion of universal registration. And they can name names — countries where dictatorship was preceded by gun registration.

WITHOUT TAKING A STAND in either direction (we will do that in a future column), we'd like to present an editorial that came across the desk. Yes, it came from one of the major gun manufacturers in the nation, but is still worth a few minutes of your time, we think:

"The senseless shooting of Sen. Kennedy was not only a national tragedy—it was also one more strike against legitimate gun owners who had some hope of reasonable firearms legislation."

"It is useless to argue that the killers of President Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Senator Kennedy were no more typical gun owners than the members of 'Hell's Angels' are typical teenagers."

"Let's face it—guns stand indicted in the public mind."

"What do we do now? Turn in our guns and take up bird-watching and croquet?"

"Some feel this way: a hunter in Pennsylvania has turned his guns over to the police for disposition; a store owner in Ohio announces that he will sell no more guns or ammunition for fear they will be misused."

"These are unfortunate reactions but no one can quarrel with an individual's right to make such decisions."

IN OUR OPINION, HOWEVER:

"This is not the course most thinking sportsmen will follow. Their line of reasoning is more likely to be something like this:

"I feel no sense of guilt about owning guns or the way I've used them. I have no reason to be ashamed of my sportsmen friends—they're a fine group of men. However, because of misdeeds of a few misguided individuals, our guns are under a cloud—a very black cloud indeed."

Because of this, stricter regulation is being directed toward guns at all levels, federal, state and local. I must admit that some additional gun control, such as that already endorsed by responsible people, is probably needed... because mail-order sales of hand guns are now made to all comers—practically no question asked. Deactivated machine guns can be ordered with the parts to restore them to working conditions listed on the same order.

The people who don't like guns seem to be obsessed with the idea that registration is the cure all for all our troubles. After all, we register our automobiles, why not guns? Except, I've noticed that criminals almost always use stolen cars that can't be traced to them.

A GUN IS NEUTRAL:

It just lies there. It doesn't do anything, good or bad, until somebody picks it up. We must concentrate on keeping guns out of the hands of criminal and irresponsible persons.

So, in urban areas and heavily populated states, I think the answer may be an I.D. card for gun or hunting license.

I think that we sportsmen are much more likely to get this kind of reasonable law, one we can live with, if we actively work for it with our legislators.

From now on, I, for one, am going to work for gun laws—the kind that may help keep guns out of the hands of those who would misuse them, yet without making it impossible for law-abiding sportsmen to continue to own and use firearms."

Ted's Esso choked off an A. J. Scarselli threat at four runs in the top of the seventh and preserved a 14-10 victory in a wild Met Division contest in the Saurgeties Softball League.

Ted's set their league leading record at 8 wins and one defeat in the longest regulation length game in the history of the league—2 hours, 24 minutes.

Maurice Hinchey ran his record to his team's identical mark of 8-1 on a three hitter. Don O'Connor slammed a homer and three singles. John Hinchey knocked in five runs with a homer and single.

In other action, King's Diner scored seven runs in the sixth to break up a tight duel between Jamie Todaro (6-3) and Ed Pelham (1-8) to defeat McConkey Funeral Home, 9-1. Dennis Myer led King's with three hits.

Greenfinger-Agway nipped McConkey Funeral Home, 4-3, in nine innings. Singles by Woody Sperl and Walt Konopka and a double by Walt Hillje decided the issue in favor of Sperl.

Home runs by John Whitten in the fifth and Don Smith in the sixth for McConkey's tied the score at 3-3.

George Geanuleas of Vet-17, walked three and was credited with a triple trying to stretch a long hit into a home run.

The Vets collected four hits off Bill Samuels, who fanned seven. Barry Duffley had two singles for the winners.

In other American League action, Hurley outlasted Volunteer Firemen, 13-11, and Elks Lodge won over the American Legion, 6 to 3.

Seven Vols' errors, several walks and five hits enabled Hurley to build up its 13-run total. Dan Brown, the winner, and Harold Johnson held Vols to four hits.

Don Fisher of Hurley tripled for the only extra baser in the contest.

Carl Stoerzinger of the Elks allowed six hits and shut out the Legion after the second inning. He also collected "3 for 3", all singles and knocked in a run. Kevin McGowan rapped two singles for the Legion.

—Little Leaguers—

By CHRIS GEHMAN

(Freeman Sports Staff)

Larry Laford, the crack pitcher-slugger of the Jaycees Little League, dominated the rain-plagued area LL schedule since last week's report on league activities.

The Crows' star turned in a "5 for 5" stint at the plate—the second in the 1968 season—and whipped the Owls, 16-6, on a 2-hitter with 13 strikeouts.

Larry's wildness (9 walks) helped boost the Owls' total.

Laford slammed two home runs, a double and two singles in his five trips to the plate. He knocked in seven runs, a seasonal record for little leagu

End Strike at Roosevelt

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI)—Jesse Moss, lawyer for the Roosevelt Raceway officials and representatives of the Standardbred Owners Association came to an agreement at midnight Monday on a compromise contract proposal made by State Supreme Court Justice Daniel G. Albert.

George Morton Levy, president and general counsel of Roosevelt Raceway, said the same contract will be offered to Yonkers Raceway.

track at Roosevelt for the owners. The new pact gives the horse owners an additional three per cent share of the total amount received by the track from the betting.

The old pact ran for a 10-year period. The owners originally requested a three-year contract and the track was seeking a second 10-year pact.

The track will retain all of the one-half of one per cent increase granted by the state legislature.

There will be no escalation clause in the contract. Under the old one, the owners received 45 per cent of all revenues in excess of $1,650,000. Now they will get a flat 39 per cent.

Levy also said the track and the horseowners would mutually work out future distribution of purse allocations.

The strike closed Roosevelt Friday, Saturday and Monday night.

Levy estimated the horseowners will receive about $7,000 per night in additional revenue under the terms of the contract.

Moss said if Yonkers doesn't accept a similar contract by July 13, "The horsemen will feel free to renegotiate the entire contract. We would feel then we are no longer under any obligation to agree to the same contract which was offered to Roosevelt today."

Amplify ($6.80) Captures Feature at Monticello

MONTICELLO—Davies Boush, the Madawaska, Maine, born driver who will celebrate his 37th birthday in two weeks, rated amplify perfectly last night at Monticello Raceway, bringing the three-year-old colt home on a strong closing note to win the featured pace in 2:05.1.

Of Canadian decent, Boush, who now calls Oakland Park, Fla. home, sent Amplify out front at the start, dropped back to second, another notch then back to third before using him in the stretch.

As the field moved into the clubhouse turn for the last time, Perfect Pride began a move on the outside. He gained $6.80, 4.40 and 3.40. Polli J. second in the run to the three-quarter pole, pushing the fad, ing Polli J. Adios to a 1:34 (8.5) was worth $3.40 for show.

Amendola & Goldman Struck Cash in "Book"

By MIKE HELFNER (Freeman Sports Staff)

The inveterate horse player, preferably known as a "handicapper," often consults program data when deciding which horses to bet on.

The harness racing program is packed with information intended as an aid to the better. It has come to be known as "The Bible" by those who daily rely on it.

Called the "Cheat or Scratch Sheet" by novices, the term "The Bible" is a means of spotting a dedicated horse follower.

Available at newsstands as well as the tracks afternoon off-track sales give the horse fancier a chance to study the night's entries before reaching the betting palace.

Kingstonians Jimmy Amendola, proprietor of Markay Dress Co. and Stanley Goldman, co-owner of the Gov. Clinton Pharmacy, had "The Bible" pay off for them.

Amendola buys the program every afternoon. During the drive to any of the plants he and Goldman visit, Amendola scours "The Bible" in search of winners to wager on. The payoff in this case, didn't come at the mutual windows.

En route to Saratoga Raceway one night, Amendola, grossly involved in trying to pick the night's winners, came upon a horse he felt was a sure first. The horse was racing against much slower horses and Amendola got an idea—an idea that mushroomed as the ride progressed.

"Stanley," he said, "Here's a horse that's in easy. He shows a lot and they've only got him in a $1,500 claimer. Hey, why don't we claim him tonight."

Goldman, surprised by the statement, but enticed by the thought, agreed, and the pair claimed a seven-year-old gelding named Queen's Man, a son of Gander and Dorothy Queen.

Started 14 Months Ago

That was May, 1967. In 24 trips to the post, Queen's Man earned almost $2,600 (four wins, five seconds, a trio of thirds for the duo).

More than half that money came this year under trainer-driver Noel Olin. Previously tutored by Charlie Kelly, Queen's Man's racing prowess was nothing for the twosome to be overjoyed about. The switch to Olin brought success. The gelding, now eight, took a second in his latest start, last Wednesday.

Claiming Queen's Man was just the start. Amendola, taking to owning as quickly as he did betting, claimed for himself alone, another gelding. Again, $1,500 was the price, and this one, bought late in '67, is named Evelyn's Prince.

Amendola induced Goldman to buy half-interest. Goldman did. The gelding's first three starts resulted in dismal failure. Seeing no future in a lame horse, Goldman wanted out.

Olin took over the offspring of Syndicator and Evelyn Edgewood and, working hard, brought him back to the races.

Wins First Start

The first start back was Saturday night at Saratoga, and despite a sloppy track, won in 2:16, bringing the locals' the winner's share of the $750 purse.

"All the credit for our new found success belongs to Olin, who has been the answer to our problems," they said. "I was seriously thinking of quitting," the druggist declared, "but he kept me in the business."

Now the combination is looking into buying more standard bred, preferably younger ones eligible to the rich New York Sire Stakes.

Amendola, getting the jump, went ahead on his own and bought a filly that should race next year. Goldman prefers to wait.

"I'd have to say I got her pretty cheap as a weanling," the dressmaker declared. He bought a trotting filly by Lou Darnley out of Cotton Blossom by retired world champion trotter, Rodney. "Those blood lines

Floyd Will Try Again, With Ellis

NEW YORK (UPI)—Floyd Patterson is set to make another of his countless comebacks.

Patterson, the only man ever to win the heavyweight title, lose it, win it back and then lose it again, will fight Jimmy Ellis in Stockholm on Sept. 14 for the World Boxing Association version of the title.

Patterson, who hasn't fought since he lost a close 12-round decision to Jerry Quarry in the WBA elimination tournament on Oct. 28, 1967, still has hopes of winning the crown for a third time. Joe Frazier is recognized as the titleholder in five states.

Ellis won the WBA version by outpointing Quarry on April 27. Patterson has lost just six fights in his long and checkered career against 46 victories and one draw. Ellis is 26-6.

A formal announcement of the fight is expected within a few days.

The bout will be televised nationally in the United States by ABC-TV.

Older Fans Keep Gleason on Top

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Why do people like Ed Sullivan, Lucille Ball, Red Skelton and myself stay on the air year after year?" asked Jackie Gleason. He supplied his own answer:

"Because we appeal to the mature audience. The globe-shaped comedian was in an analytical mood as he attacked his simple lunch of prime ribs of beef and two bottles of beer. He asked for a tall glass, but all the Paramount commissary could provide was a glass for ice cream sodas. He accepted it uncomplainingly, commenting, 'I have drunk beer from every conceivable vessel.'"

Gleason was at the studio for filming of his second movie in a row, "How to Commit Marriage." He was working solo prior to the return of costar Bob Hope, sidelined at the picture's start because of a recurrence of his eye ailment.

Reflecting on TV longevity, Gleason observed that the way to survive is to appeal to the older folks: "They're always at home, and they'll tune you in because they know they can count on a regular standard of entertainment."

"When we do 'The Honey-mooners,' we get both the kids and the adults. For the variety shows, the audience is mostly adult—unless I put on one of the pop music acts, which I don't like to do."

"I think it's tough to last when you aim at the younger audience only. Take 'Laugh-In.' Don't get me wrong—I think Dan Rowan and Dick Martin have done a terrific job with that show. They've used the 'hellzapoppin' technique to great advantage."

"But how are they going to keep it up; these kids nowadays are so sharp, so quick to catch on, that every-gag, every-gesture registers in their minds. They can repeat all the jokes and catchlines, and they do. But how soon are they going to tire of those things and want something else?"

Gleason himself is planning no innovations for the coming season, although he is aiming for strong names as guest stars. It will be more of the same, and judging from his consistently high ratings, there's no need to change.

The Gleason technique, as he describes it, appears to be even more casual than Dean Martin's. Dino amazed his fellow stars by devoting no more than one day to his variety hour. Gleason said that he often reports to his show just in time to have a hair trim and get into costume.

"For 'The Honey-mooners' we might have a one-hour run-through," he added. "Fortunately, I'm a fast study, and so are Art (Carney), Sheila (McRae) and Betty (Kean). We use cue cards only for the songs; it's too tough to learn the lyrics for four songs every show."

"Otherwise I don't use cue cards or Teleprompts. I don't believe in them. Most of the actors on shows nowadays don't talk to each other anymore—they're too busy staring at their lines."

Come September, Gleason will be back in his favorite haunt of Miami Beach and starting a new season. He doesn't miss Hollywood.

"Where have all my old buddies gone?" not New York. "I sometimes wonder how I ever lived there, playing 18 holes every day at Toots Shor's bar." He has even solved the need to come here for films: Next January he plans to costar with Lucille Ball in "Diamond Jim Brady," to be filmed in Florida.

Federal Grants

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Federal grants totaling $766,454 to provide recreation areas in New York City, Buffalo and Little Falls were announced Monday by Gov. Rockefeller's office.

The largest grant, $455,000, to be matched with state funds, will be used to acquire land for a new state park on the Harlem River in New York City.

Buffalo will receive $271,454 in federal funds to acquire and do preliminary site work on the Lakeview section of LaSalle Park, and $40,000 was earmarked for development of a section of Moreland Park at Little Falls.

Stabbed to Death
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Ida Mae Hill, 43, of Rochester, was stabbed to death by another woman early today during an argument in a downtown restaurant, police said.

Police said they did not know the identity of the assailant.

Mrs. Hill died of three wounds — to the chest, lungs and arm — officials at Genesee Memorial Hospital said.

Ahlberg Will Be Head of Kansas College

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Clark D. Ahlberg, a vice president of Syracuse, N.Y., University and a top fiscal planner in New York State under former Gov. Averell Harriman, will be the next president of Wichita State University in his native Kansas.

The Kansas Board of Regents announced Monday night that Ahlberg would succeed Dr. Emory Lindquist, who became president when the university entered the state system in 1963. Lindquist's resignation takes effect Sept. 1.

Ahlberg, 51, was born in Wichita and received his bachelor's degree from Wichita University in 1939. He received his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Syracuse University, where he began his career in education in 1940 as an instructor of political science.

He is now vice president for administration and research at Syracuse.

In 1955, Ahlberg became deputy director of New York's Division of the Budget. He was made budget director in 1957 and deputy comptroller in 1959.

Ahlberg also was a personnel researcher for the National Bureau of Standards and research director of Syracuse University's office in Washington, D.C. He is married and the father of three.

Fulton Woman Crash Victim; Mate, 2 Hurt

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Maybell Conner, 63, of Fulton, N.Y., was killed Monday when her husband and two grandchildren were injured slightly when a house trailer being towed by their automobile jackknifed and crashed into the car.

The Conners were returning from visiting their son at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. The accident occurred on Interstate Route 90 near this city northeast of Cleveland.

Police said they did not know whether Mrs. Conner lost control of the car or whether a gust of wind caused the accident.

Skid marks showed that the car and trailer went off and back on the highway three times before the trailer slammed into the left side of the car.

Mrs. Conner's husband, Matthew, 64, and the grandchildren, Lynne Parrish, 13, and Rene Parrish, 12, were discharged from a hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

To Meet Tuesday
The 11 Meter C.P. Club will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the club house on Rockwell Road. A member of Civil Defense will be the speaker for the evening.

Utica Man Killed
UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Richard N. Cass, 21, of Utica, was killed Monday when the automobile in which he was riding slammed into a guardrail on the city's North-South Arterial.

Dear Abby

Sitter Not 'Working Out'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would be writing to you, but I need an impartial listener, and I am desperate.

I am married with four lovely children, ages 3 to 12. I work of necessity not by choice.

My difficulties started last year when my father-in-law died and "Mom" asked me if she could be our day time baby-sitter to keep busy and supplement her income.

We thought it was a wonderful idea, as we would feel more at ease with grandmother looking after the children in stead of a stranger. What a mistake!

We learned too late that Mom is hypnotized by the television. She turns it on the minute she walks in, and it stays on until I come home from work. In the meantime, the two little ones have been tearing the house apart from one end to the other. Mom lets them do anything they please, and you know that is not good.

I have tried to talk gently with her, and so has my husband, but it hasn't helped. The situation keeps growing worse.

I would like to get someone else in to look after the children, but how can I without hurting Mom? She would feel unwanted, and I would feel cruel and heartless and guilty. Please help me find a solution, if there is one.

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Anyone can make a bad decision — the tragedy is perpetuating it. Face it, "Mom" is not working out as a baby-sitter. To suddenly "disengage" her would be unkind. Why not take an "indefinite" leave of absence from your job (for a month or so and gently relieve your mother-in-law of her duties. You could resume in time after having made other arrangements for a sitter.

An alternative would be to place your children in a day nursery. Either suggestion is, I think, better than continuing the way you are.

DEAR ABBY: For 20 years we've lived next door to a family I'll call the "SHMOS." Mr. Shmo and his wife belong to the same lodge, and they fish together. Mrs. Shmo and I are also very good friends.

My husband is a sergeant on the police force. Recently the Shmos' son came home from college and threw a big party in their backyard. I'll bet there were 100 kids there. The party got noisy and wild so the elderly couple on the other side of the Shmos' called the police.

Well, Mr. Shmo (Sr.) got smart and told the patrolmen that he had better watch his step because his best buddy was a police sergeant, so the patrolmen called for the "best buddy" who happened to be my husband. Mr. Shmo (now very drunk) cursed the patrolmen, so they arrested him with my husband's consent.

All the neighbors were watching. My husband had no choice, but now none of the neighbors will even speak to us. Abby, who was wrong? Should we apologize?

SERGEANT'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband did the right thing, and if the Shmos' and your neighbors became angry with your husband for having done his duty, shame on them. Mr. Shmo should apologize to your husband for having put him on the spot.

DEAR ABBY: I can't thank you enough for telling me to forget all those reasons I gave you for not wanting to go to our family doctor to see if I was pregnant or not. I took your advice and went, and he told me I wasn't pregnant. Boy, was I ever relieved. And Abby, I am glad that you told me that dressing the way I did was just setting myself up for rape.

I never realized before that those mini-mini skirts and real thin blouses with nothing on underneath could give the guys the idea that a girl was willing to do anything. Thank you very much, Abby. I will always love and respect you.

It's In The Stars

(The wise man controls his destiny... astrology points the way.)

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY

July 3, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 9): Blocks, obstacles could occur in connection with property agreements. Seek advice of individual with experience. Don't try to do everything alone. Older person gives beneficial aid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your great ally today is patience. Don't envy the other fellow. If the truth be known, he might wish to be in your shoes. Take your time. Unsettled conditions are due to settle.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Look around before making financial commitment. Avoid needless extravagance. Accent simplicity, quality. Many try to sell you frills and extras. Be fair but firm. Reject non-essentials.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your personal magnetism rating is high. People are attracted to you. One who teaches can help settle dispute. Make intelligent concession. Keep security goal in mind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Light touch wins today. Means don't attempt to force issues. Some persons appear elusive—they don't want to be pinned down. Go with the tide. Utilize sense of humor, diplomacy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Entertainment could prove expensive. Know this. Plan ahead. Don't be the first to reach for check tonight. Pay your fair share—but refuse to be a pushover.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get action from the top. Be ready with facts, figures. Convey ideas. Be sure your point is crystal clear. Some express confusion. Be patient in explaining, demonstrating. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your ability to make discreet inquiries is accentuated. Message could be delivered which changes complexion of future indications. Be receptive. Analyze information.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some may confide problems. Don't accept assertions on face value. Look behind the scenes—read between the lines. You may be the object of a test or a scheme.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Job and marital other responsibilities could conflict. Key is to be mature. Not wise to play hide-and-seek. Means be frank. State your needs—portion your time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Best to finish basic tasks before undertaking new, far-away project. You attract people with their problems. Obtain hint from SAGITTARIUS message.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): New view toward expenditures is necessary. Better bargain is available if you will but seek. Means be persistent. Let others know you are not without allies.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are versatile, artistic, sensitive to moods of others and could be fine actor, actress. Current cycle is one of preparation rather than direction action.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Home-building innovation could make news.

Thoughts While Viewing TV

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)

Thoughts while watching television:

—The great irony of the medium is that it makes kids so sophisticated so early that they can't abide to watch it seriously when they grow up.

—Nobody ever relished a line more than George Sanders in "The Picture of Dorian Gray" when he said: "Think with the liberals and eat with the Tories."

—Robert Montgomery is the best all-around leading man Hollywood ever produced, the essence of style, and my life's work is to present him with a Borg-like revival.

—The difference between old movies and new ones is this: In the old films they had villains you loved to hate. In the new ones they have heroes you hate to love.

—A good title for a book about television would be:

"Unsafe on Any Channel."

—Noel Coward's appearances on the home screen always remind me of his line: "Every woman should be struck regularly—like a gong."

—Art Buchwald, appointed CBS-TV's "very special correspondent" for August's political convention coverage, will be the man to watch. He promises "to be where the action is, such as Harold Stassen's headquarters."

—Some publicists for television news departments might do well to remember the old observation that few insults are greater than praising a man for doing his duty.

—The democratic system of government, with all its causes, has nothing to do with the natural aristocracy of the arts.

—There are times when one must rise above principle, and television does it all the time.

—In "Inherit the Wind" Clarence Darrow is told by a broadcaster that he cannot say

"damn" or "hell" on that new contraption, radio, and he replies: "Well, I can see this is going to be a barren source of amusement."

—Virna's Body English

—Scott Fitzgerald once explained he did his rewriting by going back and finding where the truth left off and picking up from there. Imagine if television followed the same formula.

—Virna Lisi doesn't speak our language too well, but, as we say in the pool hall, she has what might be termed body English.

—Watching the video talk shows, one is reminded that the professional improver and do-gooder is interested in what is done, while the civilized man is concerned just as much with how it is done, which is the difference between propaganda and art.

—What television needs is a

Tolstoi to Dostoevski to Turge-

nev.

House Approves Lunches, Major Poor People Goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has approved and sent to the Senate a $300 million, three-year program to provide extra free and low-cost school lunches for needy children—a major goal of the Poor People's Campaign.

The action Monday was coupled with passage of legislation which would require distribution of the lunches in such a manner that recipients would not be identified to their schoolmates.

Under the first bill, approved 274 to 78, additional funds for lunches would be appropriated automatically from leftover funds the Agriculture Department gets from customs collections to buy surplus farm products.

Money unused for that purpose normally goes back to the Treasury.

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman had told the House Education and Labor Committee that he needed congressional authority to use any of the nearly $300 million a year normally held in reserve.

Reacting to what committee Chairman Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., called an "emergency," lawmakers drafted a bill to give Freeman the authority he sought. "We are taking funds not otherwise utilized," said Perkins. "This is the only way we can reach this emergency."

The separate bill to require the identities of lunch recipients secret was passed 352 to 0. Recent testimony by private study groups indicated that many children of the poor refused to help because they were ashamed to undergo procedures which publicly marked them.

Included in this second measure was a provision to acquire states, starting in 1970, to provide supplementary funds for lunches. This would amount initially to 4 per cent of the federal contribution, and increase by 2 per cent each fiscal year until it reached 10 per cent.

On the Republican side, Richard M. Nixon has accumulated nearly three-fourths of the delegates needed for the GOP presidential nomination and his opponent, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, has called for fast enactment of strict gun control legislation.

Nixon now has 478 of the 667 votes needed for nomination, according to the Associated Press tabulation of delegates pledged, committed or publicly stating their voting intentions. Rockefeller has 192.

The count does not include the minimum 40 Texas delegates that Sen. John G. Tower said

Save Cities, HHH's Plan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey proposed a multibillion-dollar loan program today to "save" the nation's cities and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's top aides tackled differences over the direction his campaign should take.

McCarthy aides were reported divided over whether the Minnesota Senator should concentrate on personal contacts with delegates in his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination or combine the contacts with mass actions such as state convention walkouts to demonstrate his "new politics" strength.

Combines Strategies

The Washington Post said McCarthy had asked his advisers to combine their various strategies at a meeting in Washington today into a general plan for the campaign's future.

Humphrey, in what was billed a major speech on city problems, proposed in Cleveland creation of a National Urban Development Bank to help finance redevelopment projects particularly in inner cities.

"This is essentially a program for federal underwriting of loans," Humphrey said. The bank would sell federally guaranteed bonds to private investors.

"This is even more essentially," he said, "a proposal to commit ourselves as a country, to paying whatever is the cost not of just saving, but of perfecting, our cities."

Other Principals

On the Republican side, Richard M. Nixon has accumulated nearly three-fourths of the delegates needed for the GOP presidential nomination and his opponent, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, has called for fast enactment of strict gun control legislation.

Nixon now has 478 of the 667 votes needed for nomination, according to the Associated Press tabulation of delegates pledged, committed or publicly stating their voting intentions. Rockefeller has 192.

The count does not include the minimum 40 Texas delegates that Sen. John G. Tower said

Monday would go to Nixon as a result of the Senator's dropping his favorite son role and releasing the state's 56 GOP delegates.

Humphrey has 640 1/4 Democratic delegates votes in the AP tabulation to 401 for McCarthy. The Democratic nomination requires 1,312 votes.

Rockefeller said in Helena, Mont., Congress should enact President Johnson's proposal for gun registration and licensing before it adjourns this year.

"The lives of innocent people are at stake," he said. "Strong, workable gun-control legislation is urgently needed in the battle to control crime and lessen violence."

Gaining, Losing

The Harris Survey, meanwhile, reported Rockefeller is gaining Democratic and Independent support but losing Republican support to Nixon.

Louis Harris said in a Washington Post copyright story his poll shows Rockefeller gained 10 percentage points in independent votes between May and June in tests against both Humphrey and McCarthy.

In another political development, New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes, chairman of the Democratic National Convention's credentials committee, called a bid by Negroes for a guaranteed minimum of North Carolina's delegates "inappropriate."

Dr. Reginald Hawkins, a Negro civil rights leader, said an organization he heads will demand a minimum of 14 of the state's 59 delegates.

6-Week Shantytown: $1.2 Million Tab

WASHINGTON (AP) — The six weeks the Poor People's Campaign spent living and demonstrating in the nation's capital cost everyone involved, including the public, at least $1.2 million.

But that sum may fall far short of what the final expense will total a figure that may never be known.

On May 11 when the Southern Christian Leadership Conference planted Resurrection City, the campaign's plywood shantytown, on national park land near the Lincoln Memorial, federal officials said there would be little cost to the government.

But by the time Resurrection City was dismantled and hauled away last week, federal expenses were officially put at $231,684.

The District of Columbia estimated its own expenses from the campaign at about $500,000 not counting police costs during last week's demonstrations.

The SCLC, although tight-lipped about money matters, conceded it spent about $350,000 to operate the campaign. The Washington Star said it cost an additional $100,000 to build Resurrection City, and there was another $10,000 spent to bring the mule train, symbol of rural poverty, to the city.

Of the government expenditures, about $85,000 went toward tearing down the shantytown and replacing the grass trampled in the mud-filled 15-acre camp site.

Most of the governmental expenses, $129,603 spent by the National Park Service and the $500,000 incurred by the District of Columbia, went to pay overtime for policemen.

FUNNY BIRD

No. Funny-looking, maybe. But functional. Built for work. His natural habitat is high grass, weeds, brush. He mows them down, tiny blades of grass to 13" saplings. With 36" or 44" shout...

He floats over rough terrain—safer, faster, easier, with a longer proven life—even before medicare.

You see more JARI's in the yards and on the grounds of America than any other bird. Insist on JARI.
